JEWETT CITY

HOUSE OF BRIG. GEN. TYLER HAS HAD TO BE TORN DOWN

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 31—The name and fame of Brigadier General John Tyler are familiar to the residents of this section, not only in Griswold, but in surrounding towns. In 1904, Mrs. Thurston B. Barber of Norwich, a descendant of the general placed in every school house in Griswold, a printed sketch of this eminent man, bearing a cut of the old house where he lived. This house is owned by Joseph Roode and is near his home. It is said to be over two hundred years old and to his great regret it has become necessary to pull the house down. It literally was pulled apart, for the beams were double locked and had to be pushed apart. The nails, both large and small, were hand-made. On one of the beams a piece of money was found bearing the date 1787. The ell of the house is occupied by Walter Burdick. According to Griswold's town historian, Daniel L. Phillips, Joseph Coit and his wife, Mary Spaulding came down from Plainfield and purchased this farm where the house stood, soon after their marriage. Two children had been born to them when the father died, untimely, leaving the widow with the two children and the farm to be looked after. Young John Tyler, not yet settled in life, was prevailed upon to hire out to her to run the farm. A year after he married the widow, so the farm and this house became his permanent home. Without question, he was North Preston's leading citizen for many years, and his name occurs frequently in the state records of his time. The tomb in Pachaug cemetery where Gen. John Tyler is buried and which had fallen into decay was, a few years ago, restored by his descendants at considerable expense. It now bears the inscription "Gen. John Tyler 1771-1804."

This tomb was built for themselves by Benjamin and Wheeler Coit, two very prominent citizens for their own sepulchre. Sometime before his death Gen. Tyler bought of them a third interest in this tomb, that it might be the place of his own burial.

"Here lies the body of Mr. Joseph Coit, 2nd son to the Rev. Mr. Joseph Coit of Plainfield, who departed this life, July 21st A. D. 1741 in the 30th year of his age. Them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

The sketch given by Mrs. Barber states that John Tyler was the son of James Tyler and Hannah Safford, his wife of North Preston (now Griswold) and was born Dec. 29, 1721. Baptized in Pachaug church, Jan. 30, 1722. Married Mary (Spaulding) Coit, widow of Joseph Coit of Preston (now Griswold) Dec. 14, 1742. They joined Pachaug church, Nov. 4, 1762. To them three sons and four daughters were born. Two sons died in childhood, leaving John Jr., the only son. His military career began in the Colonial Wars. In 1752 he went as a deputy from the town of Preston to the general assembly at New Haven, Roger Wolcott, Esq. Governor. At later dates he went as deputy. In 1752 he was commissioned lieutenant of the third company or train band in the town of Preston. In 1755, when 34 years old, he was appointed captain of the ninth company in the third regiment sent from this colony. He was in the expedition against Crown Point.

His Revolutionary record began on May 1, 1775, when he was commissioned lieutenant colonel of the sixth regiment, was also captain of the second company. Promoted to colonel October 1776, continental army. Appointed brig. general third militia brigade (taken from five regiments) succeeding Saltonstall, June 1777, and served through the war. Brig. Gen. John Tyler was in the siege of Boston in 1775, in the battle of Long Island and White Plains in 1776. In August 1778 a body of militia under Brig. Gen. Tyler served under General Sullivan at Newport. He commanded the militia on the New Haven coast in 1779. Tradition records that, after the war closed, the soldiers could not get their pay, and the brig. gen. having means, used his own money, and paid the soldiers; afterwards the government reimbursed him. He died July 4, 1804.

His wife died Nov. 11, 1801. One of the signers to his will was Levi Hart, pastor of Pachaug church from 1762 till his death in 1808. Relatives of Brig. General Tyler live in Griswold at present. The passing of so ancient a landmark as the house which sheltered so prominent a man is to be noted with real regret.

DANIELSON

HENRY A. TODD EXPLAINS ABOUT FATAL ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Aug. 31—Henry A. Todd, Doylestown, Pa., driver of the automobile that struck and fatally injured Arthur Berthiaume, at North Grosvenordale Monday afternoon, was brought to Danielson in custody of State Officer James Carmody this morning that he might make a statement relative to the accident to Coroner Arthur G. Bill.

Mr. Todd, a man of distinguished appearance and an instructor in a boys' preparatory school, told the coroner that he was driving south from Webster when the accident happened. He was unfamiliar with the territory and in approaching the dangerous corner where the accident happened he swung to the right, then realized he was going wrong and sharply swerved the machine back on its former course.

As he did this, a woman, evidently thinking the car was going to overturn, screamed. Mr. Todd said the cry of this woman, who happened to be passing, unnerved him for an instant and he looked up to see what it was all about. As he did so the car crashed into Berthiaume, who was stooped over painting, where there is a fence about a fire hydrant.

The only action that is likely to be taken against Mr. Todd at this time is the fixing of his bond at $2,000. Awaiting the arrival of this, Mr. Todd was being held at the state barracks here this afternoon, at which time he had been notified that the bond was on its way. It is understood that all the facts in the case will be presented to State Attorney Howard C. Bradford, that he may later take such action as may seem advisable.

Mr. Todd, who with Mrs. Todd had been touring in northern New England, was much perturbed over the accident and profoundly regretful that it had occurred.

DANIELSON, Aug. 31—(AP)—Deacon and Mrs. Albert C. Greene, who are to observe the 61st anniversary of their wedding next Monday, September 6, have decided to have a family dinner party in honor of the event. Deacon Greene is 86 and Mrs. Greene 84, and are still in the enjoyment of fairly good health, though Deacon Greene's sight has failed considerably of late. Mrs. Greene's two sisters, Mrs. D. A. Gleason of Detroit and Mrs. Sarah Baisbeck of East Moline, Ill., are the only ones living of the large group of persons who witnessed the marriage of Deacon and Mrs. Greene, 61 years ago. It is hoped that both will be in Danielson for next Monday's anniversary.

Graded schools throughout the town of Killingly will open for another school year next Tuesday, with these exceptions. Pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of the Danielson and the South Killingly schools will not resume their studies until Killingly high school is reopened, this now planned for September 20. These pupils are to study in the high school building and, with a ninth grade, will constitute the new junior high school. The South Killingly school is to remain open for pupils up to and including the sixth grade.

Today, September 1, the thousands of depositors of Brooklyn Savings bank will be credited with the usual semi-annual dividend at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent. per annum, as voted by the trustees Monday. The bank has had an exceptionally successful six months period of business. Its deposits have increased and its earnings have been very satisfactory. At the semi-annual meeting the trustees voted to add a substantial sum to the profit and loss account. The deposits of the bank are now well in excess of $5,000,000, and are showing a constant growth.

Tuesday afternoon the funeral of Leo Robert Breayea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Breayea, was held from the home on the West Side, with a service at St. James' church. Burial was in St. James' cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

No message has come to the relatives of Billy Maurice, lost from a sound steamer the night of July 13-14, while he was enroute from New York to Providence, to justify the belief that a body seen floating in the sound off Plum Island the past week might be that of the missing man. Maurice's real name was William Coutu, and he was a brother of Edward Coutu of Dyer street.

Indications are on this first day of September that work on the enlarged Killingly high school will be sufficiently advanced to permit of the opening of the school on September 20, two weeks later than the beginning of the school year in this town.

While the building will not be near completion at that time, nor for weeks thereafter, it is now indicated that the old building will be ready for use, or the greater part of it, and much of the new north wing, where artisans are now concentrating their efforts.

Floors of Michigan rockwood beach are now being put down on the upper floor of the north wing. Staging was being taken down on this new part of the building Tuesday. Cabinets were being put in. Electricians were at work. Painters were giving their attention to rooms ready for it. It would appear from all of this that the opening of the school need not be delayed beyond the 20th.

There is no need of rush work on the south wing. This will contain the auditorium and gymnasium as its principal features and they will not be pressing need for their use at the opening of the school. About 75 men were employed at the school on Tuesday.

MYSTIC

The Garden club met at the home of the president, Mrs. Louis P. Allyn, Monday afternoon. It was voted to hold a picnic at Mason's Island Saturday, Sept. 11. Mrs. George S. B. Leonard was appointed chairman. Trees was the topic and the first article read was John Davey's Great Contribution to America. He started tree surgery. Next was the actual work done on trees on West Mystic avenue. Representatives of the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery, Kent, Ohio, have recently been at work in the village and near by towns. Their methods of treating diseased trees are effectual and very interesting. Pruning is the first treatment, removing all dead limbs and superfluous growth. If signs of decay are noticed from the work of grubs or other causes, all the diseased parts are carefully removed with chisel and mallet until one fears there will be nothing left through which the sap may flow. In a tulip tree more than 70 years old, an opening was made about four feet wide and six feet high, this extended to the roots. When all the decayed parts had been removed, specially prepared paint was applied to destroy insects and the filling in of cement, colored as nearly as possible to match the bark, was commenced. This was packed in small quantities and the finished surface marked in squares. This whole process reminded one of the treatment of a diseased tooth and is expected to prolong the life of the tree in the same manner.

"How to Root a Willow," was explained and several short items on cares of trees and where the largest are found were read. Violet Storey read a collection of the poems; the one on a neighbor's garden was cleverly written. After the close of the meeting all went out to view Mrs. Allyn's flower garden.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

The Yearly Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is our highest building.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in one year could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Mass., to Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have lots of work to do and I am not very strong, but I was getting worse all the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to lose my appetite completely at certain times, but I feel very well since I began taking this medicine. I think so much of it that I would go before a notary and swear to its merits. You could step into my home any time and you will find a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. FRANK M. CASEY, 220 South 11th Ave., Mount Vernon, N. Y.

TIGERS SPLIT TWIN CARD WITH WHITE SOX

DETROIT, Aug. 31—(AP)—After being mauled 19 to 2 in the first game the Detroit Tigers scratched a 7 to 6 victory off the White Sox in the second game in their doubleheader today. Whitehill, Smith, Gibson and Holloway were pounded for 23 hits in the opener. Wells who started the second game wobbled in the six inning and Dauss rescued him, contributing a home run to the Detroit score. Detroit won the game in the ninth inning when Luque doubled after Woodall had walked. Morehart made nine hits, including two doubles during the afternoon, failing to get on base only once out of 12 trips to plate. The score:

CLEVELAND CUTS YANK'S LEAD TO 5 1-2 GAMES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 31—(AP)—Cleveland won today's game from St. Louis 6 to 5, in 12 innings, thus cutting New York's margin to five and one-half games. St. Louis took an early lead of five runs by reason of doubles by Vangilder and Gerber and Rice's homer with a runner on base.

St. Louis blew up in the sixth and Cleveland scored five runs, tying the score on an error by Gerber. Sensational catches by Rice prevented Cleveland from winning in the 10th and 11th innings.

The winning run was scored by reason of daring base running by Summa. He hit a double with one out. L. Sewell walked and Lutzke hit a grounder to Gerber, the latter fumbling the ball, but recovered quickly and he was about to throw the ball to first when Summa dashed for home and slid under the throw.

Manager Sisler and Coach Williams of the Browns were banished by Umpire Rowland in the ninth for protesting when Rowland ruled a drive by Gerber was a foul. The score:

CARDS TAKE LEAD BY BEATING PIRATES TWICE

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 31—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals displaced the Pittsburgh Pirates as the leaders in the National league pennant race by winning both games of a double-header today, 6 to 1 and 2 to 1, from the world champions here while Cincinnati was losing to Chicago. Hornsby's men thereby gained a three point advantage over the Cincinnati Reds with Pittsburgh one point farther back.

Allan Sothoron held the Pirates to three hits in the final game and struck out six men. It was the first complete game he had pitched this season. The contest was unusual in that there were no extra base hits.

The Cardinals bunched hits in the seventh inning for their two runs and knocked Morrison out of the box. Singles by Rafey, O'Farrell and Thevenow combined with a walk and a sacrifice, brought in the scores.

Wee William Sherdel, the little carolina, lefthander with the tantalizing slow ball, held the Pirates to seven hits in the first game while Lee Meadows, formerly a cardinal and now one of the aces of the Pirate staff, was slammed to all parts of the park. Hornsby's men collected a dozen safeties, including two home runs and a double. During the seven innings the bespectacled righthander worked. The score:

YANTIC AND POWER CO. TEAMS PLAY TO ANOTHER DEADLOCKED SCORE

The E. C. P. played their third consecutive tie game at the Duwell field on Tuesday evening this time with Yantic by the score of 1 to 1. The game was all that advance reports indicated, there being action from beginning to end with some plays of a spectacular nature being pulled to keep the large crowd on edge throughout the entire contest.

The E. C. P. started right off in the first inning in championship style—sending their only run across the plate. After Joe Barry, leadoff man, had flied out, Whitney beat out a roller down the third base line. He stole second and went to third when Sweet missed up Dugas' grounder at first. Whitney then scored on Clabby's double into left and Dugas went to third. However, Jones tightened and retired the side without further scoring.

The one run looked pretty big for the next few innings, for, although Yantic had men on bases in almost every stanza, yet they lacked the final punch to score. For instance, in their turn at bat in the first inning, Lloyd Jarvis, lead-off man, was safe on an error. He went to second on H. Hoxie's sacrifice and third on a passed ball. Dona was passed but Dugas forced Jones to fly out to Goldblatt for the third out.

In the second inning Sweet singled but he was stranded, while in the third inning Jarvis was passed to start off and after H. Hoxie had popped up in attempting to sacrifice Moore doubled but with men on second and third Dugas sizzled and fanned both Dona and Jones.

Yantic tied up the game in the fourth inning when they scored their one-hand only run. Hamel singled as a start but was forced on Sweet's liner to Dugas. Rathbone forced Charlie running for Sweet, Whitney to J. Barry. Walk two down E Hoxie hit to W. Hoxie at short who fumbled and Rathbone was safe at second and Hoxie at first. Lloyd Jarvis then came through with a sharp single to left and Rathbone crossed the plate as Moore missed up the hit. H. Hoxie then flied out to end the inning.

Jones held the Powermen in order in the fifth on two strikeouts and a fast out at first. However, Yantic came close to winning in their turn at bat when Moore first batter, sent a long double into center. Dona and Jones both fanned but Hamel singled sharply off Dugas' plate and Moore was thrown out at the plate to end the game, the Power to Scanlon.

Dugas, Moore and Clabby starred offensively for the evening. Moore has two doubles out of three trips to the plate. Clabby with a double and single out of two trips and Hamel had two singles out of three trips.

Both teams were in fine form, and pitching in the pinches. However, Yantic's Jones had the better of it. Jones allowing but three hits, one a scratch off the scratch. This is Jones' first game in the league. Jones fanned four and issued no passes while passing not a single Yantic batter. Dugas allowed six hits, one two baggers, and struck out two men.

The Powermen will be the unopposed holders of the top rung in the Eastern Connecticut league when they meet the Eastern Cons. Power will meet on Tuesday evening. These teams have played two games to date and should the E. C. P. men come out the victors they will be assured of the pennant for the season. Arrangements are being made to stage this game on the home grounds.

MULLINS TO MAKE ATTEMPT TO STOP BOUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(AP)—Declaring his controversy with Pennsylvania boxing authorities over Dempsey-Tunney tickets a "closed book," Tex Rickard, back at his Madison Square Garden today concentrated upon other chapters of his unfinished fistic "tale of two cities."

"That's all settled now," said the promoter, in reference to his argument with Frank Wiener, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission which resulted in Wiener being allowed 4,000 ringside tickets. "We're going ahead with other things."

Arrangement of preliminary bouts to support the world's championship fight is one of the promoter's immediate problems but with an unusually attractive crop of heavyweights springing into prominence he expects to have no trouble solving it.

Harry Persson, the Swedish champion who made his American debut last week by defeating Johnny Risko, is certain of a place on the card, while Monte Munn, Nebraska knockout sensation, and Knute Hansen, of Wisconsin, also are slated to be on the card.

The suggestion that Harry Wills, negro challenger, might be offered a place on the program was shelved by Rickard today after being informed that Paddy Mullins, the negro's manager, had launched a fresh effort to block the title match.

MEXICAN SITUATION IS TO RECEIVE ATTENTION OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—The Mexican situation is again to occupy the close attention of President Coolidge, who will receive tomorrow James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus for consideration of conditions in the southern republic.

The appointment has been made at the request of Mr. Flaherty who recently took up with Secretary Kellogg of the state department in Washington the resolution of the Knights of Columbus calling for American intervention in Mexico to protect Catholic church men in their religious dispute with President Calles.

Mr. Flaherty went to the state department at the suggestion of the summer white house where it was made clear that if he was not then satisfied with the situation, Mr. Coolidge would be glad to receive him.

While no details of the visit have been made public here beyond a bare announcement of the appointment, it is assumed the head of the Knights of Columbus desires to take up phases of the controversy at some length with the president.

Meanwhile the position of the Washington government toward Mexico has been reiterated in behalf of Mr. Coolidge. Hands off unless and American citizens are injured in life or property.

Reports to the state department, it was recently announced during a visit of Secretary Kellogg to the summer white house have shown but one specific complaint against Americans during the religious controversy and that, involving a church, it was added, the Mexican government had promised to adjust.

No detailed announcement has been made concerning the conversations Mr. Flaherty held with Mr. Kellogg on the question.

The views of President Coolidge were made known on a number of other questions during a visit this morning to the executive offices and included reaffirmations of his policies both as to the funding of foreign war time debts owed the United States and as to the world court.

A number of visitors were received by President Coolidge today. Will H. Hays, "Czar of the movies" and a former chairman of the republican national committee, was a luncheon guest and discussed a plan for government preservation of historic motion picture films. It was not indicated, however, whether he took up the question of foreign competition the motion picture industry is encountering, although it had been said before his arrival that this would be discussed.

Officials of Franklin county, in which the summer white house is located, accompanied by their families, were also received to extend an official welcome on behalf of the county to the President and Mrs. Coolidge in this region.

During the day Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston, who have been guests at the summer white house for several weeks, left by automobile for their summer home at Swampscott, Mass., while Mrs. Elmyra Goodhue, of Northampton, Mass., mother of Mrs. Coolidge, arrived for a visit. Mrs. Coolidge went by automobile to Burlington, Vermont, and met her mother who had spent the night there.

Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, is to be a luncheon guest of the President and Mrs. Coolidge Thursday.

Due to the appointment with Mr. Flaherty the trip Mr. Coolidge planned to make tomorrow to Tupper lake, 30 miles from here, has been postponed. It will probably be made later in the week and the president will visit the American Legion Convalescent camp and the Veteran Bureau hospital there.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Flower that Wasn't

The flowers that grow beneath the sea,
Are not just what they seem to be.
Graywing the Gull.

Reddy Fox, having learned that what he had found on the beach, looking like little masses of jelly, had been living things known as Jellyfish, he promptly lost interest in them. Perhaps that was because he had been stung by one of them in the water. Anyway, he went looking for other things, and it wasn't long before he found something which made his eyes quite pop out. He had found a quiet little rock out where the water never was much disturbed. Looking down in this, he discovered what he thought were flowers. He thought they were flowers growing down under water. The petals seemed to be waving about in the water. They were exceedingly pretty. Each seemed to be a rather stout-bodied little plant, with a spreading flower at the top, and some were prettily colored.

"Oh, nothing but some flowers," replied Reddy releasely

"I'd like to know what these things are," thought Reddy. "I should like to ask Graywing the Gull, but I don't want to be laughed at again. Graywing will get the idea that I don't know anything. There is any amount of seaweed thrown up on the beach, and of course, that must grow in the sea. If seaweed can grow in the sea, I don't see why flowers shouldn't grow in the sea. Anyway, these look like flowers to me."

Reddy was still watching them when Graywing the Gull alighted on the rock just above him. "Now what have you found?" cried Graywing.

"Oh, nothing but some flowers," replied Reddy carelessly.

"Flowers!" exclaimed Graywing, looking all about everywhere but in the right direction. "I don't see any flowers."

Graywing looked down. "Still I don't see any flowers," said he. "Are you joking me, Neighbor Fox?"

"Certainly not," replied Reddy. "I hope you don't think I would be so impolite as to do such a thing as that. Don't you see those little flowering plants growing right on the bottom?"

Graywing's eyes twinkled. They twinkled. "Oh," said he, "those are what you mean. Reach in and touch one."

Reddy looked at Graywing suspiciously. He hadn't forgotten how Graywing had laughed at him for getting stung by a Jellyfish. "No, thank you," said he. "I learned my lesson with that Jellyfish."

"But that was different," said Graywing. "You don't expect a flower to sting you, do you?"

"No," replied Reddy, "but I didn't expect a Jellyfish to sting me either. Those flowers are all right to look at, but I guess I won't touch them."

Just then a Crab came swimming along, and touched one of the flowers. Reddy happened to be looking at it at the time. In place of what appeared like a beautiful flower there was just an unattractive, shapeless mass. Graywing had happened to be looking at the same one, and he caught the expression on Reddy's face. "Now, what do you think of your flower, Neighbor Fox?" said he.

"I don't think it is a flower at all," declared Reddy, "but it certainly did look like one."

"It isn't a flower," said Graywing, "although it is called a Sea Anemone. It really is an animal, just the same as the Jellyfish is an animal. See, it is beginning to open up again now."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Bonds: Steady, convertible rail liens strong.

Coffee: easy, importers selling.

Chicago

Wheat: Lower, larger receipts.

Corn: higher, fears frost damage.

Cattle: Steady.

Hogs: Irregular.

COTTON

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—(AP)—Unexpected strength and a lively development in today's stock market, which was featured by a series of remarkable buying demonstrations in the railroad shares, several of which touched the highest price ever recorded in history, and which had been dull and irregular in the early trading, bounded upward at the close under the leadership of such recent favorites as United States Steel common and General Motors.

Bear traders, who had sold stocks heavily during the past week or two on the theory that money rates would soften and prices react, were caught unawares and hastened to cover as pools began to bid up stocks in all sections of the list. Labor day week is traditionally a period of quiet and indecisive market, but this week is likely to prove an exception, judging by today's performance.

Except for the publication of another batch of earnings statements bearing striking testimony to the current prosperity of companies in widely varied lines of industry, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the sudden outburst of British enthusiasm. Predictions of lighter call money failed to materialize, the official rate holding at 5 per cent. all day, with plenty of funds available despite the calling of about $10,000,000 in loans.

The combined net operating income of the 186 railroads to report indicates that the total of all class one railroads will reach the record breaking total of $1,000,000,000 for July against an earlier estimate of $110,000,000. The average of 20 leading railroad shares touched the highest level since 1913. Advances were made outstanding and minor performers, soaring over 5 points to a new high record for all time at 169 3-4 as against a low of 122 earlier in the year.

Other issues in that group to break through the year's previous high prices some of them to the highest quotations in 20 years, were Chesapeake & Ohio common and preferred, Illinois Central common and preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Missouri Pacific, Southern Railway, Canadian Pacific, Norfolk & Western Rock Island and Chicago Great Western preferred, the net gains ranging from fractions to nearly 5 points.

U. S. Steel common, selling ex-dividend 1 3-4 more than made up the quarterly payment, closing at 159 1-2, the day's high. General Motors also closed near top at a new high record at 189. The advance in the shares was followed up by the announcements of a call in Gulf Coast crude prices by the Humble company, but even better earnings for the year were claimed by Pan-American Petroleum, Texas company and Standard Oil of California. Buying of the petroleum shares was stimulated by favorable mergers and dividend reports involving some of the large independent companies.

Nearly a score of other issues also broke through to new 1926 maximum points the list including such widely diversified shares as Allied Power & Light, Express, Amalgamated Leather, Barcalo Manufacturing, Congoleum, Commercial Solvents B, Hartman corporation, R. H. Macy, Union Tank Car, and Tidewater Oil Company.

Trade sales were unchanged. Prime commercial paper was named being quoted at 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 instead of 4 1-4 to 4 3-4.

Commodity markets were mixed. Active wheat futures headed a cent or more a bushel on increased receipts of the commodity at Chicago. Cotton rallied 23 to 27 points on reduced crop estimates and unfavorable weather reports. Sugar prices held firm, but coffee prices were slightly reactionary.

Renewed strength of French francs caused quite a points higher around 3 cents, the highest quotation since the recent government took office. Interest the four foreign exchanges centered. Demand sterling held steady at 4.84 3-4 and most of the continentals were firm with the exception of Spanish pesetas, which rallied 16 points to 15.70 cents.

At Attawaugan Wednesday afternoon Treasurer Brown said that his concern would take steps for the immediate resumption of operations in the three newly purchased mills. Getting the plants on a production basis will necessarily be a slow operation, but it will be hastened as much as possible. Full capacity operation must await the availability of the new cotton crop, which will begin to arrive about October 15. When the plants are operating with a full complement of help this fall about 400 will be employed.

There are 1,000 looms, 50,000 ring spindles and 15,000 mule spindles in the mills that have been taken over. Much of this machinery is practically new and practically all of it will be available for use by the new owners, who, however, contemplate some changes in equipment. These changes will involve the removal of some machinery to make space for additional spinning machines, for the production of yarn for the Paco Mfg. company mills in Danielson, which are a part of the Powdrell and Alexander, Inc., organization. Heretofore much of the yarn used in the Paco plants here has

MEXICO'S NEW CONGRESS ASSEMBLED LAST NIGHT

MEXICO CITY, sept. 1.—(AP)—Mexico's new congress assembled at 6 o'clock tonight with the prospect of having to take under consideration some of the most important questions that have arisen in many years.

President Calles' message was read in the house, and in it the president gave attention largely to foreign relations and the general development and welfare of Mexico. He alluded to the alien land and petroleum laws and to the controversy which had arisen between Mexico and the United States over these measures.

The American government had asked for modifications but the Mexican government replied, sustaining its right to enact and enforce those laws "fundamentally because the enactment and enforcement of these laws could not affect legitimately acquired rights further than what is permitted by the principles of right, justice and equity."

The religious question, labor legislation and a constitutional amendment, one effect of which might be to permit General Alvaro Obregon again to assume presidency of Mexico, are among the subjects to be discussed by the congress.

The Catholic episcopate will petition congress to amend or repeal the religious clauses of the constitution, under which President Calles promulgated the "regulations" which caused the suspension of services in all the Catholic churches.

With regard to the presidential succession the constitution of 1917 provides that "the president will remain in power four years, and may never be reelected."

This constitution was an outcome of the 1910-20 revolutionary period, which ended with the overthrow of Porfirio Diaz, who had remained in office term after term and virtually become dictator of Mexico. The revolution that overthrew that power sought to prevent the possibility of its recurrence by making the reelection of a president illegal.

NORTH CAROLINA TO HAVE A RUN-OFF PRIMARY

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 1.—(AP)—A run-off primary tow weeks hence will be necessary to determine whether United States Senator Ellison D. Smith or Speaker Edgar A. Brown of the state house of representatives, will be democratic senatorial nominee in South Carolina. Practically complete returns from the primary yesterday failed to give either a majority in the three-cornered race in which former Senator N. B. Dial was running third. With tabulations from all but approximately 100 of the 1371 precincts received the standing tonight was:

The run-off will find Senator Smith, an advocate of the world court, pitted against Brown who has assailed the court as "a republican proposal" materially different from the plan endorsed by Woodrow Wilson and the 1924 democratic national convention.

In the nine cornered gubernatorial race, in which Governor McLeod was not a candidate, John G. Richards, a member of the state railroad commission, led with 40,735 votes. State Solicitor I. C. Blackwood was second with 33,130 and Lieutent Governor E. B. Jackson third with 30,667.

CASTAWAYS PICKED UP AFTER TWO DAYS

BIDDEFORD, Me., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Three wind-tossed castaways rested and refreshed by the first square meal in two days, tonight held a joyful reunion with their families while scores of friends who had joined in the search for them called with congratulations.

Harold Farrand, Joseph Dumont and Calixte Martin, all of Biddeford, set out blithely in a small motorboat on Monday morning for a fishing trip. This morning they were picked up and brought to port by the C. G. 156 of Gloucester, Mass., one of the several coast guard boats engaged in the search.

In the interim the men had tinkered with their disabled engine, been swept far to sea, won all but two of the miles back under temporary repairs, and then were carried far out again when the gasoline supply failed. Their food gave out and they substituted the raw clams they had taken as bait. The sun burned them by day and last night they were miserably cold when the temperature took a long dip downward.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CONFER WITH PRESIDENT

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 1—(AP)—The Knights of Columbus hopes the Washington government can use its good offices under the international law to ameliorate conditions in Mexico but does not ask intervention, James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia, supreme knight of the order, informed President Coolidge today.

Accompanied by members of his supreme council, Mr. Flaherty came to the summer white house to discuss the recent resolution of the organization adopted at Philadelphia, which called for action by the American government to protect Catholic church men in Mexico in their religious dispute with President Calles.

In conference with the president for an hour, the delegation let it be known also that the order is not asking the withdrawal of recognition by the United States of the Calles government, or the lifting of the arms embargo. It was not for the Knights of Columbus, it was emphasized, to say what should be done, as that was a matter for the president and the state department to determine.

While no statement was made on behalf of the president after the conference, there was no indication of any change in his policy of "hands off" in the religious dispute unless or until American citizens are injured in person or property in Mexico. Mr. Coolidge was said by the delegation to have been "most kind and patient" in hearing their views and as they left he came from the executive offices and was photographed with them.

Mr. Flaherty said he brought no list of outrages against Americans in Mexico to present to the president, explaining that the state department was intimately in touch with that phase of the situation. He came here after conferring twice with Secretary Kellogg of the department and made clear that in doing so he wished to present matters fully before Mr. Coolidge as well as Mr. Kellogg.

In a formal statement, made after the conference, Mr. Flaherty attributed present conditions in Mexico to a great extent to policies pursued toward that country by previous American administrations.

Mr. Flaherty was accompanied by Martin H. Carmody of Grand Rapids, Mich., deputy supreme knight; William J. McGinley, of New Haven, Ct., supreme secretary; Luke E. Hart of St. Louis, supreme advocate; William C. Prout of Boston, supreme director, and John S. Conway of New Haven, assistant supreme secretary.

Genral Samuel Sedales, General Julian Vanegas and Colonel Torres, of the revolutionary forces, are reported by the government as having been killed. The government commander, Colonel Marcos Potosme was made a general on the battlefield.

Latest Returns on California Primary

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 16—(AP)—A sweeping victory for United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Coolidge republican candidate for renomination in yesterday's primary, was indicated early tonight on the fact of returns from 5,303 of California's 8,274 precincts. Shortridge was leading his anti-world court opponent, Robert M. Clarke, for whom Senator Hiram Johnson stumped the state, by almost 60,000 votes.

The vote: Shortridge 218,390; Clarke 159,317; Representative Walter F. Lineberger (anti world court and dry) 75,704.

In the other major conflict of the primary, Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, also supported by Senator Johnson in a series of campaign addresses, was fighting to maintain his lead over Governor Friend W. Richardson in the republican gubernatorial race. Returns from 5,484 precincts showed that Richardson, who had been lagging behind since early last night, had cut down his opponent's lead from 22,561 to 19,966, a gain of about 3,000 votes for Richardson.

The figures: Young 224,242; Richardson 204,276; Rex Goodcell, 78,207; R. F. McClellan, 4,321; W. D. Mitchell 3,628; Major Thomas 2,792.

A spirited battle also was raging between the McAdoo and anti-McAdoo candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nohination. Carl Alexander Johnson, the McAdoo candidate who had been leading Justus S. Wardell in a previous tabulation, forged ahead of his rival in returns from 5,484 precincts which gave Johnson 25,058; Wardell 23,679.

Meanwhile John B. Elliott, indorsed by William Gibbs McAdoo as an anti-Tammany candidate for United States senator, was increasing his lead over Isidore Dockweiler, democratic national committeeman, whom he accused of trafficking with Tammany hall in a plot to swing the 1928 presidential nomination to Governor Al Smith of New York. The vote in 5,209 precincts: Elliott 243; Dockweiler 20,068.

Contests in four congressional districts, where wet candidates bid for support on modification or repeal platforms, developed two wet victories in the fourth, Mrs. Florence Prag Kahn, wet republican incumbent, overwhelmingly defeated a field of candidates who included Mrs. Cecil D. Hamilton, club woman advocate of strict prohibition enforcement. Richard Welch, San Francisco county supervisor, avowed wet, also defeated his opponents in the fifth district by a big margin, though it should be noted most of them were wet, too. Welch also was elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Representative Lawrence J. Flaherty.

Henry L. Englebright, republican wet, who had been leading his dry, wet and non-commital opponents in early returns, late today was trailing Fred G. Stevenot, non-commital on the prohibition issue, was leading his wet opponent, Philip G. Sheehy, but trailing his dry rival, Percy L. O'Connor. Free was leading Sheehy in the contest for the democratic nomination, which O'Connor is not seeking.

TO CONSIDER 27 REP. SENATORIAL CAMPAIGNS

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—(AP)—Campaigns in twenty-seven states involving republican seats in the United States senate will be considered here September 21 by the senate campaign committee of the republican party.

The committee meeting, first of the fall campaign, was called for one week after the last of the nine remaining senatorial primaries in which republican seats are involved. Wisconsin, Nevada, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Arizona will choose republican senate nominees next Tuesday and Colorado, Vermont, Washington and New York on September 14. Primaries also are still to be held in Maryland and Louisiana, but they are normally democratic states.

Support of Frank L. Smith, republican nominee in Illinois, was indicated today by the committee with the announcement that it will send a speaker in Smith's behalf to Taylorsville, Ill., September 15. The suggestion in some quarters unfavorable to Smith that he resign his candidacy made after a senate campaign funds committee revealed the expenditure of his behalf of more than $250,000 in the primary, has been ignored by the candidate.

Damage by Floods in Illinois and Iowa

Industry Halted, Railroads Blocked, Stock Drowned and Roads Deluged.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Floods, riding in the wake of four to eight inches of rainfall, which swept central Illinois and Iowa yesterday, halted industry, blocked railroads, drowned stock and deluged roads today over much of the area.

Galesburg and Peoria, Ills., were the hardest hit, each city reporting damage approximating a million dollars. At Galesburg the yards of two railroads, paving brick company, light and power plant and the city water works were under water. Merchants' basements were flooded and many homes damaged.

Damage by rainfall in Iowa, was offset, the weather bureau said, by benefit to crops.

Rivers were rising rapidly tonight in northwest Iowa, where the rain reached its height today, and several bridges were out. There was no loss of life.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 1—(AP)—By declining to endorse Spain's demand for a permanent seat in the league of natons' council and by adopting the Franco-British draft scheme for the council's reorganization, the commission charged with the task of revamping the structure of the council terminated tonight its labors, begun last May.

Although the Spansh delegate, Senor Palacios, received multiple tributes on his country's contributions to the work of the league and on Spain's role throughout Europe's history, the impression in Geneva, reinforced by reports from the Spanish frontier, is that Spain will not be satisfied with these semi-permanent seat arrangements envisaged by the Cecil-Fromageot reorganization scheme. It is further thought in some quarters that having failed to obtain the commission's support for a permanent chair, Spain will not send delegates to the forthcoming council or assembly.

The substance of the remarks of all the delegates was that Germany alone could be attributed a permanent seat at this session, and they hoped Spain and also Poland and China, would accept the semi-permanent arrangement and defer pressing their claims for permanent representation on the council.

The commission will meet again tomorrow evening to adopt Dr. Motta's report to the council, in which the viewpoint of Spain, Poland, China will be incorporated.

NEWSPAPERS GREATEST CONSTRUCTIVE FORCE

TRIBUTES PAID UNITED STATES AT THE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

GENEVA, Sept. 1—(AP)—Glowing tributes to the pioneer role played by the United States in furthering the cause of arbitration and impressive predictions that the adhesion of the United States to the world court of Justice would greatly promote international peace dominated the opening session today of the international conference convoked to decide whether the American reservations to adherence to the court were acceptable to the court signatories.

Quick approval on their first reading was accorded the first three American conditions, and discussion of the fourth reservation advanced to such a favorable point that the president of the conference, Eyesinck, felt justified in announcing before adjournment tonight that no serious objections had been made to it.

This reservation would permit the United States to withdraw from the court at any time and would prevent any amendment of the court's statutes without the consent of the United States.

Definite action on the fourth reservation was deferred because the delegates wished enlightment as to whether in a point of fact amendments to the court protocol would require a unanimity vote, or whether a majority would suffice.

Nothing definite on these questions was embodied in the court regulations, but the general opinion voiced today was that the unanimity rule should obtain, and that this being so, the American condition that Washington must always consent to any remodelling of the court statutes was perfectly justified.

It was when the famous fifth reservation concerning an advisory opinion came up that the audience, almost entirely American, concentrated all their attention, and the delegates themselves of thirty-eight countries manifested kept interest. All realized that this was the reservation on which American adherence to the court would succeed or fail.

This reservation forbids the world court without the consent of the United States from entertaining any request for an advisory opinion relative to any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest.

"This," said President Van Eysings, "touches the heart of the constitution of the League of Nations. Many of us think that the United States by this reservation wants to be placed on a footing of absolute equality with the members of the league council. But this certainly makes us regret keenly the absence of the American delegation from this conference.

"The reservation involves the entire council procedure when the council asks for advisory opinions, and above all we would like to know how and whne American consent would be given to a request for advisory opinion.

No action was taken on this reservation, and the session adjourned until tomorrow.

BARBED WIRE BARRICADE NOW FOR MANVILLE MILLS

Entanglements Were Erected by Field Artillerymen to Prevent a Repetition of Tuesday Night's Attacks—Militiamen Have Established Themselves in the Mills—Strikers Are Vigorous in Their Denuncintion of Troopers For Firing on the Crowd.

MANVILLE, R. I., Sept. 1—(AP)—The bridge spanning the Blackstone river where a fierce battle occurred last night between striking employes of the Manville-Jenckes cotton mill and state police, was barricaded today by barbed wire entanglements to prevent a repetition of last night's attack. The entanglements were erected by the 35 members of the 103rd Field Artillery who arrived early today to reinforce the state troopers and deputy sheriffs who are guarding the mill.

While the guardsmen were preparing for emergencies, the strikers were holding a meeting in a local theatre, and Governor Aram J. Pothier was confering with Manville-Jenckes officials, labor officials and others in the state house at Providence.

After his conference, the governor officially sanctioned the presence of the national guardsmen in Manville, although they were called out by Adjutant General Arthur C. Cole without the governor's knowledge, and he announced that they would remain here until peace, law and order had been restored. The guardsmen, after learning of the governor's statement this afternoon, settled down to await further developments.

The strikers today were vigorous in their denunciation of the state troopers for firing on the crowd in last night's battle. Although newspapermen were not allowed at the mass meeting, it was said that this was the main subject of discussion.

Much elation greeted the report this afternoon that the Nourse mill of the Manville-Jenckes company at Woonsocket had been shut down by a sympathetic strike. All but 25 of the force of 300 operatives walked out of the Nourse mill in sympathy with the Manville workers, according to the Woonsocket Call. The employes of the Union mill, also in Woonsocket, walked out last Saturday.

Three army trucks brought cots for the militiamen today, and they established themselves in the mills. Their arrival, with ambulance and hospital corps detachments, more than doubled the strength of the mill guards, which had previously consisted of state police, deputy sheriffs and local police.

In erecting the barbed wire entanglements, the guardsmen left a narrow opening for motor cars and other vehicles having a legitimate reason for passing over the bridge. They also allowed strikers through one at a time today to get their tools, which had been taken from the mills to the yard outside.

The action of the state troopers in shooting last night was denounced today by Mayor Adelard L. Soucy of Woonsocket, whose nephew, Aram Auclair, a bystander, was one of the five injured by the troopers' bullets. Mayor Soucy declared that the troopers had no right to shoot without warning.

As the evening wore on and the hour approached which had been the zero hour of previous attacks, the troops completed their defenses. Behind the strengthened barbed wire entanglements a breastwork of cotton bales was thrown up and two machine guns mounted so as to sweep the bridge.

Tin hats were issued to the national guardsmen as protection against rocks. Searchlights mounted on the mill roof flooded the no-man's land of the bridge with light.

A conference was held on the battle ground just before night set in. Adjutant General Cole met Organizer Horace A. Riviere of the United Textile Workers. Thomas Shannon, president of the Rhode Island branch of the American Federation of Labor and other leaders, in the center of the bridge.

General Cole declared that the employes had authorized the governor to treat with the strikers. Riviere said that he would submit to the union the terms offered by Mr. Cole, which were not made public, and would confer with him again tomorrow.

Organizer Riviere asked the gathering crowd to follow him to a nearby field. There he addressed them and asked that they disperse for the night. He pointed out the danger in any contention with the heavily armed forces of the state and said Governor Pothier had requested him to try to prevent a crowd forming.

His address had no immediate effect.

RAIN ADDS TO MISERY OF EARTHQUAKE SUFFERERS

HORTA, Fayal, Azores, Sept. 1.—(AP)—The dead number 25 and the injured not less than 400 in the town of Horta where the great earthquake on Tuesday wrecked many buildings and drove the inhabitants in all directions, seeking a place of safety.

Other towns throughout the Azores were rocked, but Horta suffered more severely than any of them.

For two days and a night the frightened population have been living out of doors, and rain which began this morning added to their misery. Few habitable houses are left standing.

Martial law has been proclaimed and the civil and military authorities are working hand in hand to alleviate suffering.

Special attention is being given the women and children for whom temporary shelters are being put up in Horta and other towns.

The litered streets are crowded with women and children wandering about too frightened even to take refuge in the shelters provided for them.

The Church of the Conception is a mass of ruins. Fortunately the building was wrecked by the first shock because the crowds who rushed thither to offer prayers for safety were checked from entrance.

While many of the dwellings in Horta are still standing, most of them are not habitable because of wreckage of the interiors and the weakened walls which caused the officials to caution all not to re-enter their homes without precautions.

Many streets are blocked with fallen walls and upheaved pavements which adds to the difficulty of communication with the suburbs which also suffered.

Persons aboard the steamers in the harbor when the quake occurred say they experienced a thumping sensation as if their vessel had struck on rocks.

RUDOLPH VANENTINO TO BE BURIED IN HOLLYWOOD

All arrangements for the trans-continental journey have been completed by S. George Ullman, the late actor's manager, and the body will be started on its way west tomorrow evening.

CHANGES IN THE GYPSY MOTH QUARANTINE

HARTFORD, Sept. 1—(AP)—Changes in the gypsy moth quarantine areas in this state, to release several towns and provide regulations for two sections, one generally infested by the pest and the other more lightly affected, is planned by Director W. L. Slate, Jr., of the state agricultural experiment station. The proposed state regulations will conform to recent changes in the federal quarantine. A public hearing is to be held on the matter at the capitol, Thursday, September 9, at 10 a. m.

Consideration is to be given at that time to the inclusion of brick, stone and quarry products and other materials liable to distribute the pests in the products requiring permits for shipping out of the quarantined areas.

IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF SENATOR M'KINLEY

MARTINSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Rallying today from a semi-conscious state Senator William B. cKinley of Illinois, critically ill here, showed such improvement that his physicians were hopeful that he might survive the present attack of sciatic rheumatism. Complications, however, make his recovery doubtful and Dr. E. H. Egbert, his physician, fears successive periods of depression and rallies will leave him so weakened that his heart cannot stand the strain.

Early today the senator, who is 74 years old, regained consciousness, recognizing and talking with members of his family. Tonight an official bulletin showed his pulse weaker and his breathing more difficult although his temperature had not changed.

The veteran of 22 years service in house and senate has been in a Martinsville sanitarium since August 12. The gravity of his illness did not become known until last night when Dr. Egbert said he did not believe he would live 24 hours longer. Only his splendid constitution, the result of gymnastics and long hours on the golf links, enabled him to survive the night the physician said.

Senator McKinley was brought here from his home at Champaign, Ills., where he had gone to recover from an operation at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, last spring.

When he went to Washington in 1904 Senator McKinley was one of the wealthiest men in congress but philanthropic gifts of between ten and twelve millions within the past ten years have reduced his fortune, according to C. A. Willoughby, his secretary.

STORY OF THE SLAYING AF JUDGE LAMAR SMITH

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 1.—(AP)—How three months ago he plotted the slaying of Judge Lamar Smith of Wetumka, his father-in-law, and execution of the plot Monday night when the judge was ambushed and slain by a negro Hayes Leonard, 23, was told to authorities here today by Clyde Reese Bachelor in a written confession after he had been brought here for safekeeping.

The Negro also brought here, confessed to firing the shot that killed Judge Smith, and alleged Bachelor had held a pistol on him forcing him to slay the jurist. Mrs. Smith was injured.

Bachelor said that financial difficulties prompted him to plot the slaying so that his wife might inherit her father's estate.

"I was money-mad. I am ready to meet my maker," Bachelor said.

In the preamble of his written confession, Bachelor described the slaying of the judge who at the time was lying on his bed reading a paper. Bachelor denied that he was close beside the Negro holding a pistol on him, but said that he was 30 yards from the window through which Leonard fired.

"I went home and went to bed," Bachelor said. "When I got there my wife and baby were there."

The gun with which the slaying was done was a 12-gauge automatic shot gun, the property of Bachelor, and was loaded with buckshot.

ASHLEY MEANT TO PAY— AUTO CASE IS NOLLED

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 1.—In police court Wednesday morning on a charge of conveying and concealing property, to wit, an automobile purchased under a conditional bill of sale without knowledge of the vendor, Walter Ashley, of Webb street, Providence, R. I., until recently of 141 Crescent street, this city, pleaded not guilty. The case was nolled, on the grounds that Ashley did not realize that he was committing a violation. Ashley purchased a Nash sedan from Jackson & Sumner of this city last June on a conditional bill of sale, turning in another car as part payment and assuming certain payments for the balance. At that time he was employed at the Aetna Thread company. There was no payment and half of an other payment and when a representative of the company found that Ashley had moved to Providence, where he was employed by State Policeman Henry Hammond, Jr. court Stanley J. Sumner explained the conditions of the sale and said he did not think Ashley intended to default, but that it was necessary for the contract of sale to be observed. The company now has the car and has replaced two tires, besides making other repairs. The car will be held until payments are made. Ashley said that he did not know he was doing wrong in taking the car to Providence where he secured work. He had planned to return here Saturday and pay up the amount due and close the case up to the contract. The court ordered the case, on payment of costs of $15.66.

Arthur E. Noble, of South Coventry, charged with intoxication, breach of the peace, assault and non-support, in the city town court before Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman, Tuesday, developed into a disclosure of family difficulties which had brought about the arrest. Mass testimony was heard at the conclusion of which Noble was found guilty of three charges and fined $5 and costs on each count, totaling $26.67. He was adjudged not guilty of non-support. In a disturbance in the Noble home Sunday morning, the accused is alleged to have struck his wife and had difficulties with his son Edward Noble. It appears from the testimony that the family financial state was none too good and some time ago the separation came as wife and took his son to live with defendant. Trouble followed under this arrangement, and finally came Sunday morning. Mrs. Noble said her husband was a good provider, but that he did not support the family. He denied this and the court listened to Justice Gilman and Grand Juror Robert G. Brooke joined in giving the Nobles friendly advice to remember that after 28 years of married life it was high time to depend upon each other. Mrs. Noble did not appear hopeful to see any chance for a change in attitude. The court then announced its decision.

The 3,000 chapters of the American Red Cross have been urged by national headquarters to cooperate in protecting the emblem of the Red Cross from misuse and improper use in an article in the August 15 issue of "The Red Cross Courier," official publication of the society.

Cases of unlawful and unauthorized use of the Red Cross emblem are growing, the article declares, emphasizing the fact that "a move dare to protect this emblem is imposed upon chapters when, when local pressure fails should report all unauthorized uses of the emblem to the legal adviser at national headquarters."

An act of congress, the article points out, makes it a misdemeanor under penalty of fine of $500, or imprisonment for one year to use the Red Cross emblem in any other way than that defined by federal statute. A few commercial organizations it adds have a legal right to use the emblem because they were using it prior to 1905, in which instance, the statute provides that they can continue its use.

Gagne of 50 School street, Putnam, was injured at Attawaugan, just after dark Wednesday evening. Tellier left a truck parked without lights and partly on the state highway. $2,000,000 COTTON MILLS DEAL IN TOWN OF KILLINGLY

Announcement of the purchase of these mills at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville will be hailed with delight throughout the town of Killingly. They have gone to a concern that today rates as probably the largest manufacturers of curtains in the world and with a selling organization that covers all the United States and Canada. From the raw cotton through every process to the finished curtain and then on through their sales organization to the trade is the manner in which Powdrell and Alexander have built up an amazingly successful business. It was only about seven years ago that they first began manufacturing in this town through an arrangement with the Danielson Development association, starting with a small plant on Furnace street. Now, with their new purchases, they have five mills in the town of Killingly.

Joseph N. Powdrell is president of the concern, the vice presidents are John S. Alexander and Haley H. Scrapture of New York and the treasurer is William H. Brown of Boston.

The passing of the Attawaugan company from the industrial activities of the town of Killingly is a matter of regret. For approximately 60 years it was one of the town's most dependable concerns, operating steadily through periods of depression as well as through booms and eras of prosperity. Its first slump in memory came with the general break down of the nation's business in 1920. For the past two years its activities grew more and more limited until a few months ago it was indicated that a complete shut down was to be expected, and this anticipation was realized during the present summer. Stock was run out and the mills ceased to operate.

There will be real joy in Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville this morning when all learn that the mills have been sold and that steps are to be taken at once to get them operating again.

In effect the sale of the Attawaugan company property constituted the sale of three villages. The mill company owned practically all of Attawaugan and conditions were much the same in Ballouville and Pineville, though some properties are privately owned. The properties of the Attawaugan company extended from a point on the river above Danville to the Daniels village water privilege, above Pineville and there are some water rights over the line in the town of Thompson. It was recalled Wednesday that a great many years ago Attawaugan was known as Weatherbee's factory, this during the early periods of manufacturing in this town.

THEOSOPHY SOCIETY TO HAVE NATIONAL CENTER

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—(AP)—The American Society of Theosophy will lay the corner stone of its new $250,000 national headquarters at Wheaton, Ill., near here, next Sunday, during its national convention here Aug. 28—Sept. 1.

Approximately 2,000 members of the 274 lodges throughout the country are expected to attend the gathering, which will have as its guests of honor J. Krishnamurti, young Hindu regarded by the society as the man through whom God will work when next his agency visits the earth, and Mrs. Annie Besant, international president of the society. They will come from Adyar, near Madras, India, headquarters of the society.

Notre Dame, the best known middlewestern team outside the Big Ten circle, will have three opportunities to demonstrate its prowess against conference elevens. Minnesota will be met at Minneapolis Oct. 9, Northwestern at Evanston Oct. 23, and Indiana at South Bend Oct. 6.

Krishnamurti and she will be guests at a reception Saturday, Aug. 28, the opening day of the convention, and Mrs. Besant will speak Sunday evening, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, when the convention will end with a banquet, and on Thursday will deliver a public lecture in a down-town theater.

Mrs. Besant, despite her advanced age of 79, will find a busy program of addresses planned for her, with a speaking tour from coast to coast awaiting the end of the convention.

Mrs. Besant is the editor of a daily newspaper published in Madras, India, general secretary of the National Conference of India and of the National Convention of India.

The average convention delegate spends $37.50 per day during his visit to the city where the convention is being held. This was the figure given at a meeting of the International Association of Convention Bureaus, held in Buffalo, N. Y., by W. M. Symon, of Kansas City, Mo., who made a report of a survey which he had just completed.

ATTRACTIVE WOMEN

If You Would Be Attractive You Must Be Healthy

A beautiful woman is always admired. There are many types of beauty. But no woman can be truly beautiful unless she is healthy. Radiant vitality is always attractive however plain a woman's features may be.

Many a woman has found her health improved through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Weakness, loss of weight, and a pale complexion were a few things of which Mrs. J. C. Taylor of Box 211, Tallahassee, Florida, complained before she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "I could not even sit down and talk to a friend for any length of time," she states. "I would forget what I was talking about and felt so blue." Mrs. Taylor is so pleased with the work of the Vegetable Compound that she keeps a bottle of it in the house at all times—and when it is empty, her husband makes sure that she has a new bottle. "I have regained my strength," Mrs. Taylor writes. "I can do all my housework now and I feel just fine."

Camel—the greatest tobacco word of all time

NEVER in the history of smoking has there been such a cigarette as Camel. No other cigarette was ever made welcome in so many millions of homes, because no other ever brought so much enjoyment to smokers.

When Camels came into the world they brought an entirely new sense of smoking satisfaction and contentment. Millions who have tried them all, who could well afford to pay more, will smoke only Camels. Camels on the table mean that this is the home of experienced smokers.

Camel is the world's favorite cigarette. Camel is given a greater patronage than any other cigarette ever had. Why? Because Camels contain the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. Because Camels never tire the taste, no matter how liberally you smoke them. Because they never leave a cigaretty after-taste. The world's largest tobacco organization puts the utmost quality into this one cigarette.

If you want the mellowest mildness that ever came from a cigarette, try Camels. Regardless of what you are willing to pay, you will find in this famous smoke every fine feature you ever looked for in a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

VOLUNTEER NURSE

"When you are ill," spake the lady who had temporarily been laid low, "there should be a law causing you to be beyond caring what happens! It isn't fair to be obliged to endure sickness and yet have wits enough to take in what's occurring. Especially if your husband takes care of you.

"George stayed home mornings while I had the flu and by the time he left I had a fever so high it should have kicked the top off the thermometer!

"One day he decided I was to have a cup of beef tea, because that was what he had during his attack some weeks back. Downstairs he dashed and presently I began hearing doors slam. Large slam—that would be the door to the ice compartment—how did the man figure a tin of beef extract cubes would be in with a hundred-pound cake of ice? Two small slams like pistol shots—food compartment doors, shutting so fast I knew he had not glimpsed anything beyond the very face; cake of the racks. Fourth slam—that must be the milk compartment door. Huge crash—that was the door leading out into the refrigerator room. Mingled sounds, which I translated as a large man moving swiftly in a small kitchen somewhat filled with furniture and disarranging everything. Wild whirr of metal ware—heavens, he was tearing things out from the bin drawers in the table, where reposed all the pudding and salad molds, the fish mold, the potato masher I never used, the tops to the used jelly glasses!

"Then rumblings, verbal rumblings, were wafted to me. I gathered that George disapproved violently the existing order of things and especially women. Goldarn women, why couldn't they run their kitchen with some system and order like a man's office? No wonder their work swamped them! Crash, tinkle, crash—that meant he was at the pots and pans cupboard of the kitchen cabinet, where no fool whatever was kept. Bang! went that door. Muffled bangs as the drawers holding aprons, dish towels and bread's were opened and shut. Retiring bang as he shut the door on the flour bin. Loud swirl of sound as he pawed everything down from the two shelves holding regular kitchen equipment.

"'Hey!' George roared from the foot of the stairs. 'What the heck do those soup tablets look like? I can't find the darned things, and why shouldn't a kitchen be in order—'

"'It is in order!' I croaked at him. 'You never asked before you started—little tinfoil cubes in a tin box about the size of your safety razor box! I left it in the right-hand corner of the second self of—'

"'Well, all shelves have a lot of space back of the front edge,' I retorted before sinking back into my woeful pillows with a whirling head.

"Silence. Long silence. Then again he was at the stairs. He wanted to know what was the matter with the tea kettle. It had been hours since he put it on and it remained perversely quiet and unsizzling. Naturally, I knew he had filled the five-quart kettle to the brim, because men always fill everything to the brim. I said it wouldn't boil that way in an hour and for one cup of water use the pint measure to get results. It was fatal advice, because it seems George had used the pint measure to put mashed potatoes in to set away and forgotten it and almost everything came out of the kitchen cabinet again in his search. Jagged lightnings must have seethed through the air down there, judging from what came up to me. The burden of the refrain was that of all pinheaded, careless, feather-brained, unsympathetic housekeepers women were the worst!

"Finally George tramped up the stairs carrying a perfect tray, clean napkin and everything, and a cup of beef bouillon. He sat it down on my lap and stood back anxiously watching how I liked it. So I got it down.

"'Wasn't it good?' asked the lady who was calling.

"'Excellent,' said the lady who had been sick. 'But every swallow nearly killed me because if there was anything on earth I didn't relish at that moment it was hop soup—what I wanted was ice-cold orange juice, only I defy any woman to have said so after all the agony George went through fixing it for me!'—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

HAY FEVER

By Aaron Brown, M. D., New York City, Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

At this season of the year more than a million people in the United States are sneezing and suffering watering of eyes, blocking and running of the nose and a tickling sensation in nose and throat. Hay fever time is in full swing.

Hay fever is an inflammation of the membrane which line the nose, throat and eyes. The cause is irritation to these mucous membranes from fine particles floating in the air, effecting people who happen to be sensitive to pollen.

In the seasonal variety of hay fever, the sort prevalent just now, the pollen of plants is the exciting agent. Ragweed is one of the big causes. This pollen of course is wind borne and under proper conditions may travel for several miles.

There are two varieties of seasonal hay fever, early and late. Early hay fever or Rose colds due to the pollen of grasses and is current from May 15 to July 15. The late type, from the middle of August to frost time, is due to the pollens of weeds, almost exclusively to rag weeds.

In the "all year 'round" type of hay fever, the causative agent may be dust, animal danders, feathers face powder, insect powder, tobacco, etc.

The easiest method of escape from hay fever for those susceptible to the rag weed pollen is removal to a section of the country in which the pollen is not present. Of course it is necessary to remain there until frost has ended "back home." But this method of escape is unfortunately open to but few. Not many of us can arrange to be away from business for the necessary length of time.

Many hay fever patients therefore resort to treatment beginning several months prior to the expected onset of symptoms, and a big majority of patients, though not all, are helped by the treatment. After the cause of the hay fever is determined, the patient receives injections of the solutions of the substance to which he is sensitive. Many people than ever before are finding relief in this method, administered by the "family physician. Under no circumstances should the sufferer resort to self medication. Most so-called "cures" contain habit forming drugs.

General Condylis, who has pulled off a latest coup d'etat in Greece is one of those who have counted not a little before him on a soldier-politician. He won his reputation in the Balkan wars as a leader of Greek Comitadji, and the army—to achieve great distinction at a later date, and attained to Premiership, became a politician. His way in first, the strongest group in the coalition of M. Rallocopoulos, whom he helped to turn out of office at the time of the Lausanne conference about a year ago. While General Condylis has been accused of being actuated more by personal ambition than patriotism, it is said in his favor that his ambition has usually manifested itself along constitutional lines, as indicated by his two years' period of the national republican party.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Plea for Better Theatres

Mr. Editor: With the theatres opening again for the new season, theatre lovers are perhaps wondering with more or less anticipation what the program will be after the gala opening has subsided. Norwich needs good presentations by our theatres. Pictures and vaudeville without question meet the pocketbook of the average taxpayer better than the more costly shows, and it is the average man who patronizes constantly, week in and week out, our theatres. It would be an added attraction to Norwich if we could have the name of having good shows, really good shows, and music, and it should be to the benefit of all our managers if higher standards could be attained. Cheap "Song and Dance" men, with flat jokes and worse songs register little more than contempt with those who occasionally go to other cities and see real vaudeville, and undue that fails to co-operate with pictures or stage work doesn't help matters. The writer would like to see our orchestras follow the path of the better places in perfecting details, rather than stopping, for instance, in mid-air in the middle of one selection, and breaking harshly into an entirely different piece, in order to follow the theme of the picture, and particularly, do we hope not to have to sit through the second show without any music at all. True, the men have a right to rest, but some shift can be made to cover machine noise. It may take some hard study on the part of our music directors of other theatres to make these modulations more smoothly, but they themselves will not lose. No one does when one attempts self-improvement.

Here's hoping for a new season of improved theatres.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research, University of California, Los Angeles

Since the time that the traffic problem has become acute it has been the lot of those attempting to solve its difficulties to find some system whereby vehicles on one street would not have to be stopped in order that vehicles on a cross street might pass. Such a plan would seem impossible yet to some degree it can be accomplished by what is known as a rotary or gyratory control.

This type of regulation is obtained by placing a large circle in the center of the street intersection and requiring that all vehicles desiring to pass through the intersection shall pass to the right around this circle. In this manner it is clear that vehicles need not cross the paths of other vehicles and therefore there need be no stopping.

It will immediately appear that the efficiency of rotary traffic control will depend to a considerable extent upon the amount of space which is available for the circle. If it is too small it will have no more effect than would a large intersection button. On the other hand if the circle can be made very large traffic can rotate in any curve without interference.

The best examples of rotary traffic are to be found in Washington, D. C. As a result of the original plan for the capitol by Major L'Enfant, there are occasional places where diagonal streets meet at an intersection in which there has been placed a small circular park. Traffic entering these large intersections rotates without need for a stop and go regulation.

The average right angle street intersection is not suited to rotary movement for the size of the center circle would be too small for effective operation. Practically every city has a number of examples of irregular street intersections with comparatively large areas. At these places traffic tends to become spread and confused unless it is directed. The installation of a circle in the center of such intersection will often add to the smoothness of flow and to safety.

Ordinarily the circle installed for rotary control should not be less than 75 feet in diameter. The most effective size and location for the installation can be easily determined by experimenting with a circle of sand bags, before the permanent structure is made. Signs should of course be erected at all necessary points directing drivers to pass around to the right. If the permanent installation is of such a character as to endanger traffic at night, it should be adequately lighted.

The first step of the government toward providing education for the Indians was made by the continental congress in 1775, when a bill was passed appropriating $5000 for the education of Indian youths at Dartmouth college.

Stories That Recall Others

The Last Word.

Mother's little helper was engrossed in the mysteries art of cake baking. She mixed, stirred, beat and poured the dough until it promised to be a wonderful pastry. When it was taken from the oven it was a luscious golden brown. But, alas, when it was cut it had the texture of rubber. And, as if there wasn't enough to break his sister's heart, little brother had to say at dinner, "Hey, sister, bounce me a piece of that cake will you?"

Woman! Woman!

Jackie is past two and at such tender age has too little neighbor girls in love with him. He had to remain in the house for a few days last week, so when he was able to see callers the two youngsters were called in.

Sally went up to see him and said, "Do you like Helen? Say no," she said.

He answered in the negative, so she turned to his mother and said quite proudly, "Jackie don't like Helen, he just told me so." With that he dropped a little plaything and Helen picked it up and handed it to him, so he graciously patted her head and smiled.

It was too much for three year old Sally, who looked as though she had been "doubled crossed," so turning to his mother she said, "The next time Jackie drops something I'll pick it up."

Where It Went.

It was well after midnight and dark as pitch when the car stopped before the farmhouse.

Though there was no sign of a light the motorist blew in the hope of arousing sometone. Finally an indistinct figure appeared at the door and inquired as to the cause of the trouble.

"Where does this road go to?" bellowed the motorist with more vigor than politeness in his tone.

"I've lived here seven years and so far as I've been able to see it hain't gone anywheres," replied the peevish voice as he slammed the door.

Major Dennis A. Stakeslee and Town Chairman Joseph F. Morrissey, of New Haven, have been decided upon as two of the four members of the republican state central committee.

Important Changes in Toll and Long Distance Telephone Service

Effective October 1, 1926

Reduction in Rates

To points 150 miles or more distant, the rates will be substantially reduced. The greater the distance, the greater the reduction.

The following figures illustrate the reductions in basic station-to-station rates:

From	To	Present Rate	Rate Effective October 1
Norwich	Pittsburgh	$2.65	$2.05
	Chicago	5.15	3.75
	San Francisco	16.95	11.60

Reductions comparable to these will be effective from all other exchanges in this Company's territory.

Some rates for distances between 24 and 110 miles, as well as a few of the lowest rates, will be adjusted to make the schedule consistent throughout, but in these cases the increase of the basic station-to-station rate will be only five cents.

Collect Charges on Station-to-Station Calls

Heretofore the reversal of charges has been available only on person-to-person calls. As a further convenience to the public, this privilege will be extended, with a few exceptions, to station-to-station calls where the rate is 25 cents or more.

Longer Reduced-Rate Period

Reduced rate hours for station-to-station calls will begin at 7 P.M. instead of 8:30 P.M., as formerly. Between 7 and 8:30 P.M. the discount will be approximately 25 percent of the day station-to-station rates. From 8:30 P.M. to 4:30 A.M., the discount will be about 50 percent of the day rates. These discounts will apply where the day station-to-station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimun reduced rate of 35 cents. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing midnight discount will be discontinued.

The net result of these rate changes will be a saving to the telephone users of the United States of approximately $3,000,000 a year. The service changes are made in the interests of public convenience and to furnish still better toll and long distance service.

BRADLEY GETS CLOSE DECISION OVER BEAUREGARD IN FAST BOUT

Ruby (Dark Cloud) Bradley, the bouncing India rubber ball from Holyoke, Mass., bounced and ducked and jabbed his way to a close decision over Al Beauregard of Taftville last night in the main bout of the first card to be given by the Army-Navy club in Parish hall. The bout wound up as nice a boxing card as has ever been seen in the eastern part of the state. Action predominated the four bouts on the card and when the final bout was reached the fans were all at fever pitch.

It was a typical home crowd and the home boys were strong ruling favorites which accounted for some of the abuse that the referee, Tommy McCarthy, smilingly took. From the first to the last bout the crowd was a howling mob and they were given plenty to cheer for.

The main bout was all that could be desired and although the decision was not pleasing to all the home fans it was a fair verdict. Two distinct types of battlers were in the ring, one a slugger and the other a clever boxer Bradley displayed a wonderful defense against Beauregard's boring-in and slugging tactics and the only time that Beauregard knows were effective was when he directed his attack to the body. On the other hand Bradley did little damage to Beauregard although he landed more clean blows he frequently missed and those that did land did not bother the Taftville boy to any great extent.

Both were cautious in the opening and second rounds, Beauregard having a slight edge in the first while the second was even. It was not until the third round that Bradley took the aggressive and he carried the fight to Beauregard and took the round. The fourth found Beauregard boring in in an attempt to drive Bradley to cover but the dusky battler danced in and out and kept Beauregard well tied up and the round was his.

The fifth round was about the same as the fourth and neither did much of an advantage Bradley again took the aggressive in the next two rounds and although Beauregard kept coming in Bradley outboxed him and counted several times to the head and body but without inflicting any great punishment. Bradley carried the two rounds. In the eighth Beauregard started a terrific slugging and had Bradley hanging up and continually circling. This was the Taftville lad's round by a good margin. Again in the ninth Beauregard carried the fight to his opponent and drove him to the defense. In this round Beauregard hurt Bradley the most of any time during the fight when he sank two stinging lefts to the wind.

In the tenth Beauregard failed to follow up with his slugging and Bradley came from his retirement and snapped punches to Beauregard's head and body just often enough to take the round and the decision.

Bradley showed himself to be a great little glove catcher and his defensive work was smooth. He was hard, thereland everywhere and proved an elusive target for Beauregard's haymakers. Beauregard on the other hand looked the best in years. He showed a remarkable improvement over his last appearance in Connecticut ring. He is far more clever than when he met Silverberg and he does not absorb the punishment as in the previous bouts. He guards Bradley time after time. The closeness of the fight can be gained from Referee McCarthy's point score which gave Bradley 47 points and Beauregard 44.

Conley and Portell Draw

The semi-final bout was a slashing slugging and furious affair with Young Al Conley and Frankie Portell of Hartford go eight long rounds to a draw. Portell substituting for Red Morgan outboxed Young Conley but the sailor's aggressiveness and his terrific clouting in the last two rounds earned him a draw. Portell had the reach on Conley and kept a left in the sailor's face most of the time while he clipped him with his right. At close range Conley had the advantage of the in fighting and toward the latter part of the bout landed heavily both to head and body and it is the belief that Portell is dubious with the terrific body punching. The decision did not prove so very popular, the opinion being that Conley had earned the decision through his aggressiveness.

The only knockout of the card came in the six-round preliminary with a suddenness that was startling. Kid Wagner pride of Taftville, stepped into the ring against Frankie Turner of New London substituting for Sonny Carroll, punched ten and slugged for a minute and a half and then walked from the ring a victor in his first professional engagement. It was short sweet and to the point. Turner came from his corner drove a left to Wagner's stomach and a right to the face and that ended his sojourn in the ring. Wagner landed out caught Turner on the jaw with a right swing with his left to the wind. Turner stepped and Wagner followed up with rights and lefts to the head and then walked over the finishing punch with a left to the stomach and Turner was ready to call hostilities and McCarthy stopped the bout.

Plenty of action marked the opening bout in which Battling Bunch won the decision over Johnny Butana of Norwich. For three rounds the boys battled on even terms and then the Western battler opened up a furious attack that completely bewildered the local boy. Ernie drove a stinging left to Butova's face and the Norwich boy sent out a couple of wild. This marked the beginning of the end and although he weathered the storm he lost the verdict.

On the whole it was a bang-up good card and the Army-Navy club deserves a whole lot of credit. It would be hard to find a card where there was more action and this bout should prove a great boost to the boxing game in Taftville and Norwich. The affair was handled cleanly and no complaint was heard, everybody was satisfied. The officials besides the referee were Arthur Row announcer and Charlie Adams timer.

State Athletic Commissioner Thomas E. Donahue was present at the ringside and expressed himself as well pleased with the bouts and the way the show was conducted.

CARDINALS NOW LEAD REDS BY SEVEN POINTS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals tightened their hold on first place in the thrilling National league pennant race by knocking Ray Kremer out of the box in the seventh inning today and taking the final game of the series from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 2. Manager Rogers Hornsby regained his batting eye, smashing out a home run and a triple.

This was the fourth consecutive victory of the Cardinals over the Pirates. The Cardinals thus increased their percentage to .585, seven points above Cincinnati, which did not play today, and twelve points above Pittsburgh.

Hornsby's men nicked Kremer for eleven hits before he was taken out in the seventh. The pirate ace apparently was still tired after Monday's game in which he held the Cardinals to two hits and shut them out. Arthur Reinhart, southpaw, held the visitors to six scattered hits.

The paid attendance was 24,654, making a total of 115,132 for the series and establishing a new record for St. Louis.

DEMPSEY PUTS IN DAY OF IDLENESS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey spent a nervous and restless day just because he was laying off.

The world's heavyweight champion does not enjoy an idle day, especially with something on his mind, and he has a championship fight to think about. He would rather be working than loafing, but felt that a day of rest, away from the boxing gloves and training routine was needed to put him on edge for the resumption of training tomorrow.

Although Dempsey called today his "day off" he covered a lot of ground. After loafing around his bungalow all morning, Dempsey, with Mike Trant, visited the Children's Seaside home this afternoon to spread a little sunshine into the hearts of 300 crippled and orphaned children. The champion is fond of children, especially unfortunates.

The visit affected Dempsey more visibly than all the punches he ever received in the ring. Passing between the rows of cots Dempsey shook hands with all of the 300 boys and girls and had something to say to each. He posed for pictures, autographed books and "diddled" with the children for two hours.

Dempsey has turned down every invitation to social affairs in Atlantic City.

Dempsey spent the balance of the day meandering around the side streets, later going for a motor ride. He will swing back into training tomorrow. He worked eight days in a row at Saratoga Springs, rested two while switching his training camp to Atlantic City and put in seven days of toil here before deciding to take a day off.

BASS GETS JUDGES' DECISION OVER HERMAN

Lew Tendler, 149 1-2, Philadelphia, was awarded the judges' decision over Joe Rene, 148, Trenton, N. J., in a ten-round affair which preceded the Bass-Herman fight.

In the curtain raiser, also ten rounds, Pete Sarmientown 123, Philippine Islands, won the decision over Eddie Anderson, 121, Wyoming.

SNYDER REPORTS TO CARDS BUT REFUSES TO SIGN

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Frank Snyder, veteran catcher who was claimed by the St. Louis Cardinals from the New York Giants for the waiver price of $4,000, has reported here, it was learned today, but has refused to sign a contract unless promised his unconditional release at the end of the season. This promise the club has declined to make.

GREB TO FIGHT TOM LOUGHRAN AT EBBETS FIELD

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—(AP)—A light heavyweight contest between Paul Berlenbach, former champion and Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, scheduled for the night of September 11 at Ebbets field, has been postponed until the Astoria battler can rest from his recent severe ring campaign.

The promoter announced tonight that he had secured Harry Greb of Pittsburgh to take the place of Berlenbach against Loughran.

FRENCH TENNIS PLAYERS RECEIVE SETBACK AT BROOKLINE YESTERDAY

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 1.—(AP)—America today repulsed the first of three thrusts by France at her international tennis supremacy with two crushing triumphs in the quarter finals of the national doubles championship.

Sweeping back the tri-color attack with racquets which neither gave nor asked quarter, R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards, defending titleholders, rode over the Wimbledon champions, Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, to win impressively at 6-1, 6-2, 1-6, 6-0, in the first of the battles.

William M. Johnston, veteran California star, then fought back from a first set rout with his collegiate partner, Edward G. Chandler, to complete America's day of victory by over whelming Jean Borotra and Rene La Coste, with a sensational finish, 0-6, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Thus for the second time in consecutive years in the national team event, the drive of France was checked before the semi-finals by battering American racquets, and for the first time since Borotra and La Coste amazed netdom by stopping William T. Tilden and Richards in the national indoor championship last winter, followers of the net game on this side of the Atlantic were given definite assurance that America's Davis cup defenders still retain all the commanding power and skill under which they swept to decisive victory a year ago.

The two greatest contests are still to come. Next week the international rivals lock at Philadelphia in the five-match struggle for possession of the Davis cup, held in this country since 1920. Immediately afterward Tilden will take up defense of his national singles title against the third and final attempt of France to determine the six year reign of world tennis by members of the "big four."

The wide margins by which Richards, Williams and Johnston outplayed their opponents today left no doubt that the French quartet will encounter as stubborn a defense as they strove in a vain and spectacular assault to break down a year ago.

Earning the right to face Richards and Williams on Friday in the upper half of the draw, Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer of Texas for the first time since the opening of the tournament came through with a straight set victory today, winning easily over the young New York combination, Kenneth Appel and John Van Ryan, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

In the lower half Tilden and Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., played greatly improved tennis over their exhibition of yesterday against Nathaniel W. Niles and Watson M. Washburn, crashing through the far west defense of James Davies and Phil Neer to win unextended at 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. The victors will oppose Johnston and Chandler tomorrow for a place in the finals.

After an erratic start in the first set, Johnston and Chandler drove and volleyed with such destructive racquets that Borotra and La Coste were swept off their feet. Chandler, facing the biggest test of his brief career, suffered an attack of nerves in the first set. He could not seem to control the ball at any stage, driving far out of court and pitching the easiest kind of lobs into the net.

BUDDIES BEAT KILOWATTS IN LOOSELY PLAYED GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 2.—The Buddies combed out Guertin's delivery for four hits, whech aided by two walks and four errors, enabled them to score six runs to the four the Kilowatts had garnered before dusk settled on tonight's game. The game was loosely played by both teams and the outcome was in doubt throughout. The legionnaires started off strong, scoring two runs on two doubles by Lambert and Gaslorik, after the Kilowatts had scored one. Both teams scored three runs in the second and the Buddies scored again in the third. The Kilowatts failed to score again in the third. The Kilowatts failed to score again and the game was called because of darkness after they had batted in the fourth. Lagace, pitching for the Buddies, struck out four men, while Guertin turned back six. The box score:

TUNNEY RECEIVES GREAT RECEPTION AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, who fights Jack Dempsey for the world's heavyweight title here on September 23, received one of the greatest receptions of his life today when he came to Philadelphia to look over the battle ground.

"This is wonderful, this is great," the former marine exclaimed. "I never got such a hand in my life."

Tunney was on his way to his new training camp at Stroudsburg in the Pocono mountains region of Pennsylvania, and stopped here to pay his respects to Mayor Kendrick and look over the sesqui-centennial stadium, where the arena will be pitched.

"Gee, what a place" he exclaimed "this is bigger than the Pershing stadium in Paris."

The Pershing stadium is where Tunney won the U. S. Army light heavyweight championship in the games after the war.

VICTORY FOR POWERMEN TONIGHT MEANS THE TITLE

It probably is unnecessary to say again that should the E. C. P. win tonights game from the Warriors that they will clinch the pennant, because by this time the public should be pretty well used to this old story as it has been used every time for the past three weeks when the E. C. P. have played. Three times have the Power Co., boys journeyed to the Duwell field expecting to cinch the pennant and just as many times they have left the Duwell field with nothing gained as they each time have been held even, twice by the Warriors and once by Yantic.

Tonight will be the third time that Jimmy Holland's team has tried to beat the Warriors, the other two times, being lucky to get away with a tie game. The fans that witnessed the other two games between these two clubs have been raving ever since, and no doubt the crowd that finds its way to the Duwell field tonight will be by far the largest that has ever witnessed a baseball game in Norwich. Manager Holland has used his slow-ball pitchers and again his speed merchants in a desperate attempt to clinch the pennant, but for the past few weeks the result has always been the same, a tie the best he could get.

Whether he will use Lefty Dugas tonight or depend on old reliable Tommy Simcox, is a question, but whoever he does use will have their hands full as the Warriors have proved that they are without a doubt the scrappiest team in the league. It seems almost impossible that these two teams will play the third tie tonight as both teams have agreed to be on the field by 6 o'clock when the game will be started. Both the E. C. P. and the Warriors lineup will be the same as they have been in the past two games. The fans are urged to get to the field by six o'clock if possible so as not to miss any of the fireworks, of which there should be plenty.

RIVERVIEW AND TAFTVILLE START SERIES THIS WEEK

The Riverview club and the Taftville A. A. start their annual series this week end, playing the first game Saturday at the Providence street grounds and the second game at the State hospital diamond on Sunday. This will be the best baseball attraction this season as far as local interest and rivalry is concerned.

Manager Troland of the Taftville A. A. team has not held the Riverview club as being such a world beating team for he claims that the club of youngsters has trimmed practically the same clubs that the Riverview team has. He claims that if Riverview can lay claim to the state title he can also claim it by virtue of his victories over the clubs that Riverview has beaten. He says that if he can beat Riverview he will make a strong bid for the title. For Saturday's game he says that he will put a team on the field that will open the eyes of the Riverview club but he is not ready to make his announcement of the lineup as yet. It is rumored that he will send in an Eastern league pitcher of reputation who he is certain can turn back the hospital boys.

PUTNAM BOY DISPUTES JACKSON'S CLAIM TO TITLE

Among the many entries that continue to pour in for the field events to be held at the Norwich fair on September 8th, is one received Wednesday from Putnam sent for Gordon W. Winslow, which probably will be of interest to Norwich people especially the ardent supporters of Joe Jackson the recently crowned 100 yard state champion, who only yesterday sent in his entry.

The following paragraph is part of the letter accompanying the Putnam boy's entry, "Please enter Gordon W. Winslow, Putnam, Conn. (State A. A. U. champion for 100 yards and 220 yards, best time 10 seconds.) Winslow would like to compete against Jackson who claims the state amateur championship."

According to this letter received by the committee in charge of events at the fair, the 100 yard title is subject to dispute and this alone will without a doubt add considerable interest to the events scheduled to take place on next Wednesday. Several entries yesterday were also received from New Britain, swelling the total list of entries considerably.

The field events are as follows. Open A. A. U. events; 100 yard dash, 1-2 mile run, and mile run, closed to Eastern Connecticut, 100 yard dash, 1-2 mile run and mile run, playground events, 100 yard dash and 400 yard relay. Entry blanks may be obtained by addressing "Sports" Duwell A. A. Norwich, Conn.

In addition to the field events, six bouts of amateur boxing will be part of the athletic program for the 8th. These bouts will mark the initial appearance of amateur boxing in Norwich, four of the bouts are hand picked by Tom Tracy of New Haven, secretary of the A. A. U., while the other two will be picked by "Johnny" Shiblessard, from his stable of boys whom he has been instructing for the past few months. The "Shiek" has guaranteed two good fast bouts where no love will be lost. Everyone that has seen the "Shiek" perform will agree that if he instructs his pupils to fight in the same aggressive manner as he did while in the ring, that all his boys will be regular give and take boxers.

WIMBLEDON TROPHIES ARE PRESENTED TO WINNERS

Five of the six players were present to receive the medals, while the sixth was accepted by George W. Wightman of Boston on behalf of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of California, who won the women's single championship at Wimbledon in 1905 and 1907.

Others who received trophies were William T. Tilden, singles champion of 1920; William M. Johnston, singles champion of 1923; R. Norris Williams and Charles Garland, doubles champions in 1920; and Francis T. Hunter, winner of the team title in 1924 with Vincent Richards.

SUZANNE NOT WELCOME ON SOUTH AFRICAN COURTS

"She is out of court," President Lamb, of the South African Lawn Tennis union, remarked. Before she became a professional he added the union had offered to pay her parents' traveling expenses so as to facilitate her visit.

Enjoy Extra Goodness

It's that finishing touch in the manufacture of Lucky Strike cigarettes which is distinctive.

To begin with, they are made of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and perfectly blended.

Lucky Strikes are distinctive because of:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

If you haven't yet adopted Luckies, you're missing these added enjoyments. So smoke them for a trial. Learn why millions prefer them.

POETRY

Come to me, angel of the weary hearted!
Since they my loved ones, breathed upon by thee,
Unto thy realms unreal have departed,
I, too, may rest—even I; ah! haste to me.

I dare not bid thy darker, colder brother
With his more welcome offering appear,
For those sweet lips at morn will murmur, "Mother."
And who shall soothe them if I be not near?

Bring me no dream, dear Sleep, though visions glowing
With hues of heaven thy wand enchanted shows;
I ask no glorious boon of thy bestowing,
Save that most true, most beautiful,—repose.

I have no heart to roam in realms of Faery,
To follow Fancy at her elfin call:
I am too wretched—too soul-worn and weary;
Give me but rest, for rest to me is all.

Paint not the Future to my fainting spirit,
Though it were starred with glory like the skies;
There is no gift immortals may inherit,
That could rekindle hope in these cold eyes.

And for the Past—the fearful Past—ah! be
Memory's downcast gaze unveiled by thee;
Would thou couldst bring oblivion forever
Of all that is, that has been, and will be!

—Frances Sargent Osgood.

Being a Daughter

Being a daughter's not an easy thing—
The sort of daughter that I'd like to be,
Unselfish, patient, always quick to bring
The comfort needed; keen enough to see
The longings hard to guess at and fulfill
them,
The lonelinesses and the fears, and still
them.

Being a daughter's not an easy thing—
I've always really wanted my own way.
And so it's hard to keep remembering
That what seems right and good to us today
To older minds brings horror and alarm
although it may not have a bit of harm.

Being a daughter's not an easy thing—
Putting aside rebellion, eagerness;
For, though some days I long to have my fling,
I know that the old path of loveliness
Of quietness and calm, sweet dignity,
's better than those roads more gay to see.

Being a daughter's not an easy thing—
The sort of daughter that I'd like to be—
To share my rose, keep to myself the sting,
And show a face of calm serenity.
Being a daughter—it's a task severe,
But it's my favorite choice of a career.

—Mary Carolyn Davies in Ladies' Home Journal.

EIGHT FINED IN NEW LONDON COURT PRODUCE EASY MONEY TO SETTLE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 1—Eight liquor dealers were fined in the police court this morning for selling the beverage that the government says shall not be sold unless the seller has a government permit to engage in the distribution of any drink that contains more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol. The accused are men and women living residents of this city. They have followed the methods of so many others everywhere of getting some easy money at the prices charged that they were all in financial position to pay when fines were imposed. The fines ranged from $50 to $150 and the money counted pretty well as there were expenses attending the gathering of evidence to convict. The police found a stranger in the city for a few weeks and this fellow, unknown to the dealers, could buy when he made application for something stronger than cider, or to give him a line on the city, of course he was smooth where to go and how to go by a system, but that was not disclosed in the trials. The dealers fined were Joe Sherman, Arthur Messer, Max Goldstein, Hyman Hurtz, Abraham Berman, Salvatore Sansone and Francesco La Fontaine and Leonardo Montia. Beer, cider, whiskey and gin were the beverages sold. The prices obtained ranged from $5 apiece for the imposition of the fines and that was what the officers received from Judge Prince.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

That the programme of Keith-Albee vaudeville and photoplays that opens at the Broadway theatre for three days, starting today, will meet with spontaneous approval is a foregone conclusion.

Carlo De Angelo, the Italian character actor is to appear in "Lady Fair," a one-act musical comedy, written by De Angelo and J. J. McNally, Jr. De Angelo is one of an illustrious family, his uncle was the late Ermeti Novelli, the tragedian, and father the late Armando De Angelo, a romantic star.

In his present vehicle which is intended for Keith-Albee vaudeville, he appears as Antonio an Italian musical director and composer, who comes to America and is engaged as violinist with a musical comedy. He makes the acquaintance of a chorus girl in the company, who later becomes a mother. She dies and Antonio adopts the child.

When the story starts, Angela, the child has grown into a lovely young lady. She falls in love with Antonio, he is also in love with her, but he feels she should marry a great man, and is willing to sacrifice his love for her happiness—but why disclose the whole story and spoil it for you.

The part offers De Angelo plenty of scope for his serio-comic talents. The Blanchards have secured for his support a Broadway cast including Ruth Jewel, who is what gentlemen prefer. She has appeared in various musical comedies. Clarence Bellaire, who recently supported Lionel Atwell in "Beau Gallant," Hazel Stanley and Bobbie Parsons, dancers.

The other four acts which will appear will also be something to talk about.

Rough, virile drama of the outdoors such as "Combat," the current photoplay feature at the Broadway theatre, is popular because it presents life of a nature that we would all like to know, yet don't. House Peters has the starring role, that of a rowdy lumberjack. Opposite him is Wanda Hawley, while the other members of the colorful cast are Walter McGrail, C. E. Anderson, Charles Mailes, Steve Clements and Howard Truesdell. Lynn Reynolds directed.

Broadway Theater

Long heralded and anticipated, the stage version of Michael Arlen's sensational novel The Green Hat will be seen here at Broadway theater, Friday evening only Sept. 10.

The fame of Michael Arlen is world wide. This cunningly devised word patterns the alluring charm with which he weaves his perfectly constructed plots, thrilling, amusing and delightful, his never failing climaxes, have made him the most widely discussed author of the present day, and in Iris March, the lady who wears the green hat, he has created the most talked of heroine of modern literature.

It has been, as the pedants might say, a moot question as to what sort of a soul and body bubbled under Iris's green hat.

Some say she was a mere nympholept, others have contended that she was just a carnal madcap, the consequence of hereditary bad blood. Though a pious beauty she had a body complex, and after all of her frequent errors with men she was afflicted with remorse. She was beast and seraph, hot and cold, glad and sorry nun and wanton, and always a beautiful and fascinating mirage.

The Green Hat, is a world romance or flaming youth that is bound to attract the sex-mad multitude.

It comes here with original New York cast from its record run at the Broadhurst theater. Mail orders now being received.

The Southern New England Telephone Company

In cooperation with the management of the Norwich State fair, E. H. Gray, district commercial manager of the Southern New England Telephone company, has arranged to present for the first time in this part of the state, the intensely interesting and informative toll switchboard demonstration during the three days of the state fair at Norwich. The exhibit will be shown in commodious quarters in the building just to the right as one enters the fair grounds and will be a distinct novelty, and yet a practical and serviceable entertainment to the thousands who annually visit this fair. The building will be marked by a large telephone seal, and since this demonstration has proved one of the major attractions wherever it has been shown in conjunction with other exhibits, such as are presented at a state fair, persons who use the telephone, and particularly those who use toll and long distance telephone service, should not fail to see the telephone company's presentation.

It is in effect, bringing a toll switchboard to the subscriber and showing him exactly what takes place when he lifts his receiver to make a call to some friend or business house in another exchange, whether that to nearby or far distant.

The rapid transmission of the call from the calling subscriber to the local operator, thence to the toll operator at the originating point and to the operators in the distant city or town, is graphically displayed by means of flashing lights. Every step in the passage of a toll call is clearly displayed on the switchboard if it may be called that, though in reality, it presents a panorama over which the telephone call is speeding. Supplementing the display of the mechanics in a toll line telephone call, there are several expert operators in attendance at the exhibit. They explain in detail every step in the transaction and also point the various forms of toll service and those which are likely to best serve the needs of the subscriber. These young ladies have had much experience in actual telephone work and also in demonstrating the board and will willingly answer any questions which may be asked. They are there to help the telephone users and they perform that service with the cheerfulness characteristic of their profession.

The telephone company's exhibit will include also, an attractive presentation of the step and labor saving service which an extension telephone gives in any household. This part of the exhibit always interest and makes more friends for the handy little instrument which now is so useful and so essential to the proper conduct of a business, and in the social intercourse of a community.

There have been some remarkable advances in telephony in the past few years and these are shown and explained during the exhibit in such a way as to keep subscribers in step with the very latest innovations in this art which have brought about greater speed and an amazing simplicity in the processes by which one person may talk with another person who is situated even thousands of miles away.

Exchange Manager Henry E. Lyon of Norwich, and the managers of the other telephone exchanges in this part of the state will be visitors at the fair during the company's demonstration and they will be happy to meet their local subscribers and aid them in a better understanding of the improved service which has come with the mechanical advances in the art.

Readjustment of Telephone Rates

A general readjustment of long distance telephone rates, an extension of the periods when the low evening and night rates apply and an extension also of the subscriber's privilege of reversing charges, was announced today by The Southern New England Telephone company to take effect October 1.

There will be a substantial reduction on calls to all points 150 or more miles distant and the greater this distance the greater is the reduction.

For example, from Norwich to Pittsburg the basic station-to-station rate will be $2.05 instead of $2.65; to Chicago $3.75 instead of $5.15; to San Francisco $11.60 instead of $16.95.

A few rates for distances between 24 and 110 miles, as well as some of the lowest rates, will be readjusted to make the schedule consistent throughout, but in these cases the increase of the basic station to station rate will be only five cents.

One of the interesting changes from the public's viewpoint is that by which one and a half hours have been added to the reduced rate period. Reduced rates on station-to-station calls will begin at 7 p. m. instead of 8:30 p. m., as formerly. Between 7 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. the discount will be approximately 25 per cent of the day station to station rates, and from 8:30 p. m. to 4:30 a. m., about 50 per cent of the day rates. These discounts will apply where the day station to station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing midnight discount is discontinued.

Under the new schedule station-to-station calls may be made at substantial reductions as early as 7 p. m. and persons wishing to take advantage of the lowest rates of the 24 hours may make their calls any time after 8:30 p. m. Thus, although the midnight discount is discontinued, the longer reduced period and the substantial reductions applying in the basic rates to distant points mean that this change will make little difference in the cost of night calls.

By this move the company expects to improve service by eliminating complications at midnight which have resulted in delays and put a heavy burden on its facilities and employees. At the metropolitan centers, such as New York, it has meant retaining a large force of young women operators to care for a sudden and short-lived burst of traffic. During much of the time the operators kept on duty in anticipation of this temporary rush have had little to do, then a short period in which they have been entirely too busy to give the best service, and following that a sharp tapering off in business at an early morning hour.

Another change that will be welcomed is the extension of the privilege of reversing charges to include practically all station-to-station calls—whether placed during the day, evening or night—where the rate is 25 cents or more, with a few exceptions. In the last few years the use of long distance service has been increasing constantly and many situations now arise where the reversal of charges is of advantage to the customer who calls for a certain number. Hence this privilege is an added convenience and saving to the public.

While this rate readjustment includes small increases on some short distance calls, the rate reductions on calls over the longer distances will result in a net saving of about $3,000,000 a year to telephone users in the country as a whole.

Palace Theater

Tonight will witness the first appearance in this city of Anne Nichols' riot of laughter, Abie's Irish Rose, the wonder play of the age, which opens for three nights with a matinee Saturday at the Palace theater and unless all signs fail, this city will be another to add to the long list of record breaking engagements played by this phenomenal perennial, which for the last five years has been the most widely discussed play ever written.

Abie's Irish Rose is without doubt the most laughable comedy ever staged, and at the same time, it tells one of the most beautiful stories of love and tolerance beneath its one thousand hearty laughs and teaches a lesson, which is inculcated in so soft and delightful a manner, that it has been the subject of sermons in churches of all denominations and the basis for many more lectures by the clergy throughout the land.

In its phenomenal run in so cosmopolitan a city as New York, where it is now in the fifth year of unprecedented success at the Republic theater, and still is playing to uniformly large houses, speaks for itself, while the records and precedents established in every other large city, of the country as well as the smaller ones, have never been equalled in the annals of the speaking stage, and but reflects its success in the metropolis.

The engagement in this city is one no doubt will long be remembered. Seats are on sale for all performances, but as the demand is a large one, those wishing to witness the play would do well to secure their tickets as early as possible and avoid disappointment.

The box office is open from ten a. m. until nine p. m. but no phone reservations will be accepted, as it has always been the rule of this organization never to lay seats aside, or deal with speculators.

At the Lyceum, New London

During its 41 weeks' run at the Little theater, New York, Pigs was frequently cited as an example of clean, wholesome entertainment in the theater that lacked none of the exhilarating qualities of the salacious farce or the girl and music, tired business man type of play with which the stage is surfeited. John Golden, the producer of Pigs has devoted his activities to clean plays for the past ten years, but has frequently stated that the public will not patronize the box office simply because a play is clean. It is in the combination of wholesomeness with sparkling humor, romance and ingenious construction that the elusive element of public appeal is attained. Pigs comes to the Lyceum, New London for matinee and night performances on Saturday, Sept. 4, with Wallace Ford, Una Merkel, Gertrude Auvarde, May Buckley, George Henry Trader, Philip Barrison, Elaine Temple, Emerson Tracy, Frederic Malcolm and William Fox.

FEATURES ARRANGED FOR N. L. COUNTY FAIR

With only a few days remaining between now and Labor day, the opening of the New London County fair at Norwich fairgrounds, perhaps it is wise to again remind you that admission prices have been reduced to 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. While bringing about this pleasant change the fair management has done something never before tried, it has given more money to secure high grade vaudeville than has been expended at any previous fair.

The vaudeville attractions are the famous Culbertson's Roman Circus, an act which goes to the Eastern States exposition after appearing at Norwich; the famous Frederick DoBell, America's ranking high wire artist and the Aerial Yorkes, known as wonders on the trapeze. These acts are all A1 acts. Then there is also the balloon ascension and triple drop each day of the fair.

For horse racing the feature will be a stake race every day, something new to Norwich fair patrons and a thing that is expected to produce some fast races.

Along the midway are the usual attractions at booths, with the additional attraction for the kiddies. For the youngsters there will be the merry-go-round and the live ponies and goats, two rides which are always safe for the children.

Attractions daily will include the automobile show, the farm and home exhibits, animal exhibits, machinery shows, mercantile shows and the flower show.

Special daily features include the Better Baby contest and licensed dog show on Monday (Labor day); the appearance of St. Joseph's champion Boy Scout band on Tuesday and the A. A. U. backed field meet and boxing exhibition on Wednesday.

SAYS HAWAII CENTER OF PACIFIC GOODWILL

HONOLULU, Sept. 1—(AP)—Hawaii is the seat of a great movement destined to create a new area of international friendship and goodwill in the Pacific, in the opinion of Kazue Kuwashima, new Japanese consul-general here.

"The people of the Pacific," said Consul Kuwashima at a luncheon given in his honor, "must be given a knowledge of the character, the life, and the surroundings of other peoples in other lands. There must be respect not prejudices; friendship, and not enmity.

"International friendship cannot be obtained without international knowledge, and international knowledge largely depends upon international education and cooperation."

DEMPSEY'S NOSE SOAKED IN BRINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—The same face that Jack Dempsey subjected to a surgical operation to produce the most celebrated nose of modern times is to be soaked daily in an all-smelling pickle brine to make it as tough as leather.

The heavyweight revealed today that he has been brining his face as long as he has been boxing. He says all the old-timers of the ring used the stuff and that it minimizes the possibility of cuts from rasping blows. He boasts that his face never has been cut by a blow—all because of the brine business.

Dempsey gets both hands full of the stuff and rubs it into his face every morning. It smells,—Full, not like attar of roses.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(AP)—Heavy profit taking sales by professional traders checked the upward movement of prices in today's stock market but not until after more than 30 shares had been boosted to new high levels for the year or longer. Trading was on a broader scale than the days sales running into two million share mark for the first time in about two weeks.

Reduction in the call money rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent and the repeated optimism of the weekly steel trade reviews served to create bullish sentiment. The seemingly reckless bidding for many issues, however, led to a widespread belief that the market was being pushed up too fast, which was reflected in the late liquidation of standard specialties and rails.

Other speculative imagination fired by the unprecedented earnings being reported by many first class carriers, operators in these issues had little difficulty in attracting a large public following. Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, Delaware and Hudson, Rock Island, Southern Pacific common and preferred, Texas & Pacific, Marquette, Colorado and Southern and Chicago and Great Western preferred touched their high-for-the-year, or longer. Atchison and a few others lost all their gains on heavy realizing sales toward the close. An odd lot of Hocking Valley changed hands at 200, as against a high of 164.

Comment was by U. S. Steel reports that steel mill operations were being maintained at capacity, a rate for this season of the year since the price structure was first closed half a point higher than the week before, having fluctuated between 100 3-4 and 102 3-8, one block of 6,500 shares changing hands at 102.

The weekly report of the American Iron and Steel Institute showing another increase in crude oil production last week tended to restrain bullish activity in the oils although Phillips Petroleum and Texas Corporation broke through to new high levels. Wall Street remained persistent, but unconfirmed reports that the re-organization of the Texas company will be followed by a merger of one or two large independent companies with the new Texas organization. Domestic consumption of gasoline in July reached the record-breaking total of 1,014,804,000 gallons, an increase of 45,000,000 over June. Among the many specialties which came to new top prices for the year were American Sumatra Tobacco, Corn Products, Commercial Solvents B, Congoleum, Cushman's Baking, Yellow Taxi Cab and R. H. Macy, the latter responding to the announcement that the company would be taken over by Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation, which closed fractionally displays of strength.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent, a substantial jump of over half a point from the high rate which were quoted at 4 1-8 to 4 1-4 per cent at the close, and by further rise in French francs, which carried them across the 3 cent mark, featured the firm foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled at about a cent higher around $4.85. Other foreign and commercial paper was unchanged.

Bond prices were again mixed. Some wheat future advanced a point or more on reports of wet weather in Canada. Cotton closed 10 points net lower on reports of favorable crop weather. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT ADDRESSED ROTARY CLUB MEETING

The principles and aims of the Anti-Saloon league were ably presented by Rev. Ernest V. Claypool, superintendent of the league, at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Rev. Mr. Claypool spoke in part as follows:

Do any of you know of any one else who has become an opium smoker, or a regular user of chloral or a taker of heroin or a snuffer of cocaine for no other reason than that the use, or the free sale of these drugs is prohibited? I have never heard of anyone who took so large a dose of morphine that in consequence he was moved to murder. My understanding is that he went to sleep. I have never heard of a court record in which the criminal was proven to have committed a crime because of his having easily obtained any of these narcotics and taken an unusually large dose.

While there is proof in abundance of moral degradation caused by the use of narcotics my study of the question has led me to the belief that crimes of violence and crimes against property committed by narcotic addicts are for the purpose of obtaining the drug when deprived of it and practically for no other reason. I have been unable to find evidence that the use of these narcotics has at any time or place resulted in a large menace to public safety or greatly increased danger to person, property or life. I have no evidence that the prohibition of this miscellaneous sale has resulted in a material increase of their use in consequence of the prohibition, or that their use has been a material menace to the public excepting for the personal degradation of the user. It seems to me that the plea for personal liberty might well be used against the restrictions placed upon the manufacture and sale of narcotics though no high principled men are as yet casting in their fortunes and jeopardizing their personal reputations in behalf of the glorious principle of personal liberty to use morphine and smoke opium and inhale cocaine in any quantities and at any time and under any circumstances they may see fit.

Attitude of People

One of the remarkable illustrations of the attitude of the American people toward the liquor question is in the almost unanimous statement from the wets that they do not want the saloon back. Until two years of prohibition had passed the fight of the wets was directly and distinctly for the return of the saloon. The original prohibition fight was little more than a fight against the saloon as an institution, as is shown by the name of the organization which has been a leader in securing prohibition, the Anti-Saloon League. In those old days there was the constant assertion by the wets that only in licensed saloons would it be possible to curb or limit the evils which the wets confessed came from the traffic in alcoholic stimulants. The change in street conditions and in social relations which has followed the banishment of the saloon has been so patent that the improvement is undenied. One of the additions usually put to the demand for the legalization of the making and selling wine and beer is that this must be arranged for without there being a saloon.

What was a saloon? I am not giving a technical definition but am giving the meaning attached in the mind of an ordinary man or woman to the word saloon. Any place where intoxicating liquor was sold to the consumer was a saloon. There were all sorts under all kinds of keepers. There were places which were eminently respectable. There were some liquor men who violated the law in minor matters only and who were in general law-abiding and respectable citizens. They may be compared to the average good driver of an automobile who sometimes lets his brakes get out of order or has a habit of speeding when there is no cop around. From the very small number of these the personalities ranged down to the exceedingly large crowd of dive keepers who were to be found in every city and in most of the villages, whose saloons were dens of infamy and whose liquor was more poisonous than the average hooch or today. One of the questions which has yet not been answered by the seekers of the return of wine and beer could be sold without their being a place where it was sold to the consumer.

Wine and Beer Question

The wine and beer question is the other one about which there is present discussion. It has two angles. The first question is whether the general use of wine and beer would reduce drunkeness and the other is the question as to whether wine and beer could be legally made and sold under the Eighteenth Amendment.

Men who are thirty or more years of age know that the size of a drink was not the same for whiskey and for wine and for beer. The whiskey glass contained from four to six tablespoonfuls of liquor. Wine glasses were of various size, those used for strong wine being about the same size as a whiskey glass and those for the weakest wine about the size used at present in soda fountains to serve grape juice. An ordinary mug of beer in a saloon contained slightly more than a pint and a schooner of beer held a full quart. Anyone who will get the figures of the size of the glass used for a certain kind of wine and the percentages or alcohol in whiskey and the various wines and in beer can prove with his own pencil on a pad of paper in ten minutes figuring that the amount of alcohol taken in a drink of any intoxicating liquor was approximately the same as the amount taken in any other. The weakness or the strength of the alcoholic content was offset by the size of the drink. Of course other elements contained in the various liquors made their contribution to the total effect of a beer drunk or a champagne drunk or a bourdoux drunk or a whiskey drunk. So far as the effect of alcohol itself is concerned there is no difference between the results obtained by wine and beer and whiskey.

The terms of the Eighteenth Amendment are final and understandable. Any degree of intoxicating quality whatsoever bars a beverage.

Not New Development

Blind tigers, bootleggers and bad liquor are not a new development since the coming of prohibition. Blind tigers were run in territory dry under local option as every one old enough to know and possessing a memory will acknowledge. Not only was that true but the police records of cities showed official knowledge of the presence of unlicensed liquor joints in every city where saloons were licensed. Investigation always disclosed that the number of these unlicensed places was greater than the number that were licensed. In the dives and dens and doggeries the hell holes of the old condition, liquor as poisonous and as far from being the true product of brewery and distillery as anything to be found today, was notoriously common. Anyone who will take the trouble to dig up the short stories or the novels which told of social conditions between 1870 and 1900 will find pictures of this kind of thing which will refresh his own memory of things he knew about during those years. The files or old newspapers are full of court facts which tell the same story. The attempt to enforce the Internal Revenue law against whiskey distillers in the years immediately following the Civil war resulted in a political demoralization, in graft and criminality so widespread and so organized that the worst pictures painted today by fiery mouthed reporters in the yellowest newspapers are as a Sunday school picnic in comparison.

The ultimate quieting of the prohibition difficulties will not be immediate. The queston is too large for a quick solution. There must undoubtedly come modifications or prohibition enforcement laws from time to time as the results or their operations are shown and as conditions shall change. I conceive it as a possibility that there may some day be some relaxation regarding some of the present requirements of the law. That cannot come until the excessive criminality connected with disobedience to these laws shall have disappeared. Meanwhile there is required of loyal American citizens of people whose intelligence makes them naturally leaders in their communities a spirit of open-mindedness accompanied by virile action in support of their established convictions, and a disappearance of senseless vituperation of those who disagree as to the wisdom of certain phases of action. The question is not a question of honesty for personal uprightness of either the advocates of prohibition or its opponents but is a question of finding the best possible method by which there shall be brought the greatest possible safety to the general public in the United States of America in its means of protection to property, person and life.

Will Hear Other Side

The speaker was introduced by Grosvenor Ely, chairman of the programme committee for September. Mr. Ely also announced that Charles S. Wood, campaign manager of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, would be the speaker at the next week's meeting.

At the business session President Edwin A. Harris presided and C. A. Gager was the song leader. President Harris called attention to the fall concave at Lenox, Mass., the latter part of the month and urged that all members intending to attend the conclave make their reservations as soon as possible. Several communications were read by Secretary E. W. Jewett.

Among the visiting Rotarians at the meeting was Nelson Lee Mabrey, a former Norwich boy, who is now a member of the Milton, Pa., club.

There were several musical features including a quartette selection by Grosvenor Ely, Joseph C. Worth, Frank B. Murdy and Frank Aubrey; a duet number and several solos.

ARCHITECT SUES FOR FEES FOR HIS WORK

Francis DeGance, a New London architect, has brought suit for $2,500 damages against the Crocker House garage of New London, owned by Meyer and Anna Rubin, according to papers filed Wednesday with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court. He asks for foreclosure of lien on the place.

The plaintiff alleges that from Oct. 15, 1925 to July 9, 1926, he rendered, at the request of the defendant, his services as an architect, making plans and specifications and supervising the construction of the Crocker House garage, for which services there is still due the sum of $1,339.45.

The complaint also states that the Chelsea Savings bank of Norwich holds a mortgage for $25,000 and the General Finance Corp., of New London holds lien on the garage for $1,500.

SUES FOR $5,000 IN AUTO ACCIDENT DEATH

Claiming that Herman Steinberg of Springfield, Mass., died in New London the result of having "lost his equilibrium," when the car in which he was seated, driven by George W. Hannon of that city, was "accelerated" suddenly, throwing Steinberg to the ground and causing a fractured skull, Nathan Steinberg, of Springfield, administrator of the deceased's estate, has brought suit for $5,000 damages against Hannon, owner of the car. The papers, which were filed Wednesday with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court charge Hannon with negligence and carelessness on Aug. 27, 1925, when the incident occurred in Mott avenue, the late Mr. Steinberg being at the time in the employ of the defendant, who was in the business of delivering milk.

DISTRIBUTED TROUT IN BROOKS AROUND HERE

W. W. Ives, secretary of the Norwich Fish and Game association, came up Wednesday from his camp at Long Pond, met a truck from the state fish hatchery and distributed 16 cans of four-inch trout in Trading Cove, Choate and Bliss ville brooks. He was assisted by Frank Culley, C. A. Gager, Henry J. Kendall and others.

Two hundred pheasants have been distributed in the woods of Norwich, Lisbon, Bozrah, Preston, Montville, Franklin and Lebanon. The large number reported as seen this summer indicates that the hunters will have good sport when the season opens.

Norman Cloutier of this city, for whom the police have been looking ever since the night of Dec. 18, 1925 was arrested at Haverstraw, N. Y., Wednesday according to a telephone message that was received by Chief George Linton from state police. He will be brought back to this city.

Cloutier is accused of having run into and knocked down Joseph Petrone of 56 School street with an automobile and then speeding up and getting away. Petrone was getting off a trolley car near St. Joseph's cemetery, when he was struck and dragged a considerable distance, having one leg broken and suffering other severe injuries from which he was in the hospital for a long time.

Parsons of the superior court Wednesday.

It is alleged that on July 25, 1926 at 7:45 p. m., she alighted from a standing trolley car in Broad street at the intersection of Raymond street when a truck owned and operated by Kalmonowitz came by at high rate of speed as she proceeded to the easterly side walk, knocking her to the ground. To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Blotches

It is said that creams containing animal grease cause hair to grow. You run no risk of acquiring superfluous hair from using ordinary mercolized wax. There is nothing better for a discolored skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimpled skin. Get an ounce of mercolized wax at any druggist's and apply nightly like cold cream, erasing in the morning with soap and water. Soon you will observe a most remarkable transformation.

U. S. ATTITUDE ATTACKED AT WORLD COURT CONFERENCE

Sir George E. Foster, Former Finance Minister of Canada, Assailed Stand of America in the Fifth Reservation Relative to Adherence to the World Court—Sir George Advocated "Putting It Up to Washington as Man to Man and Asking the United States to Accept Equality Instead of Privilege."

OTTAWA, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Sir George E. Foster, former minister of finance, [illegible] years one of the prominent men of that country, [illegible] at the world court conference this afternoon on the Canadian participation, said the fifth reservation relative to adherence to the court was [illegible] and expected [illegible] Canadian delegation. The absence of his remarks [illegible] personally impressed the European delegates.

[illegible] a warning that [illegible] should not be influenced [illegible] toward the United States [illegible] the world he does [illegible] United States was more [illegible] democratic. [illegible] other speakers referred to the relations of [illegible] to the league of nations, that [illegible] the impression that the court [illegible] bound with the league in [illegible] of all.

The league of nations was not sent [illegible] to the Paris conference [illegible] mechanical fashioned [illegible] for ever without changes," [illegible] that it was an experiment and [illegible] sentiment of an ideal which will [illegible] to experience."

[illegible] opinion the American reservation created a law for the league [illegible] time and inequality between [illegible] nations. He objected to granting [illegible] United States a position as privileged [illegible] especially as the United States [illegible] outside the league, which other [illegible] were carrying on."

Sir George was convinced that the [illegible] States did not wish to interfere [illegible] the league and therefore, like [illegible] speakers, he favored "putting it up to Washington as man to man and asking Washington to accept [illegible] instead of privilege."

[illegible] statesmen interpreted the fourteen reservation, he continued, as meaning that both the president [illegible] the senate must agree as to [illegible] the United States and any interpretation [illegible] a question on which the United States wished to ask for an advisory opinion. If this were true [illegible] involve interminable delay [illegible] interfere with the work of the court. At all events he added, one [illegible] of the United States senate [illegible] wanted to have interpreted the reservation in this sense [illegible] of the confusion existing as to [illegible] the court now really is concerned [illegible] advisory opinions. Senor [illegible] of Uruguay, moved that a special commission be appointed to decide whether advisory opinions required unanimity vote of the council or simple majority.

If only decided for unanimity [illegible] be easy to argue to give the United States a privilege which [illegible] possessed by all the members of the council, but even if the rule supported the majority practice, Senor [illegible] believed a way could be found to meet the American reservations.

Viscount Bryce, dominion took a determined stand on the American reservations when Sir Francis Bell, of New Zealand, asserted that the United States contained an exceptional privilege and superiority of the United States for what Australia wanted was the concession of the right of veto. He was not subject to the power of veto [illegible] insisted that [illegible] it exercised [illegible] any member of the league as it would break up the league.

The council of Great Britain, Sir Cecil Hurst, supported the suggestion that the court be asked for an opinion [illegible] to the unanimity and majority [illegible] procedure. He expressed the conviction that American fairness and [illegible] business would lead the United States to enter the court on the same [illegible] as members of the league.

The Bulgarian representative insisted that the United States regarded all [illegible] opinions with a certain amount [illegible] distrust; he agreed with others, like Sir Cecil Hurst, that the United States should be treated in the same way as the members of the council, but no better.

The chief contribution to the debate [illegible] afternoon was the suggestion of Osten Unden, former minister [illegible] Sweden, that the members [illegible] the court should follow the [illegible] of the United States, and [illegible] themselves make this reservation. The Americans reserve the right to interpret their reservations [illegible] accept but with the understanding that if the American interpretation proves to be something we cannot accept we will withdraw our acceptance of the United states' adhesion to the court."

COUNCIL DELIBERATING UPON THREAT OF SPAIN

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 2.—(AP) [illegible] Spain's complaint [illegible] withdrawal from League of nations [illegible] in which she has played a [illegible] part since the foundation [illegible] organization, unless she obtained a permanent seat in the council, dominated the deliberations this morning of the commission charged with proposing changes in the council's makeup. To such an extent was [illegible] true that the adoption of the commission's report to the council had to go over until tomorrow.

So desirous were the members of the commission to alleviate the bitterness caused by the rejection of the Spanish claim, and with the object of keeping Spain if possible from following Brazil in withdrawing from the league, the commission finally decided to meet again at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to pass upon the report which will be submitted to the league council embodying the reasons why a permanent seat could not be recommended at this time for any other power than Germany.

At a routine session of the council this morning, the Spanish representative was absent, although Senor Palitve was present and participated in the decision of the reorganization commission in the evening.

The council adopted a resolution thanking John D. Rockefeller for a donation enabling the publication of an English edition of the directory of international organizations.

The reorganization commission's report recommends the allotment of three of the non-permanent seats to Latin-American states and adequate representation for the Asiatic powers thus partially satisfying China.

LATE RETURNS FROM CALIFORNIA PRIMARIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—With but 282 of California's 8,471 precincts yet to be heard from, Governor Friend W. Richardson was 12,655 votes behind Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, his chief opponent for the republican gubernatorial nomination in Tuesday's primary election, Young's candidacy was vigorously supported by Senator Hiram Johnson, who stumped the state against Richardson and urged a "return to progressive government in California."

The other candidate supported by Hiram Johnson—Robert M. Clarke, anti-world court candidate for the republican senatorial nomination— met overwhelming defeat at the hands of Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Coolidge republican.

Young's vote in the gubernatorial contest stood 321,193 as against Richardson's 308,538 in 7,006 precincts. The Shortridge vote in 7,655 precincts was 317,155 as against Clarke's 228,353 and the 119,760 votes polled by Representative Walter Lineberger, also an opponent of the world court and running on a dry platform with Anti-Saloon league endorsement.

In the democratic gubernatorial and senatorial contests, which attracted wide attention because they were regarded as a preliminary skirmish of the expected battle between Governor Al Smith and William G. McAdoo for the democratic presidential nomination in 1928 results still were in doubt. In 7,060 precincts Justus Wardell, Senator McAdoo candidate was leading Earl Alexander Johnson, anti-Tammany candidate by less than 2,000 votes after many hours of scrutinizing in the tabulations. RESPITE WAS GRANTED MURDERER MADEIROS

BOSTON Sept. 2.—(AP)—Celestino F. Madeiros, convicted murderer of an aged bank cashier, was removed from the death house of the state prison in Charlestown tonight, in compliance with respite granted by the governor's council today in order that he might be able to testify for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti in case their seventh petition for a new trial is granted.

Madeiros who was sentenced to be electrocuted during the week of Sept. 3, is alleged to have made a confession which involves him in the South Braintree murders of which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted six years ago. The confession is alleged to have absolved Sacco and Vanzetti from any connection with the crimes.

Gov. Fuller recommended the Madeiros respite which postponed the electrocution until Oct. 27, after conferring yesterday with the attorney general and Judge Webster Thayer, who tried the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Judge Thayer is expected to hear the motion for a new trial in this case, which has been the occasion of radical demonstrations in Europe and South America on Sept. 12.

Madeiros, who is said by Warden William Hendry to have been one of the quietest prisoners ever confined in the death house, received the news of his respite without emotion. "All right. Thanks," was all he said when the warden told him of it.

He was sentenced after being twice convicted of the murder of James E. Carpenter, who was killed during an attempted holdup of the Wrentham National bank in Wrentham.

THREE MURDERERS EXECUTED IN THE OHIO PENITENTIARY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Three men were to be put to death for murder in the Ohio penitentiary here tonight.

They were John Bryant, negro, and Richard Rhoades and John Hedrick, white, all of Pomroy, convicted for the murder March 15, of James McCumber.

Bryant, according to the story of the other two, hired them to kill McCumber because he feared the latter's knowledge of bootlegging affairs.

The two said they split $40 for the crime.

It is the first triple execution in Ohio.

The only persons permitted to see the men today were their relatives. Last minute pleas to Governor Vic Donahey were useless. He turned the affair over to the state board of clemency for recommendation and the latter today reported against mercy.

"In the absence of favorable word from the trial judge, prosecuting attorney, members of the jury or anyone else, we see no reason why the orderly processes of the law should be disturbed," said the clemency board.

The governor concurred in the report. Mrs. Rhoades, mother of the second of the two, collapsed at the gates of the prison after visiting her son.

McCumber's body was placed in an abandoned cistern near Pomeroy, after Hedrick and Rhoades had attacked him in his home and killed him.

SUPREME COURT IS TO RULE ON ZONING LAWS

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The constitutionality in Connecticut of zoning laws and ordinances which restrict properties in designated neighborhoods to specially specified types of buildings and what they may be used for, will be ruled upon definitely by the supreme court of the state, it is expected in the case of Thomas Aston against the town of Stratford.

Aston, denied a permit to erect a gasoline station on his Raven terrace land in Stratford, has filed in superior court through his counsel, Attorney George Finkelstone, notice of his intention to carry an appeal to the supreme court from the decision of Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin, handed down this week, in which Stratford's zoning ordinance is held constitutional and the building inspector declared to have been acting within the scope of his powers in refusing the permit. Attorney Raymond Baldwin, of the firm of Pullman and Comley, represents the town of Stratford.

There is no opinion of the supreme court bearing directly upon zoning in Connecticut although rules it established in 1920 in a building line case are applicable to the principle of zoning.

Postal Robbery Loot Recovered

Thieves in Custody and All But $500 of Stolen $200,000 Has Been Found.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 2—(AP)—Complete round-up of all those implicated in the $200,000 postal robbery of a Union Pacific train near Rocks Springs, Wyo., Aug. 12, with the recovery of all but about $500 of the loot was announced here this afternoon by A. A. Imus, post office inspector of Denver, who has been working on the case "since a little before it happened."

Those under arrest are Jake Maddigan, railway mail clerk on run between Cheyenne and Green River; W. F. (Bill) Bradford, 32; Jack Kearns and Paul Sourlis, all of Salt Lake City, and Ted Theodore, pool room keeper, Rock Springs, Wyo.

According to Imus, it was "an outside job with inside help."

Postal Inspector A. A. Imus of Denver, who recovered the loot buried in a chicken house 14 miles southeast of this city, today said that is was discrepancies in the stories told by Madigan that first drew suspicion to him, in spite of the fact that he was found bound in the mail car.

Madigan confessed today at Denver, H. B. Mundelle, post office inspector in charge of the Denver division said. Madigan, who had been in the railway mail service four years, entered the conspiracy, according to Mr. Mundelle, without the knowledge of A. J. Miller, the other clerk in the car.

"The whole thing was hatched in the pool hall of Ted Theodore at Rock Springs, where the members of the gang met," said Mundelle. "According to the arrangements, Madigan was to offer no resistance when Bill Bradford, one of the leaders, entered the car. Miller and Madigan were bound and Bradford left the mail sacks out at a point five miles east of Rock Springs. They were carried from there to a point about 300 yards distant.

"Dissension within the ranks of the gang has arisen since, and when Bradford took inspectors to the scene of the loot at 2 o'clock this morning it was found that the sacks had been transferred from the place of original burial and without the knowledge of other involved."

FOUR ATLANTA BANK MEN INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 2.—(AP)—W. B. Manley, president of the defunct Bankers' Trust company of Atlanta and four other officials of the institution whose failure caused the closing of 83 small banks in Georgia and Florida today were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Shortly before this, United States District Judge Sibley appointed Mrs. Valerie Rankin Manley guardian for them for her husband and filed her consent to his being adjudged bankrupt and a receiver appointed for his assets.

The five bank officials were indicted in Fulton superior court on Tuesday on bail counts and yesterday made a total of $160,000 bonds for their appearance. Bond had not been fixed on the federal charges tonight and no time had been set for their appearance in court.

The indictment returned today carried 20 counts, the first of which charges a scheme to defraud persons, banks, trust companies and corporations through inducing them by means of letters to entrust funds to the Bankers' Trust company of Atlanta. It is alleged that a depositors' guaranty fund was created and each bank that wanted to participate in it was required to pay $2,702.70. The fund was to be controlled by a board of five trustees and was to be used to pay depositors the amount stockholders would be liable for in the event a bank failed.

It is charged that fraud was committed by promises to keep the depositors guaranty fund in cash separate from other assets.

"A further part of the scheme to defraud," says the indictment, "was through the use and control of corporations by the defendants officers and agents of the Bankers' Trust company."

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2—(AP)—The Manville strike was settled late this afternoon at a conference in the state house between Governor Aram J. FORMER TAX COLLECTOR OF ENFIELD SHORT $13,908

THOMPSONVILLE, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Auditors who have been engaged for several weeks on the books of Clark L. Hamilton, former tax collector of the town of Enfield, reported today to Selectman James T. Murray that the shortage in the collector's accounts for the years 1923, 1924 and 1925 amounts to $13,908.84. The auditors are to make a complete audit of the collector's accounts since 1912, when Mr. Hamilton first assumed office and expect to file a complete report about September 20.

A statement issued by Attorney J. Sullivan, Jr., counsel for the town of Enfield, in connection with the preliminary report of the auditors says that "the investigation of years prior to 1923 indicates that the shortage will be very large."

The auditors' report certifies a deficit of $3,004.21 in 1925, $2,224.01 in 1924 and $7,040.67 in 1923. The amount of uncollected taxes for the same three years, as certified by the auditors, is $25,584.26.

Mr. Hamilton surrendered his books to the town authorities about the middle of June following an investigation into the conduct of his office. He was at once arrested on an embezzlement charge and in bonds of $25,000 for his appearance at the September term of superior court at Hartford.

BINGHAM ON IMPORTANCE OF COMMERCIAL AVIATION

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Commercial aviation must be made to aid national defense, was emphasized by U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut here tonight, in an address before the Society of Automotive Engineers. He said that a body of trained pilots and mechanics, aeronautical engineers and airplane builders operated in peace times would be an essential nucleus in time of national emergency.

"But if pacifists are unwilling to have a sufficient number of America's boys trained as military and naval pilots," the senator said, "we should soon be without a proper reserve force. If the general public is unwilling to support a commercial aviation then we shall lack the essentials of all progress. We shall find our gas tanks filled with water. Water is cheaper but it doesn't make the car go. Gas is more expensive but it is indispensable. Aviation is expensive, it is also indispensable. Aviation costs money, but it is worth the expense. To especially in this regard it is to be penny-wise and pound foolish."

The first afternoon session was given over to a discussion of "other people' daughters," or the Big Sister work. Mrs. George Newton, of Hartford, presided and the speakers included Miss Larned, of Putnam, Mrs. Joseph Woods, of New Britain, Mrs. Horan of Danbury, and Mrs. John Riley of Willimantic.

COOLIDGE VISITS GROUPS OF INVALID VETERANS

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—President Coolidge motored approximately 100 miles this afternoon to visit two groups of invalid veterans of the World war who are inmates of Adirondack hospitals.

Driving first to the United Veterans Bureau hospital at Tupper Lake, more than 50 miles from White Pine camp, he was received by the hospital staff and many of the patients. He then proceeded by automobile to Moody, 75 miles from his first stop, where he paid a call at the American Legion convalescent camp. The schedule was planned so that Mr. Coolidge could return home by dinner time.

Luncheon guests at the summer white house today were Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, and Senator and Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett of Massachusetts. The latter are spending a vacation at the summer camp of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid on Upper Regis Lake, not far from Paul Smiths.

WU PEI-FU IS A PRISONER ABOARD CHINESE WARSHIP

LONDON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Shanghai correspondent of the Westminster Gazette says it is officially reported from Peking that Wu Pei-Fu, the Chihli leader, has been deposed from his command by his own fellowers and now is virtually a prisoner aboard a Chinese warship on the Yangtse river. General Chin Yun Ao is reported to have been made commander-in-chief of the northern troops replacing Wu Pei-Fu.

ABD-EL-KRIM HAS STARTED ON JOURNEY INTO EXILE

MARSEILLES, France, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Abd-El-Krim, the fallen pretender to the throne of Morocco, started on the first step of his long journey into exile this afternoon.

As the French mail ship, Admiral Pierre sailed away from the French coast, the Riffian chieftain could be seen through glasses standing on the after-deck with his children, gazing at the receding land. His expression seemed to mean that he would have liked to have seen more of his country, so noted for its delights and pleasures, than what he could see slightly skirting the coast on his way to a remote and mysterious land. The children with his relatives and attendants, some 24 in all are to be exiled on the Isle of Reunion in the Indian ocean.

The feeling on Marseilles regarding the defeated leader of the Riffian rebels seems to be more sympathetic than heretofore. The severe isolation in which the government held its captive may account in part for the changed feeling but the man in the street asked to give a reason says, "Others who did vastly greater harm to France have been forgiven. Why not Krim?"

The three children of the Moroccan leader were paid to be seen the last two days playing on Friout island their father's prison. That sight may also have helped to mellow French feeling.

At the last moment Abd-El-Krim left with the official interpreter his message, for the public:

"I intend to consecrate the long hours of leisure that I will have out yonder to useful occupations and hope by my attitude to conquer the esteem of France."

ANOTHER KILLING IN THE CHICAGO ALCOHOL GANG FEUD

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The body of a young man who had been knocked on the head, choked to death and then burned, believed by the police possibly to be the eighth victim of the relentless Chicago Heights alcohol gang feud, was found on a disused wagon road in a deserted section of Chicago Heights today.

The victim was about 21 years old and small. When the body was found by the police, who had been informed of its presence by a woman who refused to give her name, it had a rope about the neck and most of the clothing had been burned off. A can which had contained alcohol was found nearby.

The face had not been marred, however, as was done in the first of three such slayings reported two years ago in that instance the victim's hands and feet had been severed and an attempt made to remove all possible traces for identification by severing the features.

The second "torture victim," was found recently beaten and trussed with wire in a cistern. He was identified to be a victim of the incessant liquor runner-gangsters warfare which in the last three years has cost more than 100 lives in Chicago and vicinity.

"Today's victim probably was a Chicago bootlegger taken for a ride," said Ben Cornilsen, chief of police of Chicago Heights.

ELKS' BIG COUNTRY FAIR GETS A TREMENDOUS START

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 2.—The Elks' country fair, under the auspices of Willimantic lodge, No. 1211, got under way this evening with an official send-off, by Lieut.-Governor J. Edwin Brainard of Stamford, thousands being assembled. The brief exercises attending the opening followed a concert by the Elks' band. Ex-Mayor Charles A. Gates voiced the welcome of lodge 1211 to the patrons of the fair and introduced the state's representative.

Lieut.-Gov. Brainard's remarks were complimentary to the cooperative spirit which brought about the success of B. P. O. E. affairs in the past, ensured the success of the present one and resulted in the building of the new Elks' home, which stands in orderly beauty on a knoll at Elks' park. He extended greetings of the state, as representative of the governor. Accompanying Lieut.-Gov. Brainard were Raymond E. Gates, state agent; Richard W. Ellis of Stafford, deputy state agent, and Judge Raymond A. Johnson of South Manchester. Visitors were received by a reception committee comprising Sheriff Charles A. Gates, Valentine L. Murphy, general chairman of the fair, and J. Francis Keon.

Throughout the evening every booth and stand on the grounds was doing a rushing business. Everything bore evidence of the bigger and better model on which the fair was undertaken this year. William B. Sweeney stated that the exhibits are the most varied and numerous of any year yet. The poultry exhibit is breaking all records, with over 1,000 entries and several unusual features, including rare specimens of water fowl. This department is in care of J. B. Cavanaugh. In the exhibit of flowers are to be found two outstanding displays, by Connecticut Agricultural college and William A. Dawson. Feature farm product exhibits are by Shetucker Grange of Scotland and Echo Grange of Mansfield. The paramount attraction of vaudeville for the evening was a daring balloon act as well as several other high-class showings on the outdoor stage.

CLEANING KITCHEN STOVE, WOMAN FATALLY BURNED

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 2—Severely burned when naptha which she was using to clean her kitchen stove, exploded, Mrs. Sophie Nosal, 44, of the Warner district, South Windham, died at St. Joseph's hospital here about ten o'clock Thursday forenoon. The accident happened Wednesday afternoon and the only witness was Mrs. Nosal's twelve year old son, Anthony. The boy succeeded in extinguishing the flames that enveloped his mother with water, but not before practically all her clothing had been burned off. The boy ran to the home of George W. Wells where his brother John, sixteen, was employed. He told him what had happened and Dr. C. E. Jenkins was summoned, gave the woman first aid and then took her to the hospital in an automobile. Little hope was held out for her recovery. The death of the mother is tragic for the two young boys. Their father died about four years ago and Mrs. Nosal had conducted the farm since that time. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason who gave permission for its removal to an undertaker.

CITY'S WATER SUPPLY KEEPS GETTING LOWER

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 2.—The steam pumps at the municipal pumping station at Mansfield Pond have been in use considerably during the past month, due to low water in the pond from which is fed the storage reservoir on Hosmer Mountain. Local members of the bar met with State Attorney Howard C. Bradford, of Putnam, at the office of Attorney Harry S. Gaucher here Thursday forenoon to consult in regard to business to be taken up at the criminal term of the Windham county superior court which opens here September 7. Only two of about ten local defendants were represented by counsel and it is expected that all of the cases will come to trial. It is understood that Attorney William A. King of this city will assist State Attorney Bradford on some of the cases during the term, due to the nature and length of the docket.

ALMSHOUSES SHOULD BE MADE MORE HABITABLE

HARTFORD, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Repairs to almshouses in Portland and Southington, with the aim of making these institutions more habitable, were recommended to the state department of public welfare by Mrs. Ruth Roberts Mix, field agent, at a meeting today. The recommendations will be forwarded to the superintendents by order of the department.

The Southington almshouse was found badly in need of general repairs, Mrs. Mix reporting in detail changes necessary for the comfort of the inmates. At the Portland institution, she found the greatest need to be the addition of a hospital room, or suitable place for the sick, so that they might, in some degree at least, be segregated from the well. Some repairs are being made, including installation of electric lights, which the field agent says will add to the comfort of people at the home.

Six other almshouses were inspected by Mrs. Mix during August, at Enfield, Suffield, Manchester, Hamden, Cheshire and Greenwich. Conditions in general at each were found good, and aside from minor improvements she made no special recommendations.

RELICS OF FRONTIER DAYS DOT SOUTH WEST

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The south western states, which half a century ago still were frontiers of the west, now show modern fronts flecked with carefully preserved memories of the past.

Kansas extends to the automobile tourist the Santa Fe trail, 550 of whose 775 miles lie in that state, bordered with scenic wonders and dating from prehistoric times. This old trail used by the Indians was marked in 1825 by order of President Monroe.

Historic Kansas Spots

Bare stone walls, without roof or floor, now stand in Fort Riley in memory of a government that tamed the outlaws of the prairies. This building was the seat of territorial authority from 1855 until Kansas was admitted as a state in 1861. Medicine lodge, noted as the spot where the treaty with the Kiowa Indians was signed in 1867, also contains the home of Carrie Nation, prohibition leader.

In southern and western Missouri lie the Ozarks. In this section lie the spots described by Harold Bell Wright and the cabins of many of the originals of the characters in "The Shepherd of the Hills."

The Land of Springs

Mammoth Springs, said to be the largest in the world, is just over the Arkansas border in the Ozarks. The carbonic water registers 58 degrees the year round.

Hot Springs are the best known of the other Arkansas Springs, their popularity dating from 1831 when Hot Springs National park was created.

Indians And Oil

Oklahoma now is devoted to farming, with oil fields scattered here and there, and Indian reservations at frequent intervals. These reservations in the northern part of the state include those of the five civilized tribes.

Travelling south into Texas the tourist passes great cattle ranges and approaches numerous sites made famous by the Mexican wars.

Mexican War Reminders

San Antonio contains the Alamo where Santa Anna's soldiers massacred an American force in the old church. Other missions with more peaceful histories which ante-date those in California still stand in this district. Near San Antonio also is the largest army post in the United States, and at Kelly and Brooks field half the air training of the army is done.

A later chapter in the Mexican war was written at San Jacinto battlefield, near Houston, where Santa Anna was routed and captured in 1836 by General Sam Houston with 750 men.

Palo Duro Canon in the Panhandle is the greatest scenic attraction of the state. Appearing unexpectedly in the bald prairie it extends for 100 miles.

SELLS CATTLE, NOW IS KANSAS "WHEAT QUEEN"

SUBLETTE, Kans., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Formerly known as the "cattle queen," Mrs. Ida Watins now has the title of "wheat queen."

No woman—and few men—planted more acres of wheat or harvested a larger crop than did Mrs. Watins this year. She owns 1,950 acres of good Kansas land and it is virtually all planted to wheat. She has not had time to figure the total yield, but 50,000 bushels worth at least $60,000 is a conservative estimate.

When Mrs. Watins' husband died in 1902 he left her a large cattle ranch. For eight years she managed it, buying, breeding, feeding and selling in competition with her men neighbors. Then she heard of the possibilities of south-western Kansas land and slowly built up a wheat farm, selling out the cattle business as she added to her wheat land holdings.

Charles Dansereau and Walter Knowles, long term prisoners who escaped from the state prison at Wethersfield the morning of August 7, may face another prison term as a result of action taken by the board of prison directors.

THINNESS MEANS SICKNESS

Add the Flesh You Want This New Way

It's not natural to be thin. If you are scrawny and underweight, something is wrong. You are not enjoying 100 per cent health. And what's more, if you don't look to it, you are almost sure to get worse.

If you are looking for real help to restore Nature's depleted nerve force and vital power, to add weight, to tone up digestion and overcome body poisoning constipation, you will do well to see that you get into your system the vital food elements such as vitamines, the organic plant salts of phosphorous, iron, lime, etc., as they are found in time-tried Cod Liver Extract.

To try to take them in drug form is worse than useless for they cannot be absorbed into the body unless they are as Nature made them in fresh vegetables and Cod Livers. Everybody knows there is no better body builder than Cod Liver Extract. But everybody cannot take this wonderful natural tonic because of its fishy taste and odor.

Now, however, Science has removed all the objection by finding the way to concentrate the vital elements necessary to healthy body-building into pleasant, sugar-coated tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

They contain, along with other recognized up-building ingredients, the vital parts of Cod Livers. Their results in thousands of cases have been remarkable. They have added 15 to 20 pounds of solid healthy flesh within 30 days, they have built up frail, puny children to normal weight and sturdy strength. They provide the run-down system with just the help it needs and in just the form that the digestive organs can easily assimilate.

In fact, the results have been so remarkable that you can now buy McCoy's Tablets at Lee & Osgood Co., or your favorite druggist anywhere with a specific guarantee that if after 30 days' use you have not added at least 5 pounds of solid, healthy flesh, your money is to be refunded instantly.

Don't be thin and sick any longer. Begin using McCoy's Tablets today and start yourself on the road to sound health, normal weight and steady nerves.

"Regular" Gets Cummins' Seat In Senate

David Wallace Stewart, Sioux City Attorney, and a top-sergeant in the Marines during the World War, who has been selected by the Republicans of Iowa to fill the seat in the Senate vacated by the death of Senator Albert B. Cummins. Stewart's selection is seen as a tribute to the dead statesman and a rebuke to Smith W. Brookhart, who defeated Cummins in the recent primaries.

Look First

The only quick-cooking oats with this flavor is "Quick Quaker"

FLAVOR is the all-important point in food. In oats it is probably more important than in any other.

That is why people who once taste the toasty richness of Quaker Oats are spoiled thereafter for all others.

Quaker flavor is unique, toasty and delightful. No other oats offers it to you. Some 50 years were spent perfecting it.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, and vitamines and this "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently balanced ration.

For your own sake, say "Quaker" when buying oats. Two kinds now at groceries: Quick Quaker (cooks in 3 to 5 minutes) and Quaker Oats as always.

ATTAWAUGAN MILLS SALE PUTS PUNCH IN PUBLIC SPIRIT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 3—

The effect of the announcement of the purchase of the Attawaugan company properties at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville by Powdrell and Alexander, Inc., was electric in Killingly. It is taken by the general public as emphasizing that New England is not through as a great textile manufacturing area, and that everything pertaining to the cotton mill business is not going to the dogs, hard as the going has been for these plants the past two years.

The closing of the Attawaugan company's mills was a severe blow to this community and cast the shadows hanging over the cotton mill business. People living in the villages where the Attawaugan company's mills are located were depressed and disheartened by the adversity. All of that has been changed to joyousness and confidence in the future, through the big deal completed Wednesday and the forecast of a busy fall and winter in the mills. All of Killingly has reacted similarly and there was more business confidence in town Thursday than has been the case for many a day, though Killingly has been more fortunate, on the whole, than a great many southern New England towns which depend entirely on their textile plants for their general prosperity.

The Powdrell and Alexander purchase has acted like a stimulant on the people of the town, and on other business affairs, all linked together in personal interests and varied relations and associations. It is not improbable that the Powdrell and Alexander interests in the mills they have taken over in the villages in the southern section of the town will be a factor of from $400,000 to $500,000 in their value in the next few months, and a factor worth any town's having.

LORIMER H. DIXON BUSY IN WATERVILLE, MAINE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 2—Up in Waterville, Maine, where he has been paying teller of the Thomas National bank several years, Lorimer H. Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Dixon, of Westfield street, is making a place for himself in the administrative life of the city.

At present he is filling the important office of city assessor and in addition is a member of the finance committee of the municipal council. A system has been installed whereby Mr. Dixon is able at any moment to tell just how outstanding bills the city has and how much money there is to its credit.

Mr. Dixon was born in Danielson, June 1, 1905. He attended the grammar and high schools here and later entered Brown university. In September, 1925, he entered the 453d aero squadron and was stationed at Orly, France, for over a year. He returned to the United States on June 30th, and was honorably discharged from the service the following month. Returning to Danielson he resumed the employ of the Windham National bank. He was transferred in 1926 and the following year to his present work at the bank in Waterville. Since he has since remained.

He is a member of the American Legion post at Waterville and was its first commander for two years. He is a member of the Lions club, a director of the Waterville Chamber of Commerce and a Mason.

Do not rub your eyes and imagine things if a trolley car is going off the track at any point between Danielson and Dayville. There is no cause for alarm on there—a car is not to be engaged in hauling freight on one of the lines between Killingly and Dayville. Cars for hauling coal cars for the Powdrell and Alexander mills on a trolley car in this section is something of a novelty. The service was abandoned on Dec. 30 of last year for a period of seven months by the Connecticut Power company and many of a trolley car has been among the missing commodities. The fact that the Powdrell and Alexander mills on the Quinebaug river in Danielson and Pineville has given the impression that the entire service was permanently out of service, which is not the fact, though it undoubtedly will be in the not distant future.

Rain came Thursday to spoil in some cases the plans of store forces of Danielson having the last weekly half-holiday of the present summer season. However, the rain caused a general exodus at the noon hour and no doubt to a degree influenced closing of stores where there was doubt Wednesday that a half-holiday would be taken this week. Next week will be during labor day, which will be a holiday in Danielson. Then the routine of steady work again will be the force, and there will be much settling over that.

There is the essence of the spirit of Old Home day in the announcements of the committee in charge of South Killingly's annual event of the kind. The word Labor day is sending out the announcement says. "Of course we all know what South Killingly Old Home day is like. One thing it means is an opportunity to see old friends and talk over old pranks and the cares of the old-time days, and the joys, the successes and the sorrows of the years between."

This season, the state highway department is doing a service that wins special approbation of the thousands of motorists that use the highways, this being the filling in of holes worn in highway surfaces by the heavy traffic of the weeks that have elapsed since the roads were oiled in the spring. It is follow-up work that is being done in an efficient manner and wins the appreciation of many a driver who would like to thank the department if he were in a position to do so.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Terwilliger and Arthur Terwilliger have been visiting on Long Island this week.

At Camp Woodstock, the tri-county summer camp at Black Pond in the town of Woodstock, there is to be a camp from grown-ups, opening on Saturday of this week and continuing until the following Saturday. Boating, swimming, fishing and other diversions will keep the campers interested and they will have the services of the same staff that has been on duty there during the period of boys and girls' camps.

Though there is an ample supply of coal on hand for Danielson for the coming cold weather, cord wood prices remain about the same as have prevailed for the past two or three years.

Prisoners held on criminal charges at the county jail, Brooklyn, will be taken over to Willimantic next Tuesday, at the opening of the September term of the superior court, and put to plea. The cases later will be assigned for trial where a trial is necessary.

Rev. William S. Beard, New York, whose father was at one time pastor of the First Congregational church at South Killingly, is to preach at next Sunday evening's service in this historic edifice, erected in the 18th century.

The coming week will bring the opening of St. James' school for another year. It is anticipated that the registration of pupils will be in the neighborhood of 500.

Several hundred houses are to be built by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at Cedartown, Ga., where the big corporation, with a subsidiary in this town, is developing a big textile unit.

It was indicated Thursday that there will be several motor parties of local sportsmen leaving here Saturday morning to attend the outing of the Connecticut Fish and Game clubs at Lake Compounce.

At Wauregan the bridge over the Quinebaug river on the Wauregan-Brooklyn state highway is closed, that the present bridge may be taken out and a new re-enforced concete one constructed. A new and temporary bridge has been built across the river just north of the old bridge, so traffic is moving without interruption.

During the coming week, republicans of Killingly will hold their caucus to nominate candidates for town offices. Advance announcements would indicate that there may be some competition for nominations for selectmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pluse of Carter street have been entertaining this week Mrs. Wilton McCaughern and daughter, Elizabeth, and Mrs. Edith Ewen and daughter, Gertrude, all of Stamford.

Fro moutlying sections reports came in Thursday telling of temperatures that ran down as low as 38 degrees on September morn, the coldest for the date in this section in many years.

It does not take long for news to travel. An advance guard of people who want work appeared in town Thursday on the heels of the announcement that the mills at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pineville are about to resume operations.

It is of general Windham county interest that musicians who play for commercial enterprises have taken steps to form themselves into an organization that will make them union players.

The anti-Freeman movement that is getting attention in several eastern Connecticut towns will have little effect in diverting support in Killingly from Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London. In this town the propaganda sounds too much like "give someone else the job," without adequate reason therefor.

"King" George Jacques of East Killingly, now in his 76th year, is rounding out another season of making shore dinners for anywhere from 40 to 500 people, and is going as strong as ever. A sturdy bit of New England oak, if one should ask about it.

Many tons of Brussels sprouts are coming to maturity on farms of Killingly, Plainfield and adjoining towns and will bring a big revenue to their producers within the next few weeks. There is a special crop that has brought thousands to dollars to Finnish and Polish farmers every fall for the past few years. It is chiefly marketed in New England cities and New York.

So insistent is the demand for speed in completing the additions to Killingly high school that roofers worked all day in the rain on the south addition Thursday.

STINNES' DAUGHTER WINS LONG AUTO RACE

BERLIN, Sept. 2—(AP)—Clairenor Stinnes, 29-year old daughter of the late Hugo Stinnes, is turning her energies to sports now that she has been deprived of a business career by the collapse of the far-flung Stinnes fortune.

Driving her own sport racer, Fraulein Stinnes recently won the South-German reliability automobile tour of 500 miles against 60 men and women competitors. She is the foremost woman automobile driver in Germany.

The story is told of how her father entrusted her at an early age with a share of the management of his industries. Sent to South America to reorganize a branch office, she amazed her father by firing a half-dozen executives. She directed the South American branch until new executives arrived from home. Like her three brothers and a younger sister, her middle name is Hugo.

TONIGHT'S CITY MEETING

It was only a few weeks ago that the citizens of Norwich met in an overflow city meeting and made appropriations for the coming year. There were certain changes which the citizens ordered in connection with the appropriations, and there were certain appropriations sought which they refused to sanction, the result being the vote to raise by taxation a sum that called for a 24 mill tax.

Now in less than three months after that meeting a special city meeting is called for the purpose of acting upon the petition of those citizens who seek the appropriation of $10,000 for the laying of concrete pavement between and alongside the rails in West Thames street, one of the items that was voted down at the annual meeting, and in addition to replace the sums in the police and fire departments which were removed therefrom by the citizens in annual meeting, and which the mayor says must be voted or a deficit will be reported.

The citizens of Norwich are thus called upon to determine whether the additional appropriation of $26,600 shall be voted at this time, and therefore whether they are ready to reverse their decision of June 15. The amount is well over an additional mill in taxation, but the plan is to borrow the money, increase the floating indebtedness and swell the interest account.

The decision at the special city meeting tonight rests with the citizens. The meeting is one which should be favored with a large attendance. The matter should not be left to a few whatever the action may be. If after the reasons for the additional appropriations have been set forth and discussed they are regarded as warranted at this time, they should be voted, but whatever the action may be it should be taken by a representative gathering of the citizens and not by a handful.

NEED OF REGISTRATION

Occasionally the immigration authorities discover those who are engaged in the profitable business of smuggling aliens into this country and make it a point to use them as an example through the imposition of stiff penalties for the discouragement of others. The many who are willing to pay the price, the seeming good chances of getting across the borders and the lure of the fee cause many to overcome the possibility of getting caught.

Four Swiss have just been arrested charged with the smuggling of countrymen into the United States, their plan being to exact $550 from each person and to bring them to New Haven by boat. How many they have landed is not known but they are believed to have been at it for years and had apparently gotten the impression that the scheme was so perfect as to defy detection.

The three who are accused in a similar scheme along the open border are responsible for smuggling in a much greater number seems highly probable. It requires less time and the chances are better in such points, while those who are smuggled know that as long as they behave themselves and avoid being obliged to show how they got into the country, there is little chance of being molested.

Almost every case of alien smuggling directs attention to the need which exists for the registration of aliens. If they were obliged to register there would not be that chance of entering by their method of entrance as is now the case and there would be a much greater fear of prosecution and deportation under the requirements of registration than there is now when smuggling prevails and few are deported because of illegal entry.

The bootlegger aliens would be far less eager to give up $550 to be landed in this country if they knew that within a few months they would be obliged to register and show their credentials or be deported. They would hesitate about such a throwing away of their hard earned money, the smugglers would experience more trouble in stirring up business and there would be a greater respect for the immigration laws. Registration would put a check upon the encouragement which now exists for alien smuggling.

FIGHTING OPIUM

The fight against opium has been waged for many years. It hasn't as yet reached its goal, but it is making progress, howevermuch it may seem that it is at times proceeding only at a snail-like pace.

Plans are already being formulated for a further onslaught upon the suppression of opium smoking in the far East and at the conference of the interparliamentary union at Paris next year, the humanitarian committee had approved a resolution urging the powers to definitely act in such a manner.

Without a doubt there was justification for the demand that there be a time limit set for the suppression of opium smoking in the far eastern possessions, and also for the effect that was made to have the production of opium restricted to such quantities as are needed for scientific and medicinal purposes.

Various complications are raised by such plans because of the fact that powers which are expected to act, and which might act, were the condition involved one that concerned the home governments rather than their dependencies, are obliged to give attention to the position their possessions occupy in regard thereto.

The idea of suppressing the smoking or the production within 15 years is an ambitious one. Considering what has been done in the way of demoralization of humanity through the use of the habit forming drugs and there's no doubt about the need of establishing effective restrictions, and yet such a radical change is found to be confronted with sizeable difficulties.

In view of what has happened in the past it would not occasion surprise if we could bridge the time to 15 years hence, to learn that in 1942 opium smoking was still going on in the far east. But good causes are not won by faint effort. If suppression of smoking or production is going to be obtained there must be a constant drive in that direction, a persistent educational campaign and determined endeavors to overcome the opposition. That work is directed along such channels is indicated by the fact that the goal is set at 15 years instead of 50.

CALIFORNIA AND JOHNSON

When Hiram Johnson, senator from California, was beaten for the republican presidential nomination he sulked, and he has been moody and offish ever since. He has endeavored to shoot his venom at the administration every time he got a chance, and the result is that his prestige has seriously declined. He has gone backward instead of ahead and that is true at home as throughout the country.

This is effectively disclosed in the primary campaign that has just been concluded in California. Senator Johnson has two more years to serve so that he did come up for nomination, but his colleague did, and Senator Johnson has entered into this campaign for the avowed purpose of preventing the return of Senator Shortridge, an administration supporter and a senator who voted for adherence to the world court.

That was not the only contest in the California primary, but even though Senator Johnson sought to arouse the animosities of the people in northern and southern California by picking a candidate to oppose Senator Shortridge from the southern part of the state he failed completely in his expected success.

Senator Shortridge is the choice of the republicans to succeed himself. That means an endorsement of his attitude toward the administration and a rebuke to Senator Johnson for the tactics which he has employed in opposing the administration. The result shows that the senior senator is not the political power that he once was, in his own state. His prestige may not have disappeared but it is a long distance in the rear of what it used to be, and there is no one to blame for it except Hiram Johnson himself. California may not be ready to throw him overboard but he must realize the heller how fast it is coming from representing the sentiment of the republicans of California. He has entered so conspicuously into the Shortridge campaign that he cannot escape the effects of his failure.

EASY FOR THE CRIMINALS

When Leopold and Loeb were given sentences of 99 years for the kidnapping and life for the murder of Robert Franks in Chicago, it was believed that they had unjustly escaped capital punishment. It was a crime that called for no leniency, and by statement of the trial judge no leniency is expected to be extended. And yet the newly appointed supervisor of pardons and paroles, H. C. Clabaugh, has figured it out that it is possible for them to get their freedom in 1935.

According to the law of Illinois the young men would be eligible to parole after 20 years and that period could be cut to less than 13 years for good behavior. This would be under the life sentence, but under the 99 year sentence, both sentences being served concurrently, it would be 33 years before they would get out.

Just now it could be expected that there would be a great hue and cry raised against paroling such criminals. The authorities and the court would offer objection, but when they are not in a position to offer advice one way or another what can be expected?

It doesn't appear that there is any effort being made to have parole extended, even in 1935, but its possibility is being set forth, and in connection therewith it cannot be overlooked what the effect of such cases and such a disposition of them is bound to have upon the effort to abolish capital punishment.

To think that through a technicality the pardoning power of a governor or the action of a parole board which can be subjected to all kinds of influences, it is possible to upset justice should serve to call the attention of Illinois and other states to the weakness that exists in criminal laws which are supposed to protect the public.

Now it is the German flag that has been raised over the English channel, showing that fast and powerful swimmers are not all in America.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

"It's very handsome, old solid mahogany, a quaint pattern, and only $100," said Betty, who was telling me about a set of bedroom furniture that her friend Sara Frances James wished to sell. "You see she is going to move to New York and she is anxious to dispose of all the things in her apartment. I was tempted to buy it myself, but Bob thinks it foolish to get anything more for our little house, which is full to bursting already. If we had a bigger place, I wouldn't hesitate, for it's certainly a wonderful bargain."

"Do you know, Betty, I believe I'll buy it just on your say so. I ought to have a nice suite in my room, and I don't suppose I'll ever have a better chance to get one," I remarked, and Betty looked very much interested.

"Do you really mean it, Lucile?" she asked. "It certainly would be lovely for you, and I know that Sara Frances would be delighted to have you have it, and it would be a great convenience for her to sell it promptly. She offered it to me on monthly payments of $25 and I'm sure she would accept the same from you."

"That's splendid, for it would be a little hard for me to pay the hundred all at once, as I don't feel like asking father for it. I'm a trifle impecunious right now," I laughed, "and it would be a great help, Betty dear, if you would lend me the twenty-five for the first payment. I haven't even that in hand, and of course I shouldn't wish to keep Miss James waiting. You wouldn't mind, would you, dear?"

"Why n-o, I guess not," replied Betty, grudgingly, I fancied. I often wonder why, ever since she married my Uncle Bob, she has been a little offish toward me although I've always tried to be the best of friends with her. She did lend me the money, however, and I asked her to telephone Sara Frances to have the furniture sent to me the next day.

Quite excited and happy about having a new outfit for my room, I decided to surprise mother with it. So I did not say a word to her in regard to my purchase, and I was glad afterward that I had not. For just as I was planning how I would rearrange my room I received a telephone message from Adelia Boyde, telling me that she and two other Dix Ames girls had suddenly planned to run down to Indianapolis to see a Chaucerian pageant with the idea of our club doing something of the same sort of thing in the spring. She asked me to go.

"It will be quite a lark, Lucile," she said. "We have figured that we can take the little trip for less than $25 with hotel expenses and everything, and have a jolly time. Can you meet us at the train?"

"Yes, indeed, I can," I answered heartily, and I was glad that I had that $25 in my purse. I left a note for mother, who was out with Cousin Fannie, and I told Tilly that if a load of furniture came to tell the driver that I had decided not to take it. Then I hastily threw some duds into my hat box, kissed granny, and was off for a good time, and the girls at the station congratulated me upon being a good sport about going on such short notice. I told them that they ought to know by this time that I was a self-starter.

Mother almost took the pleasant taste of the delightful little jaunt out of mouth by being in one of her trying moods when I returned.

"Bob and Betty are furious at you," she said. "It seems you recklessly promised to buy some furniture, and then instructed Tilly to refuse it when it came. That Miss James, who owned it, had no place to put it, so she sent it to Betty, and it's all stored in her crowded little house, and she has all the trouble of trying to sell it for her friend. I don't see why you promised to buy it, Lucile, but as you did, why didn't you keep your promise?"

"I felt, mother, that you would think even such a bargain extravagant for me, and as I thought it over it seemed to me that I should prefer a nice walnut set. Walnut is more becoming to my coloring than mahogany."

"Indeed?" sniffed mother, and then she informed me that I must return Betty's loan at once. I was obliged to tell her that she or daddy would have to advance the amount as I had spent the $25 on the trip that I took for the benefit of the Dix Amies.

"Of course," stated mother sarcastically, "it was positively necessary for you to go." She never does seem to appreciate the work I do for the Dix Amies.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

ASTHMA

By Aaron Brown, M. D., New York City Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Asthma is a disease that has been known for hundreds of years; but it is only recently that a means of relieving or curing many of the sufferers has been found.

With asthma the attacks are characterized by difficulty in breathing. At first the attacks are few and far between. Later they become more or less continuous.

The victims of asthma, it is found, have a weakness toward certain substances, when breathed in, or taken as food, drink or medicine. Among the substances breathed in, which may cause asthma are; dander from all animals, cats, dogs, rabbits, horses, also birds or furs; house dusts, flour, mustard, pepper, face powder. Various pollens of flowers, weeds, trees, may cause asthamatic attacks associated with hay fever.

These facts make it unwise for asthmatic people to work at any of the dusty trades.

Substances taken by mouth (especially important in children) include the entire dietary list and particulary, milk, eggs, nuts, and cereals. Medicines, such as asperin, quinine, or ipecac may also produce an attack.

The treatment consists in finding the cause and advising the patient how to avoid exposure to it, whether at home or at work. Medical treatment depends upon the conditions disclosed by the investigation.

If the asthmatic patient will follow his physician's directions and the following suggestions in day to day living, he will continue to enjoy life as do normal individuals:

Keep all animals away from the house.

Sleep in well ventilated room, not too cold, and as free from furniture as possible.

Use no rugs or curtains in bedroom, nor put camphor or tar paper in room.

Do not overeat. Take the heaviest meal at noon. It is better to eat small amounts often, even five or six times a day. Eat sparingly of starches and sugars and omit the drinking of carbonated waters.

See that the bowels move daily.

Take things easy. Do not rush to work. Try not to worry or get excited.

Protect yourself against wind, wet and colds.

Should you catch cold, stay home and avoid complications.

Take only medicine specified by your doctor.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The first British decoration bestowed on a Chinese woman is the M. B. E. awarded to Miss Foonye Catherine Woo, head mistress of the St. Paul's Girls' school in Honk Kong. Though a British subject, Miss Woo is thoroughly Chinese in her desire to preserve the best in the national culture. In St. Paul's school a modern education is given in Chinese to 500 girls, the daughters of Chinese Christian parents who support the school. Miss Woo spent five years in England where she was educated in the leading schools for girls and later took a special course in theology. When she returned to China she accepted an invitation to become principal of St. Paul's school. Last year the British government gave her a site for a new building. Miss Woo is one of the representatives on the National Christian council in China, and an enthusiastic Y. W. C. A. workers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Urges Adverse Action At City Meeting

Mr. Editor: In my opinion it is very unfair to the people of Norwich who live in the city to have a few people whose appropriation is voted down at a regular city meeting get up a petition and oblige the mayor to call a special meeting and vote more money. It is not sportsmanlike, if you please. Our taxes, city and town combined are already so high as to be a heavy burden. Let us who believe in fair play rally to this special meeting called before Labor day where a large majority of the citizens in all probability will not even know of it, and when many are absent from the city and vote down the Thames street improvement. Let it wait till next year. Our vacant stores, tenements, and houses are a protest against adding any more to our tax rate.

A LOYAL CITIZEN.

AS OTHERS SEE IT

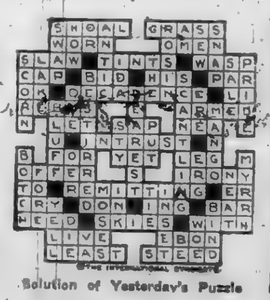
HARTFORD'S SESQUICENTENNIAL

(Hartford Courant)

When we get to thinking of the Sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia, we are reminded of the fact that the city of Hartford will be old enough, in less than a decade, to have a sesquicentennial celebration all its own, as 1934 will mark the 150th anniversary of the incorporation. Five cities in the state were incorporated in 1784, the Connecticut General assembly granting the privilege to New Haven and New London at its January session and to Hartford, Middletown and Norwich at its May session. These cities are today, by many years, the oldest municipalities in New England and among the oldest in the country, their predecessors having been another quintet, New York, Albany, Philadelphia, Richmond, Va., and Charleston, S. C.

It happens that it will be possible for those who take in hand the proper observance of the 150th anniversary of the incorporation of the capital city of Connecticut, which should, by 1934, be a city of 200,000 people, to combine with the celebration exercises proper for the 200th anniversary of the settlement of Hartford, which dates from 1635 and will complete its third century in 1935.

We confess that it is rather early to get excited about these coming anniversaries, as there are several governors and two presidents to be elected before their arrival, but it will be in order, in a few years, to take up the matter seriously, that Hartford may adequately observe the anniversaries of its settlement and incorporation as a city, which, as indicated, come so near together that the celebrations may well be combined. The failure of Philadelphia to act in time had much to do with the unsatisfactory conditions which prevailed a long time after the opening of the exposition. Hartford has a way of doing things right and we have no doubt that, when the time comes to get started, the right kind of a start will be made towards the observance of the 150th and 200th anniversaries.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

IN DAY'S NEWS

MAHOGNY, MISERS AND MASTERPIECES

The question "What is mahogany?" has recently been raised again.

There are more than 60 answers to that question. More than 60 species of timber have at one time or another been put on the market under the name of mahogany.

"What of mahogany?" is a more interesting question to the man who buys it for his living room," says a bulletin of the National society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"Mahogany, queen of furniture woods, holds a scepter and has held it for 200 years. There have been hundreds upon hundreds of competitors. In what lies mahogany's patent to position? White pine has a softer and more even grain. Oak is sturdier. Other woods can be stained to resemble mahogany's natural warm reddish tone. Teak is superior for carving. Circassian walnut and hard maples often show far more entrancing figure. (Figure is a tree's autobiography revealed in the grain at a smooth polished surface.) Mahogany's position rests in part on the characteristic entwining light and dark ribbons which play the tones in watered silk.

"The flowing surface which mahogany presents to the eye constantly changing, constantly glowing, almost lifts it out of the class of inanimate things in which all wood falls. It is a quality which mahogany shares with few other woods. But flirting changeableness is a false front. Not many other woods really warp like mahogany, another outstanding virtue in the estimate of the cabinet maker. Mahogany also takes glue well. And it must be granted that mahogany has guarded its dowry well. The tree takes up its residence so deep in the tropical forest that the world cannot afford to make too many paths to it. It is far enough away to excite men's interest and yet near enough and abundant enough to be useful.

"The United States imports mahogany from the West Indies, Central America, South America, Africa, France, England and Holland. But of course, the imports from France, England and Holland are reshipments of mahogany received from their respective colonies. What is known as true mahogany comes exclusively from the Carribean countries. The mahogany limit touches the tip of Florida, blots all of Cuba and most of the West Indies; spreads along the tropical coast of Mexico and extends over most of the area of the Central American republics, through Panama and bites deeply into the northern coast of South America. British West African mahogany figures more largely in American imports than logs from any country except Nicaragua. It is an allied species.

"Britain has a foothold in British Honduras largely because of mahogany and log weed. The colony or wood choppers which was established there needed protection of the crown. In response to their needs the empire added another bit of red to the map. But England probably deserves some mahogany acreage because of Sir Walter Raleigh. He introduced not only tobacco but also mahogany to Europe.

"Mahogany comes by its queenly rank among cabinet woods naturally. It is queen of the tropical forest. A mature tree usually rises a hundred feet to look down on the lesser tangled timber. It rules unchallenged over an acre or more of ground. The roots, resembling Louisiana cypress, spread out before they reach the ground. In the wasteful old days cutters erected a platform 10 or 12 feet high to escape chopping through so much wood. Now the roots are prized for their splendid figure. So modern cutting, following logging practice in the United States, keeps close to the ground. Lors are no longer squared; another victory for forest thrift. In many places trains and barges have displaced the ox teams and river floods as a means of transportation to tidewater. Last year the United States imported 72 billion board feet of mahogany (a board foot is one inch by 12 inches by 12 inches.) nearly nine times the imports 30 years ago.

"A single mahogany log will sometimes bring as much as $3,000. No wonder, some men, entranced by the beauty of the wood, have become mahogany misers. There is a record of one such miser in England. He hoarded a few chosen logs in his cellar. On no condition would he sell them. Each day, it is said, he descended the stairs lighting his way with a candle and dusted the logs with a silk handkerchief. After his death the logs were sold. Some of the miser's precious mahogany found its way to America. The old masterpiece models for modern furniture, the originals which good taste for two centuries has branded good, mostly are in mahogany. Thomas Chippendale was born in Worcester early in the 18th century. His family were wood workers. He grew up to be a wood worker also but he became a lover of beauty. Chippendale's chairs, tables and cabinets presented in his catalogue entitled 'The Gentlemen's and Cabinet Maker's Director' revolutionized domestic furniture styles. Many Chippendale designs are duplicated today in mahogany which he used more than any other wood.

"Then along came Sheraton, minister, author, architect and cabinet maker. 'Chippendale is all wrong,' he said. Sheraton's style now is standard also. Then followed Hepplewhite and company. 'Sheraton is all wrong,' they said. Thereupon; they created the Hepplewhite style. All three masters in what is known as England's 'Golden Age' of furniture-making, worked chiefly in mahogany. Naturally the fact that masterpieces were made in mahogany, increased the wood's popularity."

COMMON SENSE

She came among the gathering crowd,
A maiden fair, without pretense,
And when they asked her humble name,
She whispered mildly, "Common Sense."

Her modest garb drew every eye,
Her ample cloak, her shoes of leather;
And, when they sneered, she simply said,
"I dress according to the weather."

They argued long, and reasoned loud,
In dubious Hindoo phrase mysterious,
While she, poor child, could not divine
Why girls so young should be so serious.

They knew the length of Plato's beard,
And how the scholars wrote in Saturn;
She studied authors not so deep,
And took the Bible for her pattern.

And so, she said, "Excuse me, friends,
I find all have their proper places,
And Common Sense should stay at home
With cheerful hearts and smiling faces."

—James Thomas Fields.

Stories That Recall Others

Typically Modern

The teacher was listening to sentences written by the third grade, in which they had used their spelling words. She called on Charles to read his sentence using the word "horse."

Charles arose and read: "The horse is runnin'."

Word More Or Less

A colored man was slowly looking over cantaloupes on the fruit counter while the clerks were busy at other counters.

"How much these melons?" the man asked in a sing-song voice none too distinct.

"What's that?" snapped one a bit impatient at being interrupted while he was weighing sugar.

"I said, how much these breakfast melons?" said the man attempting to be more explicit.

Apples and pears were offered in moderate amounts but peaches were limited to a few native varieties yet on the market and berries are practically gone. POLICE PAYROLL NOW IS MADE BY CHECKS

This month the office of City Treasurer Charles S. Avery began the practice of paying the members of the police department by checks, instead of by cash as has previously been the custom. The change is made, according to Treasurer Avery and Mayor Waters, in order to make it easier for the city treasurer's office. Mr. Avery also called attention to the danger of having a payroll of several thousands dollars in cash on hand in these days when so many holdups are taking place.

The change, however, has not been extended to members of the fire department, who still receive their pay in cash.

For some time past the Gas and Electric department has been paying off the help by checks.

STATE'S NEW INSURANCE LAW HITS 3,113 AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS SO FAR

Satisfactory evidence of financial responsibility was required by the state motor vehicle department of 3,113 Connecticut motor vehicle registrants in the first six months of this year. These registrants, constituting slightly more than one per cent. of the total number of motor vehicles registered in Connecticut during that period, came under the requirement because of their having been convicted of reckless driving, speeding, operating while intoxicated, evasion of responsibility, having caused the death of, or injury to, any person, or having caused property damage of at least $100.

This Connecticut law has been in effect only during the present calendar year, and, except for the month of March, each month of the first half of the year saw an increase in the number of registrants whose faulty driving made them subject to its provisions. There were 219 in January, 422 in February, 374 in March, 469 in April, 688 in May and 941 in June. All were required to be insured or to furnish bonds, cash deposits or collateral, sufficient to satisfy any claim for damages of at least $10,000 arising from personal injury to, or death of, any person and of at least $1,000 to cover any property damage they might do.

The damaging of property has resulted in the largest number of registrants putting themselves under the provisions of this law, with speeding a close second. In the case of the latter offense, for instance, the state says to the registrant in effect that if he persists in driving his car on the highways at unreasonable speed, he must be prepared to pay for any damage that might result to the property of others, wholly apart from the court action to which he renders himself liable.

The state of Massachusetts has adopted a compulsory automobile insurance law, effective in 1927, which says that before an automobile may be registered and operated in Massachusetts in 1927 it must be insured or bonded in limits of $5,000 and $10,000 or that securities in the amount of $5,000 must be deposited with the division of highways.

MINSTREL SHOW GIVEN BY JAIL HILL PLAYGROUND

The Jail Hill playgrounds held a successful minstrel show on Thursday evening at the Strand theatre, with a large number in attendance. This was a sort of post season activity as the playgrounds officially closed on Wednesday evening with the final demonstration at Greeneville.

About 40 boys and girls composed the chorus. Arthur Brock was interlocutor and Edward Gillis, Robert Berkeault, Joseph Riley, Thomas Roach, Harry Pavy and John Cox, were the endmen.

The following were the solo numbers in the first part of the program: Oh, How I Miss You Tonight; Anthony Kirker; Oh Get Oh Gosh! Oh Golly, Harry Pavy; Midnight Waltz, Walter McCarthy; I'm Sitting Pretty, Carmelita Valentine; Just A Cottage Small, Louise Leone; You Didn't Want Me When I Wanted You, Robert Valentine; Oh Tell Me Where My Sweetie's Hiding, John Cox; Remember, Bernice Cedrone; Hawaii, Anna Leone; Just Around the Corner, Edward Gillis; Ten-Ten-Tennessee, Thomas Roach; Gimme a Little Kiss, Joseph Riley; That Certain Party, Robert Barbeault.

All parts were admirably taken and the success of the affair speaks well not only for the children who took part, but also for those who trained them in their parts, Andrew Caples and Mr. Donovan, along with the playground instructors. Miss Beatrice Ablemeh and Leslie Carroll had charge of the rehearsals.

In the second part a sort of vaudeville show was staged with Robert and Carmelita Valentine appearing in the St. Louis hop, Angus McDonald in a waltz clog dance and a uke number. Two specialty dances the Glow Worm and Brown Eyes by Carmelita Valentine, Anna Morin, Louise Sullivan, Anita Cedrone and Helen Hogan also were on the program.

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE CONVULSES ITS AUDIENCE

"Anne Nichols' riot of laughter, Abie's Irish Rose, opened a three day engagement at the Palace theatre on Thursday night and throughout the two hours of the performance there was hardly a moment when the audience was not kept in laughter; that hearty type which called the handkerchiefs into play to stem the tears produced by an over-production of mirth.

Abie's Irish Rose could not be called other than the most laughable comedy ever staged on the American stage, yet, at the same time, it deals with one of the most beautiful love stories imaginable, and, beneath its many laughter producing events, it teaches a lesson of tolerance which cannot fail to convince everyone that the lesson of the play is one which should be taken into the heart thus ending forever the many foolish ideas of differences in race and religion, teaching as it does the love knows no race or creed and that all are traveling alone the path of life seeking the common goal by different pathways.

The story of the play is based on the love of Abraham Levy, masterfully played by Frank Stevens, for the beautiful Irish girl, Rosemary Murphy, played by Alice Davenport and how they overcome the many difficulties of their marriage. The many screamingly funny scenes in the play, brought on as the lovers try to escape the wrath of their fathers, bring forth the best of ability. Weddings galore seem to be the fate of the lovers as their fathers refuse to recognize previous marriage.

Everything naturally comes out happily at the close of the play, the children become reconciled with their fathers; the fathers come to forget differences in race and creed and the grandchildren, innocent that they have played the role of peacemakers, naturally bring the play to a happy ending as the bells chime out, the glad tidings of a Merry Christmas.

Miss Davenport and Mr. Stevens the play has a splendid pair for the leads, both winning the many instantly to the hearts of the audience as they made their appearance and attaching themselves more deeply as the play unfolded itself.

The part of Solomon Levy, father of Abie, could have had no happier selection than that made when given to the play depended on the appearances of Solomon and with Mr. Jerome playing the part everything desired was given. In the role of Patrick Murphy, father of Rosemary, W. J. Brady was an ideal selection and his dramatic parts, as well as the speaking parts were handled in a most capable manner.

Jacob Frank as Isaac Cohen and Ruth Thorpe as Mrs. Isaac Cohen were perfect foils from start to finish and their every appearance on the stage called forth continuous laughter. Masters of comedy both, they filled in the place of laugh getters to perfection.

Alfred Clarke as Rabbi, Jacob Samuels and Edwin Maynard as Father Whalen, old friends of the battlefields of France, carried their respective parts perfectly. It was their role to act as peacemakers between the two irate fathers and keep the happy home from being broken up through folly, and they did this and more in a manner winning much applause.

The leading characters were well supported by others in the cast and the entire performance lacked nothing to make it the riot of laughter that it has proven to be wherever the play has been produced.

It is hoped by this novel method to have Norwich calendars distributed largely in other cities throughout the country, says the August membership letter of the Chamber of Commerce.

In addition to the local pictures, statistics of Norwich will be prominently displayed, especially featuring our excellent transportation advantages. A number of our manufacturing concerns have signified their intention of making use of these calendars in this way. The names of these firms will be prominently printed on the calendar. So far as known this novel use of calendars has never been made elsewhere.

"FOOL-PROOF" AIRPLANE MAY BECOME REALITY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The "fool-proof" airplane may be a reality in the near future, it was revealed here today in the announcement that students of the Daniel Guggenheim school of aeronautics, of the New York university, are trying out an invention which it is hoped will eliminate the dangers of flying.

Professor Alexander Klemin, head of the aeronautical school, told of the work at the opening session of the convention of the National Aeronautic section of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

The fearful nose dive, which is the cause of many fatalities in aviation, may be made impossible through this invention, Professor Klemin said. It also is expected to permit the airplane to glide safely to earth automatically whenever the engines stop for any reason.

EASTERN CONN. POWER TEAM BEATS WARRIORS AND CLINCHES PENNANT

The Eastern Conn. Power Co. are the 1926 champions of the Norwich Twilight league by reason of their victory over the Warriors at Duwell field on Thursday evening by the score of 8 to 3.

The game was not much from a baseball standpoint with errors, loose play and heavy hitting by the winners predominating.

Tommy Simcox again returned to the mound for the Powermen after a layoff due to illness and he held the Warriors safe throughout. He allowed but three scattered hits, two of which came in the first inning.

The heavy artillery of the Powermen swung into action in the very first inning scoring two runs. A. Dugas, formerly of Taftville A. A. and the Centrals, and who was playing his first game in the league this season, led off with a single to right field and went to second on a passed ball. Lefty Dugas and Clabby walked, after Whitney and W. Barry had been retired and Jack Clabby scored A. Dugas and his brother, Lefty, with a single into the flock in right field.

However, the Warriors, fighting hard, came right back and tied the score in their half of this inning, with two away Kampf and Jackson singled in order and both scored on Lefty Dugas dropped W. Burns fly in left field.

The Powermen then proceeded to score two more runs in the second inning and practically won the contest. Greene led off with a double and scored on an error by Jab Burns. A. Dugas singled, stole second and scored on Bill Barry's screeching single. Lefty Dugas followed with another single but he was stranded.

The Powermen went out in order in the third with Couture throwing but four balls. However, in the fourth the hitting power of the new champions was released in all its fury when five doubles and an error accounted for four runs. With one out Whitney, Bill Barry, Lefty Dugas and Jack Clabby doubled in order, Joe Barry was safe on an infield error, Lee Goldblatt doubled, Whitney, Bill Barry, Lefty Dugas and Joe Barry scored as a result. This ended their scoring.

The Warriors annexed their third and last run in the fourth inning when J. Burns was safe on an error, stole second and scored when Couture hit a roller through Simcox and Bill Barry.

A. Dugas, Bill Barry and Lefty Dugas led in the hitting, the Power first sacker garnering three hits out of four attempts. Bill Barry with a double and single out of three attempts and Lefty Dugas with a double and single out of two times at bat.

Joe Jackson as usual furnished the fielding feature with a nice catch on A. Dugas long drive in the fourth inning.

By virtue of this victory the Eastern Conn. Power Co., clinched the pennant for the season and Jimmy Leyland annexes his third consecutive pennant in Norwich Twilight circles. They have played good ball throughout the season and well deserve the title, having played some hard games that tested their championship mettle. Their two ties with the Warriors previous to tonight's game will be long remembered by real sportdom as two of the best played games in this section. However, their third attempt the youngsters cracked and accordingly the E. C. P. added their one victory needed to make sure of the bunting. The Warriors also deserve credit for their clean and playing throughout the year which has won them a host of friends.

No Game Tonight.

There will be no game at Duwell field this evening. There are still three games to be played in the league one with Tantic and St. Joseph's and Tantic and the E. C. P. These games will have a bearing on second place in the score.

DEMPSEY HAS SHORT WORKOUT IN RAIN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 2—To the accompaniment of forked lightning and down-pour of rain, Jack Dempsey resumed training today after a 24 hour lay-off.

The world's heavyweight champion, irritable and unable to restrain his nervous energy, worked out in the open at the Greyhound Racing track, but was forced to limit his boxing to five rounds because of the deluge that swept the ring. Before the rain drove him to cover, however, Dempsey punctured a savage attack against two of his five sparring partners, all but knocking them out.

Tillie Kid Herman, the Los Angeles middleweight, who had managed to evade Dempsey's punches for a week, fell a victim to a short left hook and a right to the chin that dropped him to his knees. Herman was badly tired up at the finish. Frankie Carpenter, the Freeport lightheavyweight, also was severely punished.

Dempsey opened his boxing with Martin Burke, New Orleans light heavyweight but Burke was too fast and blocked too skillfully to enable Dempsey to get started. Dempsey, however, cut loose against Carpenter and Herman, his next two victims and wound up boxing a round a piece against Charley Anderson and Jimmy Bosen.

VALLEY FALLS TEAM AT J. B. MARTIN DIAMOND SUNDAY

The attraction at the J. B. Martin grounds on Sunday will be the fast Valley Falls nine of Rhode Island. This will be their second appearance at the J. B. Martin grounds this season, the Velvetmen losing the first game by the tune of 5 to 3. This club has defeated some of the best teams in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, including the New England Oil of Fall River, New Bedford Eagles, Fall River Collegians, Oysterville Cape team, and in fact have only lost three games this season. The Velvetmen have been put through a stiff workout and confidence exists among the boys that the local club will be on the large end of the score Sunday. Both complete lineups will appear in tomorrow's paper.

Runners Challenge Once Again

The Taftville Town team would like to play the Assawaga Mills of Danielson or the Pace Co. of Danielson, on either Sunday or Labor day. If challenge is accepted write to Red Sox, Box 12, Taftville, Conn., or call 1477-4 Friday evening.

GRAHAM GIVES SUGGS BRILLIANT BOXING LESSON

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Bushey Graham, of Utica, N. Y., stepped to the head of contenders for the bantamweight crown by overwhelming Chick Suggs, New Bedford negro in the feature bout of a bantamweight carnival at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The New England champion was helpless before Graham's shifty attack, while the Utica flash landed at will on Suggs head and body. Graham weighed 118, Suggs 118 1-4.

Graham swarmed over Suggs from the start forcing the fight continually. Suggs, unable to fathom the New Yorker's attack, landed scarcely a scarcely a dozen effective blows during the contest.

Andy Martin, of Boston, won the decision over Vic Burorne, New York, by a wide margin in a fast ten round semi-final. Burrone's two fisted attack could make no progress against the smart defense and clean punching of the Boston bantam. Martin landed at will with both hands throughout the bout. Martin weighed 122 1-2, Burrone 122.

Johnny Green of New York and Poncho Dencio of Manila, fought ten thrilling rounds to a draw in the second bout on the card.

The fighters kept the crowd in an uproar as they slugged away at close quarters. The Filipino scored the only knockdown in the first round.

Green weighed 122 1-2, Dencio 119 3-4.

TUNNEY TAKES LONG REST ON HIS ARRIVAL

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 2—(AP)—Rain brought rest to Gene Tunney today, his first in his new Stroudsburg camp. A steady drizzle kept the challenger in the Glenbrook golf club all day.

Tunney craved sleep on his arrival late last night and got in 12 hours, recuperating from the most strenuous day he has spent. Yesterday in Philadelphia and at night in Stroudsburg, he was cheered as perhaps no boxer has ever been applauded. Tunney was not prepared for the enthusiastic reception he was accorded and even after he had fully recovered physically from what amounted to an ordeal he seemed dazed today.

He will resume working tomorrow like a circus—rain or shine. His first jaunt over the roads will bring him out early. There is no disposition among his trainers to have him go back at once to the heavy work of his closing days in speculator. The challenger is a boxer who can get too fine and this his camp directors seek to avoid. At the slightest indication of a tenderesy to go stale he will be ordered to suspend operations for the morning.

FRISCH IS FINED $500 FOR LEAVING GIANTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—(AP)—Captain Frank Frisch of the New York Giants was today fined $500 for leaving his team without permission in St. Louis two weeks ago, according to an announcement by team officials. Manager John McGraw said that Frisch would return to the team tomorrow.

In a statement given out by the officials it was pointed out that the fine was necessarily imposed as the result of Frisch deserting the club but that in view of Frisch's good conduct and satisfactory services previously no further action would be taken. However, Frisch will lose his salary for the time he has been absent from the Giants.

Whether or not the Giants' infield will be in the lineup in tomorrow's game will depend on Rogers Hornsby, traded suddenly for New York August 22 without making known his intentions and upon his arrival here declared he left the team because he was too ill to play.

PIRATES-CINCINNATI GAME IS CALLED IN THIRD

CINCINNATI Sept. 2—(AP)—A heavy rain brought to a halt the crucial game between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati today after three and one-half innings of play. It was the final appearance of the Pirates here and one of the largest week day crowds of the season went home disappointed after waiting two hours for the skies to clear.

Cincinnati gathered two runs in the first inning and another tally in the second while Pittsburgh failed to register in their four innings. Luque held the visitors to one hit up to that time.

The game possibly will be played in Pittsburgh on September 10 as part of a double-header.

SLATTERY TO BE SPARRING PARTNER FOR DEMPSEY

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Jimmy Slattery, Buffalo boxer, will act as sparring partner for Jack Dempsey during the final days of the champion's training for his fight with Gene Tunney, Slattery will leave next week for the champion's camp.

Fitzsimmons also announced that Slattery would appear on the preliminary card the night of the big fight at Philadelphia. His opponent has not been selected.

MANCHESTER CLINCH NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE PENNANT

LAWRENCE, Mass., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Manchester clinched the New England league title here this afternoon when Dubue's pitching and Tyler's home run gave them a 2 to 1 edge over Lawrence in the first game of a double header. Lynn, which had been pressing the pennant winners for the past two months, stumbled this week to lose five straight games to Lewiston. The season ends Labor day.

CARDS NOW TWO GAMES AHEAD IN PENNANT RACE

CHICAGO, Sept. 2—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals today played like champions and defeated the Chicago Cubs in both games of a doubleheader by scores of 2 to 0 and 9 to 1. The double victory while Pittsburgh and Cincinnati remained idle, gave the Cardinals a two game lead over the Reds and a three game margin over the World Champion Pirates.

Grover Alexander, the former Cub pitcher, who was sold down the river for $4,000, reaped revenge on his former teammates in his first appearance against them in Chicago. He set them down with three scattered hits, while he led the attack which brought victory in the first game by doubling into the overflow crowd in left field.

This blow was followed by Douthit's triple and Southworth's double for the only two runs of the game.

In the second contest, Rhem kept Chicago's hits well scattered. The Cubs' lone run resulted from Hartnett's double and two infield outs. The league leaders bunched their hits off three Chicago flingers, Hornsby contributing a home run with a man on base during the assault, and won easily. Great fielding plays by Southworth, Hornsby, Thevenow and Bottomly aided the Cardinals pitchers.

More than 31,000 people were jammed in the park, a crowd of ten deep being jammed in the left field where the bleachers were formerly located. The day was dark and intermittent sprinkles worried the crowd but failed to slow the game.

Fans came to blows as Alexander quit the mound with his shutout victory in the first game. An uproar of boos and cheers greeted him as he walked to the dug-out and immediately fists began to fly among those for and against the former Cub.

The police were quick in restoring order and a near-calm had been achieved when the second game was called.

PHIL O'NEIL WINS RICH PURSE AT SYRACUSE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 2—(AP)—Four heats were required to decide a winner in the $10,000 Chamber of Commerce pacing stake at the New York State Fair grounds today. Phil O'Neil, the brown gelding, owned by James P. Berry of Hartford, Conn., and driven by Will Crosier, took down the race and the winner's share, $5,000, by beating Hoolyrood Walter and Star Ruth in the fourth mile.

The Governors stake for $3,000 went to Guy Trogan which placed third in the first heat and then won the next two. Dickerson was in the sulky.

MISS RYAN DECLARES SHE WILL REMAIN AN AMATEUR

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 2.—(AP)—"So long as I play tennis I shall do so as an amateur", declared Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California tennis star, at the Longwood Cricket club today. With this positive assertion America's second ranking woman player definitely disposed of rumors that she would join Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen during the North American tour of the great French player.

TILDEN AND CHAPIN REACH FINALS IN NATIONAL DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 2.—(AP)—For the first time since 1922, William T. Tilden reached within striking distance of the National doubles championship today.

After failing for two successive years to carry youthful Sandy Wiener of Philadelphia beyond the third round, the National singles titleholder today won his way to the finals of the 1926 tournament with Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., as his partner, paddling through five sets over a wet court to defeat his veteran far west rival, William M. Johnston, and the intercollegiate champion, Edward G. Chandler, 1 at 6-3, 6-0, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Defeat came to Johnston today as it always has come in the past, with the little Californian fighting back gamely to stave off a sensational finish on the part of Tilden and his teammate from Springfield, Mass., but he found the Philadelphia wizard in one of his marvellous winning moods, with service, drive and volley under complete command, and despite a thrilling stand in the final set, the far west contingent could not beat back the closing rush of the eastern combination.

Chandler bore up well with Johnston in the gripping rallies of the fifth set. It was largely through the brilliant passing shots of the University of California athlete that the Pacific coast players were able to break through the service of Chapin to pull up within a game of their rivals, after having trailed at 5-2.

Had the Californians been facing any other player than Tilden in the tenth and concluding game of the set, their uphill fight might have carried on to another service break, and then victory. But, after having lost three successive services in the second and third sets, Tilden this time was not to be denied. His delivery rode through the opposing court like a rifle shot, and in six swift and penetrating strokes he had settled the issue.

Conditions were favorable to the eastern combination when the teams took the court, for it was damp and cold and dreary—the kind of a setting in which Tilden revels and in which the stroking of his undercut shots become especially difficult.

But after going down to speedy defeat in the opening set at 6-3, the Californians came back to engage their opponents with so effective a forecourt attack that Tilden and Chapin were able to sandwich in only two games in the second and third sets.

Here the tide turned once more, Chapin, upon whom the far westerners rained their shower of strokes, suddenly came back with a furious counter drive in which nothing apparently could escape his racquet. Recovered court with remarkable speed to make spectacular recoveries, ably supporting Tilden as the latter speeded up his drives to rush through the last two sets for the match.

The victory gave Tilden and Chapin the right to face the winners of a match tomorrow between R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards, the defending titleholders, and Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer of Texas.

The final round of the national veterans' doubles championship was reached with A. J. Gore of Washington, D. C., and Claude Butlin of Mexico City qualifying to oppose the defending titleholders. Samuel Hardy and Walter L. Pate. Gore and Butlin today defeated G. S. Blake and J. W. Foster, of Boston, 6-3, 7-5.

EXPECT RECORD CROWD AT DEMPSEY TUNNEY FIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Amid all the excitent here today over the visit of Gene Tunney, who meets Jack Dempsey here in a fight for the world's title on September 23, Ten Rickard, who will promote the contest, remained undisturbed. It was after Tunney's departure for his new training camp that Rickard expressed himself in enthusiastic terms about the big battle.

"I do not think the people have yet awakened to what this fight is going to be," said Rickard. "I am as positive as anything that not only will this fight draw the greatest crowd that ever witnessed an athletic event, but the class of the crowd will be beyond comparison with any other large gathering ever assembled. Practically every big banker in the country has already made reservations; the same is true of the big manufacturers.

"Already we are assure of the attendance of at least five governors and never before have I seen more than one governor at a fight. The house and senate of the congress of the United States could perhaps muster a quorum at the stadium. I am certain it will be, in every way, the greatest fight I have promoted in my 20 years of experience at the game."

NEW YORK STRUCTURES BUILT IN QUEER FORMS

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Some of the most curiously shaped buildings in the world are located in New York without one of them being planned as a freak.

The condition arises from their having been planned according to streets which originally were laid along twisting roads or Indian trails.

The Flatiron building is the best known, with its knife like edge facing north while the southern exposure is widened in the space between converging streets. Broadway has a similar-shaped building every few blocks up to Times Square.

Broadway bisects Manhattan Island from the southeast corner to the northwest. The remainder of the main streets are laid out in rectangular squares, which causes the odd shaped lots to appear at each intersection.

Times Square itself is formed by a junction of this sort, and is anything but square, being rather more the shape of a diamond as Broadway crosses Seventh Avenue there from the east and then turns north.

An apartment house located at Riverside Drive and 11th street is built inside of a long curve of the latter street, which makes the building a triangle with one side "bal conied" outward. The building across 110th street, a companion to this one, is built with the curve inward. If the street could be removed and the two buildings joined they would dovetail.

The new buildings, in conforming with the building laws, also have created a sky-line which at the base of each building is beautiful but seldom noticed from the street.

The buildings above the sixteenth or twentieth stories are pyramided to allow as much light as possible on the street, but the streets are so narrow that no proper perspective can be obtained to view the upper portions.

One of the few building not so hidden is the American Radiator building south of the Public Library grounds. This tower is done in orange and black stone, each insert of the pyramid marked so that when the tower is illuminated at night it has to appearance of a great pile of coals.

ENGINE OF CIVIL WAR FAME IS CONTRASTED WITH NEW EQUIPMENT

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 2.—(AP)—The evolution of the American locomotive from its towering smoke stack, wooden cab and strange appurtenances to the present day ponderous mass of bright colored steel is strikingly presented here.

Texas, one of the few remaining pioneer locomotives and one of the engines that participated in the chase of the famous Andrews raiders during the Civil war has survived the advent of successor not only two or three times its size and speed but also of different hue.

Displacing the somble black, universal garb for locomotives on American railways in recent years, the southern railway system has adopted a color scheme of Virginia green, gold and burnished steel for 23 new and heavy Pacific type passenger engines now being put into service on southern lines.

The Civil war relic preserved here in Grant park was never so be-decked but the "grand-parent" of the modern locomotive has a history as colorful as the paint on it's "flapper grandchild."

The locomotive is stationed on a high knoll in the park under a shed surrounded by barbed wire, a short distance from where James Andrews and seven of his companions were hanged after being tried as spies. Andrews had been given permission by General O. M. Mitchell, commanding a division of Buell's army near Shelbyville, Tenn., to conduct a party of volunteers into Georgia; seize an engine on the western and Atlantic tracks and run northward burning bridges and destroying tracks behind them. The raiders, 15 in all, carried out their scheme on April 11th, 1862.

The federals were forced to change engines three times in chasing the raiders due to the torn up tracks "Texes" the third locomotive used, was headed southward when the federals boarded it and, careening wildly in reversed overtook Andrews and his men as they were attempting to burn the Chickamauga bridge. The raiders fled to the woods but were captured and imprisoned at Chattanooga. Andrews and seven others were convicted as spies and hanged in Atlanta. Their seven companions escaped to Union lines before their trials.

SAMOA ISLAND SQUABBLE TAKEN TO U. S. COURTS

APIA, Samoa, Sept. 2. (AP)—Congressional action annexing Swain's island, a three mile long speck in the ocean 250 miles from here, to American Samoa has brought up in the high court here an old suit to determine its ownership.

Eighty years ago the coral atoll bore a few coccanut palms. About that time it was settled upon by Sula Tyrell, a Frenchman, who built houses and established a boiling down station for rendering copra into oil. Tyrell married a Tokelau woman.

In 1856 Tyrell and his wife went to other islands to buy cocoanuts, leaving behind an eight year old son.

During their absence, Eli Jennings an American citizen, with two other white men and some islanders landed on the opposite side of the mile lagoon from Tyrell's settlement.

The native in charge sent the boy, Kaiola, across in a boat as evidence that the island belonged to a white man. Jennings, however, insisted upon erecting buildings and informed the natives the Kaiola would be adopted by him as his son. When Jenning's daughter attained marriageable age she was wedded to Kaiola.

THE OPINIONATED, STUBBORN AND SOT

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Why is it that so many farmers are so everlastingly "sot" in their ways? Not only in their ways, but also in their opinions and beliefs and plans?

They're not all that way, of course. But you know, as well as I do, that the character-sketch is altogether too common. Too many are infected by the poison.

Take my neighbor, Old Man Waterhouse, for illustration. He's a perfectly honest, absolutely sincere, entirely well-meaning old chap. His word is as good as his bond, and he wouldn't cheat you out of so much as a brass farthing, no matter how good a chance you gave him. He's universally respected—and universally disliked. We honor him for his impeccable integrity, but are rasped into irritability by his intolerant, domineering stubbornness.

He is not an educated or trained man. He has read little and travelled less. He has studied his own farm closely and has sharply observed the score or two of his immediate neighbors. Beyond those limits, he is not a well-informed man.

He knows "The Big Dipper" and North star, but not Orion nor the explanation of The Milky Way, and regards shooting stars and comets as "signs" divinely sent to foretell the weather.

He knows that his cows like cornstalks and cabbage leaves, but has no conception of a "nutritive ratio" or of the peculiar functions of proteins and carbo-hydrates in cattle feed.

He can tell, within a square yard, where on his fields potatoes will produce best or clover "catch" naturally, but doesn't know or care what is the difference between a nitrate and a phosphate.

He knows with dreadful accuracy all the weak points in all his immediate neighbors, but knows absolutely nothing of the strange creatures who inhabit New York city or facist Italy.

His world is really made up of the objects which he can see, smell or handle. That small section he knows with some certainty. Of the almost inconceivably minute atoms and ions out of which matter is built, or of the almost infinitely remote nebulae billions upon billions of leagues away on the far frontiers of limitless space, he is atrociously ignorant. He can rehearse to you almost every freak of the weather since "the big drought of '64" but has literally no conception of the slow moving ages and eras of even the earth's comparatively short past.

Yet he doesn't hesitate to assume the role and function of arbiter of the universe. He sees a few square yards of it through his seven-by-nine window-pane and assumes that all the rest is like thereunto. He knows the secret of fertilization and tilth which his half-acre best responds to and prescribes the treatment for every other man's half-acre. He knows human nature as it is developed in me and various other close neighbors and reads it into all the remaining inhabitants of the globe. He has a home-made yardstick which measures his own height and the distance from woodshed to barn with reasonable accuracy. So he applies it to every other measurement on earth, and refuses to accept any which does not conform to it.

That's why, while everyone knows him as a perfectly safe man to do business with, everyone shuns him as a companion. He knows so very little and is yet so cocksure of everything that he arouses feelings of contempt in wiser and therefore humbler men, and of irritation in those equally ignorant and stubborn along different lines.

He knows a few things with an expert's certainty. And he thinks he knows a great many other things which, in reality, are not so. But, in his own mind, there is no distinction between the two. Instead of shaping his mind to the universe, he assumes that the universe must be shaped to his mind.—And if it won't conform, to the knout and the rack and the dungeon-cell! Nothing is too severe. No restraint too stringent, no punishment too cruel for those who [illegible] things as he does think, what he thinks, and do as he does. He demands that space and time and humanity all be crammed and stuffed into the straight-jacket his own limitations fashion.

He reminds me of the famous story of the unco' orthodox Scotchman who, returning from kirk, was gloomily explaining to his good wife his fears of the meenister's unsoundness in various points of creed. "But, Tammas," asked the woman, "don't ye think anybody will be saved but you and me?" "Aweel, Jean," he responded, "I sometimes hae me doots aboot ye."

Of course, not all farmers could sit for this picture. Thank Heaven for it! Perhaps not many. But any are too many. It doesn't take but one bad egg to spoil the baking.

The worst of it is that those who, like Neighbor Waterhouse, are convinced that they know it all, can't or won't keep their superwisdom to themselves, but seem to feel and act as if they were divinely commissioned to school-master the world. Which is liable to cause rivalries and heart-burnings, not to mention black eyes and life-long enmities.

It is only ignorance which is arrogant. The great scientist, to whom mysteries that seem undecipherable to us are as simple as A-B-C, is usually humbler and less dogmatic than his gardener who couldn't tell an ion from an ampere. The infinite ocean of the unknown which surrounds our little islet of the known is so vast, so overwhelming, so seemingly impenetrable that he who has pierced farthest into it is by just that gain in knowledge the more impressed with the immensity of his own ignorance. Viewing from the top of the little hill he has mounted the awful, sky-piercing peaks that tower over and beyond him, he appreciates all the more keenly how small his attainment really is.

Outside of the devotees of pure science, there are no men on earth who are daily brought closer to a sense of their own inadequacy and uncertainty than working farmers. Every day there is opened before them a new leaf in the great Book of Nature, written in a language foreign to them and with characters only two or three of which they know the value of. It would seem as if no other class of workmen should be so humble in their attitude towards the world-forces which batter and bang them and slam them regardlessly here or there in spite of their impotent struggles.

Yet here's Neighbor Waterhouse,—to come back again to a concrete example,—who, because he has found that wood ashes judiciously applied to his nine-acre meadow will bring in lush clover, at once and therefore condemns all farmers everywhere who won't use ashes as a fertiliser. Because he has found that hen-manure will grow bigger and earlier corn on his gravelly south lot, he denounces all farmers who fail to use hen-manure will grow bigger and earlier Bantam sweet-corn better than Country Gentleman, he thinks there ought to be a law passed prohibiting the growth and sale of white sweet corn.

Nor does he stop at purely farming conditions. The intolerance born of ignorance which feeds in that field produces a veritable herd of bigotries in other directions. Since his rough yard-stick measures his small section of his neighborhood, he demands that it be applied to the universe, and that all things be chopped and hewed according to it. Instead of cutting a coat to fit the form it is to clothe, he cuts the coat according to the cloth he has in hand, and expects to have the wearer elongated or amputated to fit the garment he produces.

He can't see why others don't agree with him in regard to every thing, whether material or mental or economic or spiritual.

Since he is sure that he is himself absolutely and infallibly right, he argues that those who are too wrong-headed to agree with him, voluntarily should be made to do so by law and force.

Assured that the path he has worn is the only right path, he can't see why others shouldn't be made to walk it for their own good.

In all of this he may be and often is indubitably honest. Which doesn't prevent him from stirring up more trouble than seven really wise men can find remedies for in a week of Sundays.

The wonder is, not that so many farmers should be stubborn and opinionated and "sot" like him, but that any farmer should ever get into that state.

It is assumed, of course, that you who are reading this are not of that kind. If you had been, you'd have thrown down the paper in disgust, long paragraphs back, and wondered why so ordinarily sensible a newspaper printed such "stuff and nonsense." On that assumption I'm emboldened to suggest a little rainy day game for you to try.

Get a sheet of note-paper and write down on it the things you actually know. Not the things you happen to believe or to have been told, but the things you absolutely know. Then go down to The Bulletin office and buy a roll of paper a mile long or so and set down on it some of the things you don't know.

I'll bet a good doughnut against a bad egg that you'll fill the last roll before you've used up all the first sheet.

Personally, I've never dared try it, for I am convinced there isn't paper enough made by all the pulp-mills of America to set forth a full statement of my own ignorance.

And, while courtesy requires me to concede that you are doubtless a leetle wiser than I am, the old Adam rises up to whisper: "Not so durn much, either!"

BERLIN DANCERS SHOW CHARLESTON MORE FAVOR

BERLIN, Sept. 3—(AP)—The Charleston is just beginning to assume proportions of a ballroom craze in Berlin one year after being imported from the United States.

The Dancing Masters' Association has announced that the reserve of dancers has at last been broken down and that by "Charlestoning" they no longer feel they are putting on an exhibition performance.

The Charleston is none too popular on the stage. Five hundred members of the Wandervoegel, a New Youth organization, recently precipitated a riot when they demanded that Miss Wicki Werkmeister be "thrown out" for doing the "heathen dance." Shouts "Do you call that art?" filled the theater. Scores of fist fights developed. Police stopped the show and cleared the theater.

FINEST VINTAGE WINES HUNGARY'S LIQUID "ASSETS"

BUDAPETST, Sept. 2 (AP)—Among Hungary's most valuable "liquid" assets, former Commissioner-General Jeremiah Smith found, were 10,000,000 bottles of the finest vintage wines, which the government was willing to sell at one-fourth their former prices. Among these were a million bottles of the finest Tokay wines, produced only in Hungary, which could have been bought for a dollar a bottle.

Before the war Hungary was a great wine-producing and consuming country. Its citizens drank freely of the delicate, amber-colored wine from the slopes of the famed Tokay mountains. But the great war brought an end to all this conviviality, and the average Hungarian is now content to drink beer or even plain water.

Graywing Gets His Way

Sometimes it seems to me a shame
There is so little in a name.
—Reddy Fox.

Really, I don't wonder Reddy feels that way about it. When things which are not at all alike are called by the same name, it is very confusing, to say the least. It seems sometimes as if some names have no meaning at all.

"What do you say, Neighbor Fox, to going with me to see that Sea Horse?" said Graywing the Gull.

Reddy looked interested, but he did not want to appear too anxious. "I've seen horses all my life," said he. "I wouldn't go around a sand dune to look at a horse unless it were dead. Then I might if I were hungry."

"You never have seen a horse like this one," said Graywing. "It lives in the sea and never comes out."

Reddy fairly snorted at this. "Don't try to stuff me, Mr. Gull," said he. "I wasn't born yesterday. A horse may be able to swim a little while in the sea, but he can't live there."

"This one can and does," replied Graywing confidently. "I told you this is a Sea Horse."

"Sea Horse or land horse, a horse is a horse, and you needn't try to tell me that there is any horse that can live in water all the time," retorted Reddy.

"Well, have it your own way," said Graywing. "I know where there is a Sea Horse and that Sea Horse is very much alive. If you don't want to see him, he isn't going to feel bad about it. I'm going over to see him again before he swims away, and if you would like to go along, I should be glad to have you. He is, by the way, the only horse I know of without legs."

Once more those sharp ears of Reddy's were cocked up. "Say Mr. Gull, what are you talking about?" said he. "There was never in the wide world a horse without legs. I begin to think you don't know what a horse is. A horse has four legs and he knows how to use them. Without them he would be helpless."

"This one isn't," retorted Graywing. "I don't believe he would know what to do with legs if he had them."

"I suppose you'll be saying that he hasn't got any tail," sneered Reddy.

"Oh, no, I wouldn't say that," replied Graywing. "He has a tail, and a very useful tail it is."

"I suppose he uses it to switch off flies," said Reddy in a rather disagreeable way.

"No," said Graywing, still good naturedly, "there are no flies on this horse. He uses his tail to hang onto things with."

Reddy could stand no more. "Come on!" he barked. "Come on! Show me that horse. I want to see a horse that hasn't any legs and uses his tail to hang onto things with and lives in the sea. I want to see a horse of that kind. Come on!"

Graywing spread his wings and sailed down along the beach toward some quiet little tidepools. Reddy followed, and Reddy was grinning. "That fellow doesn't know what a horse is," he kept saying over and over. "A horse without legs! The idea!"

SUPREME COURT ACTS AS STATES' ARBITER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2—(AP)—The dual form of the American government, with the nation and the state sovereign, under the constitution in their spheres, is causing much of the litigation reaching the supreme court.

Sitting as the final arbiter in the disputes between the sovereigns, and interpreting their laws, the tribunal, presiding over the destinies of 49 independent states and the union, has been called the original world court of a league of states.

Many of the controversies the justices are called upon to settle are of intense gravity, and would be the cause for war between independent nations.

In addition to the original cases brought by the states, at this time mostly boundary disputes, the supreme court now has upon its docket a large number of attacks upon the constitutionality of state laws. The more important of those challenging the validity of state laws on general subjects are:

Criminal syndicalism laws in cases from California, Kansas and Michigan; state daylight savings laws; in a case from Massachusetts; regulation of foreign language schools by Hawaii; zoning laws from Euclid, Ohio and Terrace park, Ohio; regulation of minimum wages in a case from Arkansas; right of states to regulate the equipment of railroad locomotives used in interstate commerce, in cases from Georgia and Wisconsin; whether the Interstate Commerce commission can regulate a railroad owned by California; the right of Texas to require railroads to maintain division headquarters at designated places.

Others are: The right of Kentucky to require railroads to furnish patented live poultry cars; the validity of the Texas law prohibiting negroes from voting at democratic primaries; the New York law regulating the sale of theater tickets by scalpers; the regulation of interest rates by Nebraska; the laws of Maine, Ohio and Wisconsin requiring insurance companies to place insurance upon property through resident agents; the Oregon law prohibiting insurance companies from indemnifying insurance companies against loss through seizure and confiscation by state officers of machines being purchased on instalment payments; the Ohio law requiring women prisoners to be sent to the Marysville reformatory; the right of Conecticut to cancel physicians licenses on ground of fraud, and the validity of the act creating the board of park commissioners for Waterbury, Conn.

The difference between fame and notoriety is that notoriety generally lasts longer.

SCIENTIST ADVANCES NEW THEORY FOR FINDING ORE

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 2 (AP)—A University of Minnesota scientist believes his theories of the way metal ores are deposited in the ground and the places where they may be found, will become accepted as law in geologic science. He is Dr. W. H. Emmons, head of the department of geology.

The theories which Dr. Emmons has worked out during 20 years of research, have attracted so much attention that he has been asked to explain them before the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers and the Society of Economic Geology, both meeting in New York next winter.

"Complete mineral veins are originally formed," Dr. Emmons said, "by hot water bubbling up from inside the earth along the face of underground masses of hot rock pushing toward the surface. These hot springs contain various metals in solution which are deposited along the course of the stream of water in the inverse order of their solubility.

"Thus the metal that is least soluble will be deposited first and will be found near the bottom of a vein."

Magnesia Best for Your Indigestion

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

A white robin with pink eyes was saved from the attacks of crows by Mrs. C. J. Greenfield, of Oil City, Pa. The robin was one of four hatched by normal parents. When it attempted to learn to fly it was attacked by a group of crows. Mrs. Greenfield took the baby white robin into her home where she intends to keep it until it is strong enough to fight its own battles.

Linemen left Brunswick, Me., to repair damage done to the telegraph lines when a moose contested the right of way at South Warren with locomotive No. 235 attached to a westbound train. The moose came off second best in the bout, being tossed to the side of the track, hitting a telegraph pole, which was broken off and brought down all the wires as it fell. The moose scrambled to its feet and limped off into the woods. The train crew pursued the animal for a short distance, but it was too fast of foot, despite its injury.

Registration in 913 colleges, universities, and professional schools of the United States increased nearly six times as rapidly as population in the 24 years from 1890 to 1924. From 121,942 in 1890 the number of students in these institutions mounted to 664,266 in 1924, a growth of 445 per cent, as shown by statistics compiled by the interior department bureau of education. During the same period enrollment in secondary schools increased 951 per cent, about twelve times as rapidly as general population, which increased 78 per cent during this time. Corresponding increase appears in teaching personnel. The number of professors and teachers in colleges, universities, and professional schools of the country, exclusive of instructors engaged in preparatory departments, jumped during this time from 1,762 to 31,907.

WIDOWS AND WIDOWERS CLUB PLANS MEETING

ELYRIA, O., Sept. 2 (AP)—The lonely members of the Widows and Widowers club, an organization which grew from a small Elyria house gathering four years ago into a correspondence club of national scope, will lay down their pens in October and come to Elyria to get personally acquainted.

Mrs. Nellie B. Stull, grand president and founder, is arranging plans for the first convention.

"I never realized there was so much loneliness in the world," said Mrs. Stull, who has received hundreds of proposals herself since she started her match making enterprise by inviting Elyria's widows and widowers to her Third street home.

"I got the idea from some pathetic wallflower scenes at our local dances. I had a hobby and I fostered it. Then it grew like a snowball in a storm of publicity."

Of the 32 charter members all except Mrs. Stull have deserted the ranks through marriage.

She estimates the number of successful marriages she has promoted at 230 and she says she has more than 1,000 "lonely souls" corresponding at the present time.

WESTERLY

MILLION DOLLAR INCREASE IN TOWN PROPERTY VALUE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 2—Assessors Walter C. Hiscox, Howard E. Thorp and William Ledward, completed their tax assessment for the town of Westerly Thursday morning at 11 o'clock by affixing their signatures to the assessors' sheets when the totals for the year were determined by assistant town treasurer and collector, Miss Mary E. Quinlan. In this year's Westerly tax book will appear when printed some 800 more names than in the tax book of a year ago. The assessment was made as of June 15, 1926 at 12 o'clock, noon.

Valuation of land $4,296,350.00 in 1926; $3,988,050.00 in 1925; or a gain this year over last of $308,300.

Valuation of buildings and improvements $9,377,350.00 in 1926; $9,142,250 in 1925, a gain of $235,000 in spite of the burning of the Bliven Opera House, the Westerly Garage, etc., the increase being helped by the addition of the parochial school building and Westerly hospital.

Valuation of tangible personal estate $2,130,000 in 1926; $2,132,600 in 1925, or a loss of $2,600. This loss is accounted for to a great extent in the depreciation of the assessed valuation of automobiles, when even the original sale value or cost has taken a drop.

Valuation of intangible personal estate $4,871,700 in 1926; $4,500,800 in 1925, a gain of $370,900.

Total personal estate valuation $7,-001,700 in 1926; $6,633,400 in 1925, showing a gain of $368,300.

The total real estate plus the total personal estate valuations was found to be $20,675,900 in 1926; $19,763,700 in 1925 or a gain of $912,200.

With the exemptions from the above total valuation under the general laws and by vote of the Westerly town council on which is imposed a 15 mill tax the total tax to be collected for 1926 is $499,115.30. The 1925 tax to be collected was $393,774.20. Sewage tax to be collected in 1926 is $16,064.40 and in 1925 it was $15,675.61.

From the above figures it is shown that slightly more than fifteen thousand dollars in taxes over last year has been raised with which to pay the town's bills and that the total valuation of the town is increased a million to a present total of a little more than twenty and a half million dollars.

"CUTTING CORNERS" IN SWINE SANITATION REDUCES BENEFITS

Lack of thoroughness in using the modern system of swine sanitation results in a corresponding decline in its effectiveness. This assertion by the [illegible] department of agriculture is based on the experience of 150 [illegible] of whom followed [illegible] completely while others [illegible] point out that the complete method, however, is simple and easily followed and urge that it be used in full.

[illegible] farrowing pens and also washed sows before putting them into the pens raised 6.85 pigs per litter.

Owners who followed all of the practices mentioned and in addition put their pigs on fresh pastures during the suckling period raised an average of 8 pigs per litter. The last method is the complete method.

It thus appears that any "cutting of corners" in using the system of swine sanitation reduces its effectiveness considerably. Department officials point out that the complete method, however, is simple and easily followed and urge that it be used in full.

BAGGING THE CORN PLANT TO PRODUCE THE BIG YIELD

Nature's method of pollinating corn by broadcasting the pollen on the wind is not definite enough to suit the needs of plant breeders engaged in corn improvement. Hence the ordinary grocery paper bag has come into conspicuous use as an aid in this field of science. Placing a bag over the tassel of a particular plant, the breeder is able to obtain pollen that is uncontaminated by pollen from other plants and to transfer it to selected ear shoots, which also are guarded from stray pollen by being bagged.

It is estimated that more than 150,000 corn plants were hand pollinated this season by experts working for the United States department of agriculture and the state experiment stations. Modern corn breeding through such controlled pollination is yielding promising results.

One of the angles of corn breeding that rapidly is being taken up at various stations is the development of self-fertilized lines through hand pollination. It has been demonstrated that some crosses between two "selfed" lines will yield much more than the parent variety from which the "selfed" lines were developed. Work is being continued to locate these "selfed" lines that will give the maximum yield when crossed.

CARE OF LAYING HENS

Toward the end of the laying year, there is a tendency to neglect the old hens because the house has to be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected anyway within a few weeks. This practice of letting down on the care that has been maintained throughout the year is a great mistake, as egg prices constantly increase up to the latter part of November and the opportunities for making money out of egg sales are really better during the late summer and fall months than at any other time during the year. It would be well to go over the following list of requirements and see that all are lived up to:

Clean houses; freedom from red mites; ventilation; plenty of room; fresh water; dry mash before the birds; wet mash at noon—unless artificial light is being used—in which case it may not be necessary; heavy grain feeding at night; abundance of succulent green food.

REPAIRING AND REMODELLING OF POULTRY BUILDINGS

The late summer and fall is usually chosen as the time for repairing and remodelling. If this work happens to include putting in cement floors, the work should be done just as early as possible, as a cement floor laid late in the fall is very apt to result in a damp house for the entire winter. The surface of the cement should be made as nearly waterproof as possible, and the floor should pitch about four inches in 20 feet from back to front. This will help to keep the litter even, and prevent any water that may come in through the open front from working back. When laying a cement floor, allow for an automatic water fountain, as watering is the greatest single labor item on the farm.

If the house is remodelled, the depth should not be less than 20 feet. The pens may be approximately one and one-half times as long as they are deep, following the principles of the 20 by 30 Connecticut laying house. The general tendency at present is toward more open front in order to admit more direct sunshine. The front may be protected by cloth curtains, shutters, or Cel-o-glass curtains. Cloth and shutters give the best ventilation and admit direct sunshine, as they can be opened at any time when the sun is shining. Cel-o-glass may be used to advantage below the curtains or at each end of the pens where additional openings would cause trouble.

Doors in the front and at the end of each pen, as constructed in the 20 by 30 house, give protection from cold, admit sunshine, and provide excellent winter ventilation. Drop-boards should be constructed so as to draw out one foot, giving additional summer ventilation. Wire should be placed over the drop boards to prevent the spread of disease, make cleaning easier, and keep the eggs clean by keeping the hen's feet clean. Use 2-inch mesh wire and place it over the roosts rather than under.

House remodelling should be planned in advance so as to require a minimum amount of time between the old hens' and the pullets' seasons of production.

ROTATION OF CROPS AS VALUABLE AS USE OF FERTILIZERS

Crop rotation is a farm practice which may be used by the farmer to increase the productivity of his soils as effectively as the use of manure or commercial fertilizers, says the United States department of agriculture. Furthermore, crop rotation as ordinarily practiced does not entail any extra cost. The extra yield due to this practice is therefore a profit that may be credited the farmer's managerial ability.

A study of the long-continued soil-fertility experiments of this country and of England, made by the department, has brought out some important facts about crop rotation in its relation to soil productivity. These are discussed in Farmers' Bulletin 1475-F, just issued. In general, crop rotation has been found to be practically 95 per cent as effective as farm manure or complete fertilizers in maintaining the yields of wheat, corn, and oats, and about 90 per cent as effective as these fertilizers in increasing the yields of these three major crops. The beneficial effects of crop rotation do not impair the benefits derived from the use of fertilizers; so that when these two farm practices are combined the one practice adds to the benefits of the other.

For example, corn at the Missouri experiment station yielded 22.4 bushels per acre from cultivation alone. When corn was manured the yield was increased by 17.7 bushels, or to 27.1 bushels per acre; when it was grown in rotation with other crops the yield was increased by 15.1 bushels, or to 27.5 bushels per acre. However, when both manuring and rotation were practiced, the acre yield was increased by 25.3 or to a total of 57.7 bushels per acre.

Even more striking results than the above were recorded in trials at Urbana, Ill. In these experiments the use of fertilizers consisting of pulverized limestone, farm manure, and phosphate, was compared with a rotation of corn, oats, and clover. The average yield of corn obtained without the use of either rotation or fertilizers on this particular prairie soil in Illinois was 23.4 bushels per acre. The gain effected by rotation alone was practically three times that obtained from the use of fertilizers and lime, or 27.8 bushels due to rotation, and only 9.2 due to the fertilizers. The total increase from the use of both fertilizers and rotation was 44.2 bushels per acre, or 7.2 bushels greater than the sum of their separate increases. In other words, each practice when joined with the other gave better results than when used alone.

While rotations in different sections, in a given locality, or even on a single farm may differ, there are certain fundamental principles of crop rotation which have general application. These must be understood by the farmer if he is to put himself in a position to utilize the results that have been worked out by state experiment stations for his locality. The purpose of this bulletin is to acquaint the farmer with the basic principles of crop rotation and to stress the importance of the practice. In relation to farming

TO THE PUBLIC OF NORWICH:

It has come to my ears, that a report is being circulated in town to the effect that I am doing the kodak finishing for all the stores in the city taking in such work. I wish to warn you against believing any such report. My superior kodak finishing and service can only be procured at the following places in this city, viz:—Liggett Drug Co., Shetucket and Main streets; W. D. Ricker, West Main street; Hagerty's General Store, 34 Sherman street; John A. Johnson, ice cream parlor, 255 Central avenue, and at my studio, 328 Main street. Out of town depositories: Taftville Pharmacy, Taftville; E. J. Caron, Baltic; Rafael Soney, Plainfield; Fred Maynard, Jewett City; A. A. Sonneville, Danielson; E. T. Leonard, Occum, and Windham Pharmacy, Willimantic.

I wish to further state that I will not, under any consideration, add to the number of my stores in Norwich or any of the above mentioned towns because my superior workmanship and service has given me the bulk of the kodak business in these places and it is increasing daily.

I now leave you to guess, my dear public, the reason for the spreading of such an erroneous report.

Respectfully Yours,
HECTOR DESMARAIS,

ASHLAND CLUB SWIMMERS TO COMPETE AT BRISTOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 8—P. W. Chase has entered Roland Guillet, Mildred Mondor, Louise Seigal and Mary Laframboise to represent Ashland club in the diving contest at the State Fish and Game outing at Lake Compounce, Bristol, Saturday. The Laframboise girl is only ten. Emil King, who is a visitor at Albert Potter's, will enter the one-eighth mile swim contest.

Twenty-five men from Jewett City are planning to attend this event.

Jewett City Chapter, American Red Cross, is preparing to send twenty-five Christmas bags, in response to the annual call, as this chapter has done every year. The Red Cross is now issuing its final call to chapters throughout the country for bags for soldiers, sailors and marines stationed at distant posts. 36,000 bags will be needed this year. They will be sent to enlisted men on duty in the Philippines, China, Guam, Samoa, Hawaii, Alaska, the Canal Zone, Haiti, Porto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. Many of these men are without home ties, and the Christmas bags prepared by American Red Cross volunteer workers and sent to them constitute, in many cases, the only home touch that Christmas brings. The hundreds of letters received by the American Red Cross after every Christmas from men who have received these bags, testify to appreciations of the soldiers, sailors and marines for these little remembrances.

RECOVER JEWELRY STOLEN FROM CARDINAL DOUGHERTY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8—(AP)—Jewelry and bonds valued at approximately $50,000 stolen from the residence of Cardinal Dougherty Tuesday night, were recovered by police tonight. Police have arrested Lester Price, 21, of New York, who, their said, has confessed the robbery, and also Mitchel Novack, 28, of Washington, D. C., Price's chance acquaintance at the Central Y. M. C. A. where both lived for several days. Novack is held for questioning.

More than $18,000 worth of the booty, including the episcopal ring, lay for almost 24 hours in a paper and crate under the steps of a vacant Walnut street stone mansion, where it had been secreted.

Police said Price told them he gained entrance to the house early last night and opened the safe on the first floor after "monkeying with the handle for a while." He said he took the bonds and jewels to his room but later became frightened and took the jewels out to hide them. He kept the bonds under his pillow, he said, and today asked Novack how to dispose of them. Novack took them to a lawyer. The latter became suspicious and with the aid of a broken traced the bonds to Cardinal Dougherty. It was arranged later for Price and Novack to meet at the lawyer's office, and when they arrived they were arrested.

CONFESSED STRANGLING OF HIS 22-YEAR OLD WIFE

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Sept. 8—(AP)—Thomas Wagner, 32, who confessed yesterday that he strangled his 19 year old wife, today pleaded not guilty to a charge of first degree murder. He was held without bail for examination September 20.

The confession was made after Wagner personally had reported the slaying to the police. In his statement to them the young man told of having met his wife on the street and gotten her permission to visit her house. They had not been living together.

Once in his wife's flat, Wagner said he became angered at her warning that she would kill him if he did not stop bothering her. He then threw her on the bed and choked her to death.

Sheep's Blood for Men

Sheep's blood in a man's body! This statement, which sounds like the old incantations of witchcraft, may soon represent an accomplishment in the field of medicine. Prof. Yourévitch and Mlle. Teleguina of Prague, Czechoslovakia, have finished experiments that seem to show that when a human being loses a large amount of blood, so that transfusion is necessary, blood can be taken from animals and injected into the man's body to replenish the supply.

This has always been thought impossible. Indeed, transfusion heretofore has been possible only between certain human beings who happened to be in the same "blood group." The injection of animal blood into the human body has been considered impossible without death resulting. But the Czechoslovakian scientists have succeeded in "washing" the red corpuscles of the blood to be injected, and in this way the injection of sheep's blood. They suggest that the sheep's blood could also save human lives and furthermore that the blood could be bottled up and stored for an emergency, for a long time.

NATIONAL AIR MEET ATTRACTS 600 PLANES

CHICAGO, Sept. 2—(AP)—More than the first time in America night air "circuses" will be given during the National Air races to be held here September 4 to 16. A mass formation of approximately 600 airplanes, announced as the largest number ever in the air in a similar area, aerial warfare and parachute leaping are planned.

The races are part of the Sesquicentennial exposition program. They will include 20 events for a total of $30,000 in cash prizes and many trophies.

The opening event, the "On-to-the-Sesqui" race, will serve to assemble the contestants from all parts of the country. Entrants in this race may start at any time after August 24 and over any distance as long as they reach the Model Farms flying field, where the meet is to be held, by midnight of September 3. It is a contest to demonstrate the cross-country ability of commercial air craft and is open to any type of civilian plane. Army and navy airplanes are not eligible.

The race carries cash prizes of $4,000 and the winner also will receive the Sesqui-Centenial trophy.

Other events will include three races for light airplanes with engine piston displacement of 510 cubic inches or less. The first two of these races will be elimination contests, each with $1,250 in prizes. Pilots who gain a place in each race may compete in the third race for $2,000 in cash and the Aero club of Pennsylvania trophy.

There will be a contest for model airplanes, the motive power of which is restricted to twisted rubber bands. The plans must be launched by hand and the race is for duration of flight. Some of these diminutive models remain in the air ten minutes.

LURE OF HORSES SHOWN BY STABLES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2—(AP)—Forure of New York has developed one large business which is not on Broadway, and is not conected with the eye or stomach.

Horseback riding is related to the other pleasures of the city to an antidote to late suppers and irregular sleep by the men, and the fleshiness which is the fear of women who lead the very lives conducive to that condition.

The bridle paths in Central Park are the center for the sport. They wind through the trees and shrubbery and circle the reservoir by devious routes which make possible a long and varied ride in a limited area.

There are a surprisingly large number of persons, mostly business men, who take to the paths between five and six a. m. A popular supper club hostess recently attracted considerable attention by riding at that hour, which marked the end of her day, before retiring.

The location of the park, surrounded by congested districts and bounded on the southern end by fine apartments has necessitated unusual care in the erection and maintenance of the stables.

These are set between apartment houses, often being indistinguishable from other buildings to the casual passer-by, and they maintain a high degree of sanitation.

Many of the smaller stables board horses, much the same as the stable which once stood in each small town where the garage now is located. The fees range upward from $50 a month, and when the owner is unable to ride his horse for the day a groom will exercises it for an additional fee.

The upkeep of a horse is equal in the long run to that of a small car, with veterinary and other expenses, while saddle horses in New York cost from $350 to $500. A colt worth $50 in Kentucky attains this value when it has been taught to pace and canter. When taught the tricks of the ring and it becomes a show horse, its value is measured only by the desire and purse of the purchaser.

Numerous facilities have been provided for the equestrian who does not own a horse, the largest stable catering to this trade covering an acre of ground in the most fashionable section of Central Park west.

Other stables are clustered along the southern edge of the park, where rates range from $2.50 an hour up—considerably up.

These fees alone take horseback riding out of reach of the average person but they are only the beginning of expenses. Riding habits and incidental costs make the daily canter a real luxury, but the popularity of the sport attests the large number of persons of means in New York.

Another business which depends on riding is that of the blacksmith and quite a few smithys are maintained adjacent to the stables. In form and practice they are no different from the one described in Longfellow's poem.

The honest wholesomeness of DIETZ BAKING — still better in this new loaf

FORTY YEARS AGO some of the best bread makers in New England began buying Dietz Bread because they recognized in it the same scrupulous care which they gave to their own baking.

Father and son, the Dietz family has carried on the tradition of making fine bread.

And now at the Dolly Madison bakery, which he recently purchased and re-equipped, Mr. Walter Dietz is making the best bread he has ever made.

The same quality of ingredients you would use if you baked it in your own kitchen—but in flavor and texture the new Dietz Bread is even finer than you could make, because instead of just the one kind of flour you use at home, several fine flours are blended to give unvarying gluten strength and rich wheat nourishment.

Get Dietz Bread from your grocer today and enjoy Mr. Dietz's wonderful baking skill in the best bread he has ever made. Dolly Madison Baking Corp., Springfield, Mass.

WESTERN CONFERENCE STATIA SEAT 520,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 2(AP)—The pleas-400,000 regular seats and 120,000 is temporary stands will be available this fall to spectators of Western conference football games, an increase of some 50,000 over the seating capacity of 1925.

Enlargement of the University of Chicago stadium, Stagg field, and construction of a new stadium at Northwestern university are responsible for the greater capacity, and these projects bring the total investment now represented by the "Big Ten" stadia to $6,820,000.

Northwestern will have expended a million dollars on its new stadium when the 1926 season opens, and it will have a seating capacity of 40,000 which the expenditure of another million dollars will increase to 50,000 in completing the structure.

The University of Chicago has enlarged its seating facilities from 32,000 to 45,000, and the project now under way contemplates seats for 70,000 when finished.

Plans already drafted call for an additional expenditure of $3,500,000 on Big Ten arenas, the principal items of which are the additional million to be spent at Northwestern; the construction of a new field at the University of Michigan, where Ferry field, oldest gridiron in the conference, is serving its last year; and a $600,000 field at Iowa.

The largest stadium remains that of Ohio state, with permanent seats for 63,064, and an "overflow" capacity of 20,000 more. It also represents the largest investment, $1,800,000, which will be equalled by Illinois, however, when it finishes the great halls under its plant. The Illinois stadium seats 55,000, with temporary seats to accommodate 12,000 more.

The smallest stadium in the conference is the memorial edifice dedicated last fall at Indiana, with permanent seats for 21,742.

Delegates to the seventh annual convention of the Phi Beta fraternity in Hartford, voted to call a conference of national fraternities in New York to discuss plans for a fraternity council and to arrange for co-operation with schools in establishing better scholarship.

BLACK FAGIN IN NEW LONDON FINED FOR RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 3—A black Fagin came into the limelight today when Stanley O'Brien Roberts was in the police court charged with the crime of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen. He hasn't confessed on the goods either, for they were restored to the man from whom they were stolen, Max Goldstein, the operator of an army and navy store on Main street. The disclosure of the possession of the plunder was unexpected, for the police had worked on the case a couple of days and suspected boys had been under investigation. They were released as a hopeless case. Then Detective Shumanagh was brought into the case and succeeded in ferretting out the young criminals, colored boys, Charles Roberts and William Hall. They are on parole from the State School for Boys, and they are to go back to the State. The robbery was committed at midnight, the plunder consisting of two trunks, bags filled with clothing, shoes, shoes, etc. The boys proved themselves to be accomplished prevaricators and the stories they told secured for them temporary liberty. The following was so bold and the plunder so great in quantity, that Detective Shumanagh decided he would seek the criminals. He sought the suspected boys, for one of them was found to be wearing shoes that Goldstein claimed came from his stock. That was a pretty good clue to work on, and further pursued it. He accused the boys point blank and convinced them. They gave that information that would recover them, as they owned up to the crime. The boys had secreted the plunder, some of it in a dress shirts, a sweater, some pairs of shoes, sheep-lined coats and other goods in the attic of their home. When the father of the Roberts boy saw the plunder he insisted that the boys should go to the store and secure shoes that would fit. They returned but failed to secure the desired size. They were told the plunder belonged to Goldstein, which a journey over the rooftops was necessary. All of the plunder was recovered. It was the most robbery ever committed by boys of the age of those involved, and when Roberts did not appear in court today, his case was in accordance with custom. He was fined $50 and raised the bond to $1,000. The plunder was returned to Goldstein and the boys were put on the road to a return to school, where they will stay for a considerable number of years.

HEAD OF BIG CATHOLIC PARISH IS TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 3—Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, is confined to the rectory by illness, not, it is believed to be of a serious nature. The clergyman was stricken on the street last night while on his way home. There is improvement today in the condition of the clergyman and his physician stated that he believed the improvement would continue and that Rev. Dr. Crowley would be in good health again within a few days.

Dr. Crowley, who has been indisposed for several days, but who has not been compelled to remain at the rectory, was returning home about 11 o'clock and had reached a point near the public library, corner of State and Huntington streets, when he experienced a dizzy turn. He fell against a fence and was found in a dazed condition by a pedestrian, who upon recognizing the clergyman, assisted him to the rectory. A physician was called and prescribed for Rev. Dr. Crowley, the patient responding quickly to treatment. This afternoon he was stated to be resting comfortably with improvement in his condition is expected.

NORWICH DRIVERS' CAR OVERSTAYED PARKING LIMIT

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 3—Although hundreds of drivers of automobiles have been penalized by being prosecuted in the police court and others released with warnings for violations of the automobile laws, particularly the city's laws on parking, over 25 drivers were summoned into court this afternoon, for violations. Many of the violators, however, were released with warning, particularly those drivers, who had not been detected as violators before and those who reside outside the city. One of the drivers held up was Nathan A. Bingham, 24 Oneco street, Norwich. He parked his automobile on Main street longer than is permitted and was ordered to present himself in the police court Friday morning. Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky instruct Desk Sergeant Timothy C. Sullivan to release Mr. Bingham and if he is wanted at a later date he can be summoned into court through the Norwich police.

New London newspapers were in hard luck this afternoon for both The Day and The Globe experienced mishaps during the midst of getting out their respective editions, parts of the mechanism of the presses breaking down and necessitating repairs. These were not completed until 8:30 o'clock, when the remainder of the editions were sent on the streets.

Patrolman Arthur Feeley was taken ill this evening and was compelled to report off duty and go to his home. Officer Feeley had not been well, yet went to the police station intending to perform duty, but his condition became such that he was compelled to give up.

Gustav Chapman, 66 Elm street, reported to the police that the automobile he was driving this afternoon collided with one of the traffic beacons and damaged it.

Philip Lauta, formerly of New London, now residing in Jersey City, N. J., is spending a few days with relatives in this city.

Augusta Visconi, residing at 185 Main street will be prosecuted in the police court tomorrow for violation of the liquor law. She is charged in two counts with interfering with the purpose of the government to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquor, also with keeping a place that is reputed generally where liquor can be obtained. The state police captured Augusta on the 20th inst., when the firemen of the state were here for a jollification. She has been on the way to court some time, but she did not appear, and will come up tomorrow.

Floyd Dewey will also come to trial for reckless operation of an automobile. He is understood to have run down a woman on Main street on the 31st of August.

Uncovering the Sphinx

The feet of the Sphinx are now on exhibition for the first time in 40 years. The Egyptian government has undertaken the herculean task of clearing away some of the mountain of sand that has drifted around the famous mystery of the Nile, and is filling in some rather alarming cracks with specially prepared cement.

Clearing away the sand around the Sphinx takes such an immease amount of labor that it was done only three times in the 19th century, the last time being in 1886. A regular army of natives is needed to remove sand by the basketful to a place far away so that it will not at once blow back and make their work useless. It is recorded by medieval travelers of long ago that sometimes only the head of the Sphinx has been visible over the shifting desert sands.

Even the man who admits that he caught only one fish may lie about its weight.

Six hundred and fifteen degrees will be conferred today at the 143rd convocation of the University of Chicago. The convocation orator will be Prof. Augustus R. Hatton of Western Reserve university.

Staten Island, N. Y., today will begin its own sesquicentennial celebration, culminating a week hence in a pageant depicting the historic conference held there September 11, 1776, between the British officers and representatives of the 13 colonies to discuss the possibilities of peace.

Broadway Theater

Unanimous approval and more favorable comments than have been heard in some weeks came from the capacity crowds that greeted the two performances at the Broadway theater yesterday.

Of the five Keith-Albee vaudeville acts Carlo De Angelo, the famous Italian character comedian, was the feature attraction. The Blanchards present the star with a cast of five Broadway artists in Lady Fair. Embellished with beautiful scenery, newest songs and dances and much comedy made this big time attraction what it was advertised to be—a real special offering.

The Garner Girls with their harmony and personality were splendid as the opening offering.

Fields and Bowman, two funny gentleman, started their Broadcasting station F. U. N. and did not let up on the laughs only with occasional songs.

Ed. Rodgers, the dark son of father joy, offered a singing and talking act that is as near a perfect model of this type as entertainment as could be imagined.

The closing offering came as a definite surprise to those who have been in the habit of "walking out" on the last number. Jack and Jessie Gibson in A Cycle of Smiles and Thrills easily succeeded in holding them in the last.

The photoplay teems with action, suspense, comedy and love interest featuring House Peters in Combat. Here is a show you should not miss.

Broadway Theater

A glowing love story, well acted, is always an event. Such is The Green Hat. Michael Arlen's brilliant dramatization of his best selling novel of the same name, to be seen at the Broadway theater, Friday evening only, Sept. 10.

There are few plays which pack the punch of this Arlen portrait of a phase of life that caused such a stir when he first revealed it between the pages of his book of the same name.

Iris March, the last of the mad Marches, finds herself the butt of suspicion because her husband falls from a window while on his honeymoon. Iris becomes a notorious woman or humor—but she always retains her overwhelming love for Napier Harpenden, whom she loved before she married.

Almost on the eve of Napier marrying a beautiful society girl, Iris comes to his apartment after 10 years' absence. She says she has come to claim her heritage, and, after sweeping aside the barriers raised by loyalty to the woman Napier is to marry, Iris gives herself to her former lover. The consequences of that act form the ending of a most unusual play, which deals with the raw materials of which life is made.

The Green Hat is too good to miss. Don't fail to see it.

A superb company has been chosen to present the play including Dorothy Overend, Geraldine Browning, Yvonne Dor, Margaret Temple, Rupert Lucas, Arthur Metcalf, W. Boyd Davis, and many others.

Mail orders with remittances are now being received.

Breed Theater

For colorful drama, high-powered action and beautiful scenic effects, The Silver Treasure, which opens a two-day engagement at the Breed theater today is said to be one of the finest pictures that have reached the screen this season. And why shouldn't it be? It was made from the novel, Nostromo, by that master of fiction, Joseph Conrad, and directed by Rowland V. Lee, whose genius created such photoplays as Haveo and As No Man Has Loved.

George O'Brien is seen in the leading role of The Silver Treasure and as the spirited romantic, two-fisted Nostromo, chief of the cargadores, he has a role that could not have suited him better had the celebrated Conrad written it for him.

The cast of The Silver Treasure is a distinguished one. Besides Mr. O'Brien it includes Lou Tellegen, who plays the leader of many villians, Hedda Hopper, known as the best-dressed woman on the screen and Helena D'Algy.

Coming to the Breed

"None but former doughboys need apply!"

That was the slogan of George Fitzmaurice when recruiting a battery of field artillery of infantry, which he used at United Studios for a wartime sequence in his screen version of the famous stage play, The Dark Angel. His entire young army was manned and officered by A. E. F. veterans, and a military atmosphere on the lot was complete.

Cullen Hez! Ttate, who assisted Fitzmaurice in the direction of The Dark Angel proved of immense value in the filming of the wartime sequence because of his own experience as an officer of the A. E. F.

PLEASING ATTRACTIONS AT N. L. COUNTY FAIR

Vaudeville of the highest type has been secured for the New London County fair on September 6, 7, and 8th. Culbertson's Roman Circus, the Aerial Yorkes and Frederick DoBell being the star attractions, not mentioning the daily balloon ascension and triple drop always a thrilling attraction for the old as well as the young.

Exhibits of blooded stock, prize poultry, mercantile, home and agricultural products give promise to be better than ever before. The automobile show on all three days is a feature well worth remembering and will probably draw a large crowd.

Labor day extras include the Better Baby contest for babies up to 18 months, prizes of bank accounts and cups to be awarded babies entered by 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Then there is the Licensed Dog show on Labor day, featuring a display of the best blooded canines in this part of the state. These attractions are in addition to the horse racing events, which will include one stake race each day.

For Tuesday's special the St. Joseph's Boy Scout band of Willimantic has been secured for a parade and concert. This band numbers 45 pieces and is directed by Prof. C. N. C. Wheeler of Willimantic. The band ranks high and is the New England champion Scout band.

Wednesday's feature is the athletic program under the direction of the Duwell A. A. of Norwich. This meet has the sanction of the A. A. U. and should bring to Norwich the best runners in the state. The boxing program for Wednesday is to be handled by the Nutmeg A. C. of New Haven. This feature is novel to the Norwich fair but bids to become a yearly feature.

Coming to the Breed

Ronald Colman, rightly called the screen's perfect lover, is booked for reappearance at the Breed theater Sunday, in the new Goldwyn-Fitzmaurice production, The Dark Angel. Vilma Banky, the European cinema star brought to this country recently by Samuel Goldwyn, has the leading feminine role.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Price movements in today's stock market were irregular and inconclusive, representing largely the readjustment of speculative accounts incidental to approach of every extended market holiday. Although about a score issues were bid up to their high levels during the day the net losses exceeded net gains of the few, due chiefly to an unusually large volume of realizing sales in the last hour.

Some improvement developed early in the session on a revival of unconfirmed rumors that most of the smaller federal reserve banks, particularly Philadelphia and Boston, would shortly increase their rediscount rates. However, such fears were allayed when an ease of money appeared in the week end money market as the renewal rate of 4 1-2 per cent as against 5 yesterday and the longer maturities were shaded from 5 to 4 7-8 per cent in the time money market. The New York Federal Reserve bank rediscount rate was unchanged at 4 per cent.

Considerable attention was attracted by the interview given by George F. Baker, veteran banker, on his return from Europe. [illegible] car loadings in the week ended Aug. 28, the latest for which figures are available, crossed the million mark for the 13th consecutive week and that steel shipments from Pittsburgh-Youngstown valley broke all records in August, with indications that September would set a new high figure. The monthly review of the National City bank called attention to prospects of record-breaking business this fall. The railroad shares were again in brisk demand, the average of 20 leading issues touching the highest level since 1913. Chesapeake & Ohio common and preferred, registered the highest quotations ever recorded, while Illinois Central common and preferred, Pere Marquette, Hocking Valley, Delaware & Hudson, Norfolk & Southern, Western Maryland second preferred and Western Pacific preferred all broke through their previous ... [illegible] new peak prices, being aided by the American Tobacco issues and tobacco products, and a renewed activity in the coppers on the theory that the proposed stabilization of French, Belgian and Italian currencies would be followed by an increased demand for the red metal, were among the few features in the industrial list. BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Lower call money, which remained all day at 4 1-2 per cent, giving evidence of an easing of the month-end credit situation, brought a moderate expansion in trading on the bond market today, but prices generally averaged a shade lower.

Several of the railroad liens continued active in keeping with the carrier stocks, and external European loans were stronger on the apparent efforts to stabilize the currencies of principal continental governments.

Delaware and Hudson convertible 5s continued the leader of the railroad group, rising for the third successive day to a new peak price at 122 1-2. Other strong railroad liens included Baltimore and Ohio first 5s, Chicago and Alton 3 1-2s, Denver and Rio Grande Western 5s, and Missouri-Kansas-Texas adjustment 5s and St. Louis-San Francisco income 6s.

Interest was sustained in the foreign bonds perhaps better than in any other section of the list. Italian 7s were brought in large volume at a slightly higher price apparently reflecting the good impression made by the government's announced purpose of reducing the floating internal debt. French and Belgian bonds generally were strong as were several German issues, including Rhinelbe Union 7s and German General Electric 6 1-2s. Mexican obligations pointed upward and Polish 8s were higher on a heavy turnover.

The domestic list was generally dull but those issues that showed activity were for the most part higher. Chicago City and Connecting Railway 5s were up three points, and Chicago Railways were one and a half higher. There was good buying of the coppers bonds, particularly Anaconda 6s and Chile 6s. Brooklyn Union Gas which had been active for the last few days turned weak on a moderately large turnover.

Trading in United States treasury obligations and liberty bonds tapered off but prices in the main remained firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Wheat underwent a sharp break in price today during the final hour, with May delivery touching the lowest level yet this season. A new bearish private estimate of the 1926 Canadian yield of wheat was largely responsible. Closing quotations on wheat were heavy, 2 to 3c net lower, corn 1 1-8 to 1 3-8c down, oats a shade to 3-8c off, and provisions at 5 to 50c decline.

The finish in the wheat market was at virtually the day's bottom figures. Heavy selling on the part of houses with eastern connections went hand in hand with the upset in values. According to the newest unofficial figures, Canadian prairie provinces this season will harvest 403,594,000 bushels, an amount more than 100,000,000 bushels in excess of some predictions current only two months ago. A forecast of better weather in Canada contributed to the late weakness of the market.

Corn and oats followed wheat prices downgrade, despite unfavorable growth conditions for corn and notwithstanding crop damage, advices relatives to oats.

COUGHING CHILDREN GIVE WARNING OF $10,000 STAFFORD SPRINGS FIRE

(Special to the Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Conn., Sept. 2—An exploding oil stove in an apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Costello on the second floor of the Bidorini block on Main street caused a serious fire this afternoon which gutted the building badly and damaged the fixtures and store supplies of the three stores on the first floor of the building. The most serious damage was by water, on the first floor and the front part of the upper story was gutted by the fire. An estimate of the damage to the building and [illegible] and furnitures in the stores below was placed at $9,000 or possibly $10,000 by Mr. Bidorini. The loss is covered by insurance.

The Stafford Springs fire department was not called until the fire had made sweeping headway, battling with the flames for an hour before the danger of the fire spreading further was past. Buildings on either side of the Bidorini block were not threatened as the brick walls and fireproof roof kept the fire from spreading but smoke and water did much damage to the upper floor in the rooms not charred or burned by the flames.

The [illegible] of Mrs. Costello, who were coughing in the hallway from the smoke, attracted the attention of Mrs. Bidorini who occupies the apartment next to Mrs. Costello. Mrs. Costello was apparently unable to give an alarm, and was standing in the hallway with the children when Mrs. Bidorini rushed downstairs to the Bidorini store and called the fire department. The explosion resulted in a swift spread of the flames and smoke which could be seen from Main street before the department was able to get to the building.

Three rooms on the upper floor of the building were completely wrecked by the fire and water and smoke damaged the others. On the first floor a large stock of flour just stored in the Bidorini store Wednesday, and most of the other groceries, were damaged by water, while water and smoke damaged the fixtures and kitchen of the lunchroom occupied by John Bourgeois. A pool room at the eastern end of the block was also badly damaged by water and smoke.

The damage to the building and to the stock of goods of Mr. Bidorini alone is estimated about $7,500 and the damage to the furniture of the Costellos and the fixtures and supplies in the pool room and restaurant will bring the total close to $10,000.

BANKERS INVITED TO ATTEND NATIONAL MEET

Local bankers have received a communication from Oscar Wells, president of the American Bankers association, calling attention to the importance of the convention of the organization which will be held Oct. 4 to 7 in Los Angeles, Cal. He says:

"[illegible] methods have been developed to quicken [illegible] circulation of [illegible] efforts of banks along [illegible] will be fully discussed at the convention. The rapid extension of [illegible] banking functions, such as those [illegible] to do with savings, fiduciary services and investments, by classes of banks formerly not engaged in these activities has created a need for more complete interchange of experience related to these subjects and [illegible] will be fully provided through [illegible] various technical discussions at the convention.

"The present is fraught with much interest among bankers in the subject of legislation and particularly federal legislation dealing with the extension of the charters of the twelve federal reserve banks, the control of branch banking, the equalizing of rights between national banks and state-chartered institutions, and the widening of the provisions for lending money on real estate under the laws governing the conduct of national banks. Bankers attending the annual conventions of the association are afforded splendid opportunities for knowing how other bankers regard these things. Also another question of prime importance to every banker is the growing movement for more equitable state taxation for banks and the discussions at the convention will [illegible] means to [illegible] end in your state.

"In the broader view of general business there is the problem of installment selling, the underlying conditions of business which have been subject [illegible] discussions and questions [illegible] the year and other equally important subjects which will add to the [illegible] of attendance this meeting."

Special convention and summer excursion railroad rates for the trip are available.

SEA SLED CORPORATION IS AGAIN ON BUSY TIME

[illegible] 150 men who were laid [illegible] annual August inventory period have been re-employed by the sea sled corporation with plants in Groton and Mystic, it was announced Thursday by Paul G. Zimmerman, manager of the Groton and Mystic plants. Both plants are now operating with forces totaling 125 men; 85 in Mystic and 40 in Groton. During August while the inventory was being taken, the force was cut down two-thirds, leaving only enough men to handle shipments.

Mr. Zimmerman said Thursday that on or about Nov. 1 the working force will be increased considerably to handle the production of sea sleds to meet orders from Florida. Each winter the Sea Sled Corp. places a number of its speedboats in the southern state. In order to keep up production [illegible] to have from 125 to 130 employes at the Mystic plant and from 60 to 70 employes at the Groton plant.

In the past few months considerable change has been made in the plant at Mystic. These changes consist entirely of rearrangement of machinery in the buildings to facilitate the handling and working of materials.

At present the production average of both plants is three boats a week, but with the increased orders anticipated for the winter months, it is expected that the average of production will be nearly doubled.

Bedwell avenue will not be completed before the middle of the month as delays in shipments for final materials, especially rock, has caused a delay in the construction work.

Lafayette street will be completed within a few days now and open to traffic. This [illegible] runs from Washington street to the Williams street intersection where it meets the gravel road and to the east. The new road has been inspected by Selectmen William S. Murray.

AUTO KNOCKED ASHES FROM SMOKER'S CIGAR

A popular Franklin street business man demonstrated one day this week that an automobile can be driven with such accuracy that it is possible to knock off the ashes of a cigar held in the mouth without damaging the remaining portion of the weed. The demonstration took place at Broadway corner when the business man strolled across the street against the traffic signal. An automobile coming down Broadway, at a slow speed, clipped about two inches of ash off the end of the man's cigar but did not injure the owner. A glance at the beacon showed the man why he had run into that surprise and he ducked around the following automobile and made for the sidewalk and safety.

Mr. Berenson also was appointed a ... in equity for a subsidiary ... pany, the Investment Banking ... with offices here. Both ... joined in a petition to Fed- ... Mack for the appointment.

The assets were stated to be $9,636,- ... and the liabilities at $6,915,324.

The equity action claims that on ... 1st, the Miller company entered ... contract with the Park Avenue ... corporation obligating itself to pay $5,- ... in installments. The payments ... $30,000 due on August 6 was not ... and, according to the papers, this ... default caused the corporation to curtail the building operations and delay the completion of the building for a ... period.

The company was organized in Miami, Florida, in 1909, by G. L. Miller, its former president.

It specialized in the underwriting ... bonding of first mortgage bonds ... on improved real estate, such ... buildings, apartment houses, ... and apartment hotels.

The company maintained twenty of- ... and in addition had more than 500 ... agencies and banking connections ap- ... for the distribution of its ... in every state in the union and ... foreign countries.

LICENSE IN STATE HAS BEEN INDEFINITELY SUSPENDED

HARTFORD, Sept. 3—(AP)—The li- cense of G. L. Miller and company of New York, dealers in real estate mort- gage bonds, for sale of its securities in this state has been indefinitely suspended, pending investigation of the company's affairs, Bank Commis- sioner John B. Byrne said today.

While the national business of the company in loans amounts to about $50,000,000 Commissioner Byrne says that his investigations thus far show that few Connecticut investors have purchased bonds through the com- pany.

Commissioner Byrne began investi- gation of the company's affairs sever- al weeks ago, as did authorities in Pennsylvania and New York. Since that time the company has endeavor- ed to retrench and liquidate loans. Consideration has been given by one or more New York real estate bond firms to assistance for Miller and company, if its affairs can be straight- ened out and the business taken over without loss.

It is thought here that the closing of the Hartford office was brought about because of the company's plan of retrenchment. Investment brokers of the city agree with the bank com- missioner's opinion that sales of bonds by the company in this state were not large.

The revoking of the license of Mil- ler and company in this state follows similar action in Pennsylvania by the bureau of securities at Harrisburg.

NOW READY TO TEST THE GIANT BIPLANE S-35

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP) — The ... of peace settled down today over ... giant biplane S-35 and brought ... unity among the men interested in its ... projected non-stop trans-Atlantic ... flight.

Captain Homer Berry, whose claim to the right to be included in the ... crew personnel had caused dissension ... that threatened to disrupt the flight, ... has withdrew his claim. After ... and a talk with Captain Rene Fonck, ... French ace designated as leader of the flight, they embraced and the contro- ... versy was considered ended.

It was expected that tests of the ... plane, including a cross-country flight ... to Washington and back, would not get ... under way without any further interrup- ... tion, except by possible weather con- ... ditions. Yesterday the Argonauts, Inc., promoters of the expedition, for- ... mally made Captain Fonck and Lieut. Allan P. Brody, U. S. N., to use the biplane ... pending settlement of the dispute. ... Lieut. Brody is the second pilot.

The flight is scheduled for the la- ... ter part of this month September 21 ... is fixed as a tentative date. It will ... be from New York to Paris, the ob- ... ject to win the Raymond Orteig prize ... of $25,000 for the first non-stop flight ... between the two cities.

Captain Berry who is a member of ... the Argonauts, had signed with Cap- ... tain Fonck an agreement which, the ... latter claimed, entitled him to go on ... the flight as a pilot. When Captain ... Fonck refused him a place in the crew, ... dissension arose, with the Argonauts ... supporting Captain Berry.

VLADIMAR HINZENBERG WAS BARRED FROM VILLA

Hinzenberg obtained a writ of habeas corpus for the girl at Baraboo, Wis., today, having started action after Miriam Noel Wright, the archi- tect's estranged wife, filed suit in Chicago for $100,000 against Mme. Milanoff, carging alienation of affec- tions. Hinzenberg charged that the child's mother was not a proper custo- dian for the girl.

William Billington, a caretaker, again stood guard at the gates as he did last June when his helped repulse Mrs. Wright's efforts to forcibly gain entrance to her husband's home. Bil- lington said neither Wright, Mme. Milanoff nor the child were at Talies- en. He and a young architect stu- dent were served with papers com- manding their appearance before E. F. Dithmar, circuit court commission- er at Baraboo.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS NOT EPIDEMIC IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Sept. 3—(AP)—While in two Massachusetts cities there has been an unusually high incidence of infantile paralysis this year, no epi- demic exists in this state, an official of the department of public health said tonight. Authorities in other New Eng- land states reported few cases of the disease in their jurisdictions, or none at all.

A canvass of the situation in the New England states following the deaths today of two sufferers from in- fantile paralysis in Westfield, Mass., and New Britain, Conn., revealed that most of the cases which have develop- ed in this area during the present year have been in the vicinity of Springfield and Worcester. Maine and New Hampshire reported no cases of the disease at the present time. In the latter state only one real case has been discovered this year. In Provi- dence, R. I., five cases have been re- ported, only three of which originated in Rhode Island. Vermont apparent- ly is free from the malady, and the Con- necticut statistics were not available here.

FORMER TOWN OFFICIALS HELD FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 3—(AP)— Two former town officials have been bound over for the September term of superior court in Grafton county on charges of embezzlement of town funds, they are F. W. Lewis, town clerk of Bethlehem from 1922 to 1925 and Willard McNamara, tax collector of Warren from 1920 to 1923. With their arrest and arraignment in mu- nicipal court it was disclosed that a shortage of $935 had been found in Lewis' books and discrepancies of $1,- 025 in the accounts of McNamara.

LONDON, Sept. 3—(AP)—The execu- tive officers of the Miners union de- cided to recommend to the congress of union delegates now in session that the executive be given full power to enter negotiations for settling the coal dispute and to agree upon a settlement should one be reached in a new con- ference.

ROME, Sept. 3—(AP)—Italy, it is of- ficially stated, has no intention of tak- ing the initiative in the Tangier ques- tion by summoning a conference at Genoa if the meeting suggested by Spain is not held in Switzerland. This country will continue to pursue an aloof but watchful attitude because she had no tangible interest in Tan- gier.

SMITH CHARGED WITH MURDER OF JOHN T. DERHAM

CANTERBURY, England, Sept. 3.— (AP)—Elphonse F. A. Smith, grandson of Hugh Ryan and Sir Frederick Smith, Canadian magnates, was charg- ed late tonight with the murder of John Thomas Derham at Smith's vil- la on August 12. He was committed for trial on a murder charge at the next assizes.

The pronouncement was given on the completion of the evidence at the arraignment of Smith, whose com- ment was: "I have nothing to say, ex- cept that I am not guilty."

Smith's counsel argued that the evi- dence did not warrant committal ex- cept for manslaughter.

Smith is a former officer of the Dragoon guards. He inherited great wealth from each of his grand uncles. Derham came of a well-known British family.

The case has in essence is the com- mon matrimonial triangle. The vic- tim it is alleged, was lured to the scene of his death by a false telegram sent in the woman's name by her hus- band. There is no eye-witness of the fatal shot except the wife who was not called on to give evidence. Her sister had seen the quarrel that had preceded the slaying but was in her own room upstairs when the fatal shot was fired. The death struggle of the two men in the drawing room was a fierce contest but the only independ- ent witness of the affray was a pass- ing stranger who observed it through a window.

When arrested Smith turned over to the police a letter which bore the possible construction that he had in- tended to commit suicide and his line of defense seems to be that in the struggle a bullet intended to end his own life killed Derham.

RHODE ISLAND TROOPER CAPTURED WIFE SLAYER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3—(AP)— Sergunino Mangello, 23, who shot and killed his wife, Fannie, 20, this morn- ing, was captured by Trooper Ber- nard Redman of the state police early this evening on the Fenner farm in Johnston, a mile from the scene of the shooting. Today was the first anniver- sary of the Manzellos' wedding.

Mangello shot his wife five times with a revovlver at 7:30 this morning when he went to visit her at the home of her parents, with whom she had been living since the separation of the young people in May. He drove her from the one-room cabin, stood in the doorway and shot her. The victim's mother slammed the door and knelt and prayed behind it afraid to go out for help.

The state police, notified an hour later, warned other police depart- ments and called in their men from Manville, where they had been on strike duty, to surround the area. Man- zello was tracked for half a mile with bloodhounds and was caught as he emerged from the deep woods to seek aid from an erstwhile farmer friend.

Manzello is under grand jury indict- ment for assault with a dangerous weapon on his father-in-law several months ago.

N. Y. Thugs Assault Bridgeport Tailors

Escaped, Although Shot Was Thrown About the City by Police.

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 3—(AP)—Four tailors employed by two cloak shops, that have been operating here for the past several weeks, were attacked by five men, believed to be New York gangsters, at two different points in the city between 6.30 and 7 o'clock.

One of the victims, Samuel Godof- sky, of 170 Read street, is in Bridge- port hospital with a possible fractured skull and a fractured ankle, while three others are confined to their homes with bruises and lacerations.

The gangsters escaped, although a net was thrown about the city by the police.

Those who were beaten besides Go- dofsky are: M. Cohen, alias A. B. Ent- zweig, 25, of 170 Read street; David Goldstein, 39, of 170 Read street; and Salmon Siegel, a roomer at 552 Stan- ley st. Siegel is employed by the Fa- vorite Cloak company, 453 Fairfield avenue and the other three are em- ployed by the Fairfield Cloak com- pany, 947 Hewitt street, near Con- necticut avenue.

At 7 o'clock, Seigel was on his way to work when a car bearing New York numbers believed to be the same ma- chine that figured in the East Side assault with the same occupants stop- ped abreast of him. Two of the five occupants jumped from the car with sawed-off pool cues and began to la- bor Seigel.

COURT SUSTAINS CLAIM OF STANLEY YALE BEACH

NEW YORK, Sept. 3—(AP)—The ap- pointment by a Connecticut court of a guardian for the person and property of Stanley Yale Beach, lineal descen- dant of William the Conqueror, first Norman king of England, was declar- ed a nullity today by Supreme Court Justice Churchill.

Beach brought suit last January to compel direct payment to him of the income from a trust fund established by his father. He said he wished to transfer his income to the woman who has been his mistress for nearly 20 years, and thereby give their 17-year- old daughter "as much as I can give my other three children."

Justice Churchill held that the Con- necticut courts have no jurisdiction over Beach, who is the grandson of Alfred E. Beach, founder of the Scien- tific American and descendent of Elihu Yale, founder of Yale university.

His wife, Mrs. Margaret Birdsey Beach, of Stamford, Conn., succeeded in having the probate court of Fair- field county, Conn., appoint the First National bank of Bridgeport as guard- ian-conservator of Beach, because of his alleged mental derangement and phy- sical infirmity.

Beach declared the conservator had refused to pay him unless he went to Connecticut, on the ground that he had been living for many years with Mrs. Caroline Watson and was the father of Her daughter, Marguerite.

Beach's aunt, Mrs. Jennie Beach Gasper co-trustee of the fund left him by his father, Frederick Converse Beach, brought action in behalf of her nephew to determine if she must pay his share to the conservator.

Beach contended that since he was not a Connecticut resident, the Con- necticut court had no jurisdiction over him and the appointment of a conser- vator was illegal.

FIRE IN NORTH BLOOMFIELD DESTROYED TOBACCO SHED

HARTFORD, Sept. 3—(AP)—Five hundred people watched fire destroy a tobacco shed owned by the Ameri- can Sumatra Tobacco company on Holcomb's plantation in North Bloom- field tonight. Fifteen acres of tobac- co in the process of curing were lost with the shed. The damage was $30,- 000 and is covered by insurance.

During the day fires had been kept burning in the shed to keep the leaves dry but they were extinguished in the evening. It is believed, however, that the fire started from embers. It had gained a big headway when it was discovered by a laborer on his way home.

INCREASE WAGE DEMAND BY HARTFORD MUSICIANS

HARTFORD, Sept. 4—(AP)—With a majority of the motion picture thea- tres of the city affected by a demand for a wage increase, members of the Musicians' union at a meeting last night rejected an offer of $53 this year and $51 next year offered by the managers and voted to ask $53 this year and $55 next year. The musicians had previously asked $56. Their present scale is $50 a week. Notice of their new demand was sent out to the man- agers early this morning. No strike is contemplated, the general opinion be- ing that the matter would be settled satisfactorily.

Pamphlet on the Life of Nathan Hale

HARTFORD, Sept. 3—(AP) Sketches and poetry on the life of Nathan Hale, copies of letters written by him, and suggestions for suitable exercises on the anniversary of his death, Septem- ber 22, have been collected and pub- lished in a pamphlet by the state de- partment of education. Copies will be sent to all schools in this state, and to patriotic societies and individuals upon request.

The pamphlet contains a cut of Cap- tain Nathan Hale, from the statue de- signed by Bela Lyon Pratt, which stands near Connecticut hall, Yale university. There is a short story of the life of Hale, by Dr. George Dud- ley Seymour, of New Haven, an ex- cerpt from an address on "Hale and Lincoln," by former Governor Sim- eon S. Baldwin, and poems by Judge Francis M. Finch, J. S. Babcock and John MacMullen.

The letter copies are those of Rich- ard Hale to his son Nathan, while the latter was at college, and letters from Nathan to Dr. Aeneas Munson at New Haven and to the proprietors of Union school, New London. The last is his resignation as a teacher to "accept a place allotted me in the ar- my."

Descriptions and locations of ten memorials to Hale, including statues, tablets and school houses in East Haddam and New London, are given. Twenty one books and sketches of the life of Hale are listed and the last page of the pamphlet is devoted to a description of the "martyrdom of Na- than Hale," by Dr. Seymour.

RHODY WINS FOURTH RACE STAR YACHT CHAMPIONSHIP

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP)—Rhody of the Narragansett bay fleet clinched the fourth official race of the international star yacht cham- pionship today finishing 37 seconds ahead of Dona Bertha. San Diego, Calif., boat, Ardara of Southport, Con- central Long Island sound craft, was third.

The victory today put the Narra- gansett bay boat in the lead in the point score with 39 while Ardara took second place with 35 points and Dona Bertha, third with 34.

The protest of 11 of 13 skippers who failed to start in yesterday's race due to a misunderstanding resulted in the international Star Yacht Racing association ordering the event to be re-sailed and the fifth and deciding race of the series will be held tomor- row.

Excellent weather prevailed over Long Island sound today and the 10- mile windward and leeward course was covered in two hours, 25 minutes, 13 seconds.

The first five boats are separated only by 10 points in the score and each is conceded a chance in the fin- al race tomorrow, although Rhody ruled a favorite.

U. S. NOT IN FAVOR OF RACE ON ARMAMENTS

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP) —The United States is not in favor of entering into any competitive race on armaments with any country in any department of military equipment, whether or not there is any treaty in relation to it of which the United States is a signatory, it was said to- day at the summer white house in be- half of President Coolidge.

Referring to press reports that Sec- retary Wilbur of the navy department had recently declared the United States would be first in naval aviation when the present air expansion program has been completed, officials said the presi- dent could see no conflict between such a statement and the efforts of Secretary Kellogg of the state depart- ment to obtain further agreements in the direction of arms limitation.

If there is no treaty specifically pro- viding for limitation of a certain branch of military defense, it was add- ed, the United States is merely left in the position of proceeding to do what it believes necessary in that par- ticular field for the national defense but without any particular regard as to what other countries may be doing in that field.

This country, it was emphasized, is not attempting to compete with any other nation in aviation.

WAR ON ALL TEACHERS WHO SMOKE CIGARETTES

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 3—(AP)—Mayor Ralph S. Bauer today declared war on cigarette smoking among Lynn school teachers, men or women, and an- nounced in a statement that they must make resolutions to give up the cigarette habit before the new year or be prepared to give up their posi- tions.

Who Wants to Live on Blubber?

One of the results of Stefansson's explorations in the "livable arctic" was establishment of the fact that it is quite possible to live in health upon an exclusive diet of blubber.

To this astonishing simplicity may all your tastes be reduced. But it would be retrogression of a most serious sort for humanity to revert to such simplicity.

In the arctic, where Eskimos live in a vast wasteland, there is no progress. Progress depends upon ideas—fresh impulses—the stimulus of changing desires. Our modern progress has been stimulated to the greatest degree by means of advertisements. Daily advertisements awake new desires; and desires, capable of fulfilment tend to diversify life, enrich it, and add considerably to its joyousness.

COOLIDGE CONFIDENT OF THE OUTCOME AT GENEVA

Believes the Nations That Are Members of the Permanent Court of International Justice Will Accept American Reservations—It Will Merely Place the United States on a Parity in the Court With the Nations That Are Members of the League of Nations.

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP) —President Coolidge is confident the nations that are members of the per- manent court of the international jus- tice will accept the American reserva- tions to the protocol of adherence and that their examination of the reserva- tions will show that the object is merely to place the United States on a parity in the court with the nations that are members of the league of nations.

Nations who are members of the world court and who also are members of the league of nations and have a seat in the council of the league, it was pointed out, have a veto power over advisory opinions the court may render, inasmuch as the unanimous consent of the council must be given for such an opinion.

The fifth American reservation, re- quiring the consent of the United States to be given for any advisory opinion touching any dispute or ques- tion in which this country has or claims an interest, it was said would merely place the United States in the same position as other countries be- fore the court.

When article five is studied and understood by the other nations, it was declared, the president believes they will see that it is entirely fair.

It is felt at the summer white house that the speedy action of the nations represented at Geneva in accepting the first four American reservations in- dicates little, if any, difficulty will be raised by the fifth.

L. OF N. COUNCIL HAD SESSION ON ROUTINE

GENEVA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Although the report of the commission which has been formulating a plan for re- organization of the league of nations council figures prominently on the agenda, this afternoon's session of the council did not discuss the report, de- voting the time to routine business.

The report, which was completed by the commission early today, recom- mends that only Germany be given a permanent council seat at the present time and that the number of non-permanent seats should be increased to nine. It is stipulated that Latin American states be given three of the non-permanent seats, while the hold- ers of three non-permanent seats be pronounced eligible for re-election at the expiration of their three-year term. These latter "semi-permanent" seats were decided upon to satisfy Spain, Poland and China, who are seeking permanent membership in the coun- cil.

Spain, whose aspirations for a per- manent council seat are denied in the commission's report, sent no repre- sentatives to the council table today. Senor Palacios, who has been fight- ing his country's battle in the reor- ganization commission, announced that he was leaving Geneva tomorrow to resume his residence at the Span- ish legation in Berne, where he will await instructions from Madrid.

Spanish circles here affirm that Spain will not be represented at the present sessions of the council and assembly, but they emphasize that this absence only constitutes absten- tion and no wise presages complete withdrawal from the league of nations activities.

Emil Vandervelde, Belgian foreign minister, at this afternoon's council session reported that "definite and valuable work" was done by the con- ference of representatives of new leagues, held under league auspices at Geneva on August 19, with a view to arranging a program for the pro- posed international press conference.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, and M. Briand, French foreign minister, during dis- cussion of the report of the perma- nent mandates commission, took occa- sion to chide that body for what they considered its tendency to develop an "inquisitorial spirit." This, they point- ed out, was evidenced by the handing out of questionnaires to the mandato- ry powers and the granting of audi- ences indiscriminately to petitioners from mandated territories without previous investigation to determine the good faith of the complaints.

The council will meet again tomor- row morning.

REPORTS SHOW COUNTRY IN PROSPEROUS CONDITION

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP) —Reports that have been made to President Coolidge by business and industrial leaders during his summer residence in the Adirondacks have demo- nstrated very well, in his opinion, that the country is in a prosperous condi- tion.

While no reference was made to the fall political campaign or to asser- tions by republican national party leaders that "prosperity" was to be the issue in the elections, officials empha- sized briefly but pointedly in behalf of Mr. Coolidge, the satisfaction he feels in the present general business, industrial and economic state of the country.

Recalling today the array of men who have called upon the president at the summer white house, officials pointed to automobile manufacturers, chain store merchants, electrical equipment manufacturers, railroad men and others who have told of generally excellent business and economic con- ditions, and said all bore witness to the same effect, that the country was prosperous.

His wife who had arrived by train was here to greet him with their baby daughter, Hildegard, who cried lustily while the crowd cheered her father.

Baby Hildegard is a husky little thing, with blue eyes like her mother. Mrs. Vierkoetter later requested the Associated Press to "send my con- gratulations to Miss Ederle. Tell her I'll meet her in a channel swim next year. I can't leave the baby now. She is being raised in a bathing suit. Why already she swims every morning—in the bathtub."

Vierkoetter was showered with flowers and wreaths and borne off by the crowd to the banquet of the swim- ming federation where many speeches laudatory of his feat were delivered.

AMBASSADOR SHEFFIELD IS NOT GOING TO RESIGN

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 3—(AP) —Reiteration was made at the sum- mer white house today in behalf of President Coolidge that James R. Sheffield, the American ambassador to Mexico, was not going to resign but would return to his post after a vaca- tion in this country.

Mr. Sheffield, it was said, for Presi- dent Coolidge, has discharged the duties of a difficult position with great ability.

Mr. Sheffield conferred with Secre- tary Kellogg of the state department at Washington upon his reutrn to this country on vacation, and then left for Atlantic City, N. J. He is to see Presi- dent Coolidge before his return to Mexico City, but no date has been fix- ed as yet for him, and it is not known whether he will come here late next week or wait until after Mr. Coolidge returns to Washington two weeks from now.

32 ELECTION OFFICIALS INDICTED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Sept. 3—(AP)—Thirty two Judges and clerks of election were in- dicted today by the third special grand jury to investigate crime and vote frauds in the April primaries in mak- ing its report the grand jury append- ed statistics indicating that in Cook county there were 1,240 murders from 1922 to the end of 1925 with seven hangings and that there were 236 mur- ders in the first eight months of 1926 with five executions.

Vote fraud indictments now total nearly 200. In its report the grand jury observed that candidates of the Crowe-Barrett faction of the republi- can party, headed by state's Attor- ney Crowe and C. B. Barrett, attor- ney, were in the majority as favored candidates in false returns.

NORWALK GROCER DEAD AS RESULT OF SHOOTING

NORWALK, Sept. 3—(AP)—Shot five times in the chest, abdomen and hips, Giocomo Bertino, 38, owner of a gro- cery store in Wood street, died in the Norwalk hospital tonight. His alleged slayer Rocco San Giovanni, owner of a restaurant in Mulvoy street, made his escape and is being sought by the police.

The shooting is thought by the po- lice to have resulted from a bootleg- ger's feud. The men became engaged in an argument at Wood and Mulvoy streets tonight and during the quarrel, San Giovanni pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired six shots at Ber- tino. One bullet entered the left side of the chest near the heart, two went through the abdomen and two through the hips.

After the shooting San Giovanni ran to his restaurant where he hid the gun in the cellar. He then made his escape. The gun was found later and is being held by the police.

VICTOR SWICHONE DIES— STRUCK BY CITY TRUCK

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 3.—Victor Swichone, alias Switzer, about 37, was fatally injured while at his work for the city street department, shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon, when run over by a two-ton Federal truck owned by the department and driven by Mike Yurszyak of 25 Brook street. The truck and two men, Swichone and Patrick Given, had been cleaning the gutters along Prospect street and working in an easterly direction, had reached a point near the head of Spruce street. The truck was headed down-grade following the right hand gutter when Given and Swichone were walking beside the truck. Suddenly the right front wheel of the truck mounted a cobble stone, estimated at about four inches in diameter, which had become loose and was lying some three feet from the curb. The truck was proceeding at walking pace in first gear but the shock of sliding off the stone threw the machine temporarily out of control so that it lunged against the curbstone. The right fender knocked Swichone down and the rear right wheel mounted his body near the right thigh and passed partly over the abdomen, as the man lay on his back. The truck driver brought his machine to a quick stop as the wheel rested on the man. With a cry of horror Given told him of what was happening and he backed the truck away. Given first aid treatment on the spot. Swichone was taken in the ambulance to St. Joseph's hospital, a short distance away. He died about half an hour later. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason was called and it is expected that an autopsy will be held. Meanwhile, Yurszyak is held under a technical charge of manslaughter. He was released under bonds of $5,000.

Street Superintendent Irvin M. Ford said that the piles of dirt being loaded on the truck were from 10 to 15 feet apart. An investigation was being conducted Friday afternoon by Officer Grant

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The possibility of work being started on the building of the Crystal Lake road within two weeks seems probable. The state this week purchased a gravel bank from Andrew Hansen of West Stafford, after a test showed that it contained the necessary percentage of stone. Other gravel banks nearer the proposed new state highway will be purchased later, according to statements made by men who are in touch with the state highways program.

Most of the heavy work of construction of the Crystal Lake road, the survey of which has been completed, will be gotten under way this month and next and the grading and filling in of places which are ordinarily very muddy during the spring will also be taken care of during the next few months. Machinery for this work will be moved from the Willington Hill road, as soon as the resurfacing of this highway has been completed. It is expected that actual work will commence on the Crystal Lake road by September 14th.

The highway, from Leonard's corner on the Rockville-Tolland road, to the West Stafford highway, is about eight miles, and will connect with the new state-aid highway now being constructed between Vernon and the Rockville-Tolland roadway, making the Crystal Lake road, in conjunction with the Vernon road, the shortest route possible from New York to Boston, which will mean a lessening of the traffic on the Hartford-Springfield road, and the Rockville-Somers highway. The route from Stafford Springs to Boston over the Stafford-Union highway will cut off several miles from the through route.

POETRY

The Vacationer

I'm going away! I'm going away!
But I'm coming back home again!
I don't have to stay where the tourists seek
The song of the sea or the mountain's peak;
I can come back home in a month or a week
To the ranks of the working men!

I'm going away . . . for the soul of me
Is a restless and craving thing!
The smell of the pines, the salt of the sea,
The whirr of a swift bird's wing,
The bark of the pallyhoo, the whirl
Of a racer dip . . . the romance
Of a moonlight stroll with the little Girl
I met at the hotel dance . . .

The mixing with life, and the flashing reel
Of Things as They Are! . . . the
Of freedom . . . the lifting dreams that steel
My veins . . . and the Recompense
Of joy as it flies! . . . The love that lies
In a rose, and scorns the thorn!
The still of a night with its thousand eyes,
The kiss of a dew-dript morn!

I'm going away! I'm going away!
I Dried the ink on my toiling pen!
I'm going away for a space, to find
A respite sweet from the grilling grind;
And when I have rested body and mind
I'm coming back home again . . .
I'm coming . . . back home . . . again!

—Henry Edward Warner, in Baltimore Sun.

Freedom of the Mind

High walls and huge the body may confine
And iron gates obstruct the prisoner's gaze,
And massive bolts may baffle his design,
And vigilant keepers watch his devious ways;
Yet scorns the immortal mind this base control!
No chains can bind it, and no cell inclose;
Swifter than light, it flies from pole to pole,
And, in a flash, from earth to heaven it goes!
It leaps from mount to mount—from vale to vale
It wanders, plucking honeyed fruits and flowers;
It visits home, to hear the fireside tale
Or in sweet converse pass the joyous hours.
'Tis up before the sun, roaming afar,
And, in its watches, wearies every star!

—William Lloyd Garrison.

A direct motor highway from Madrid to Valencia, Spain, 370 kilometers long and paved with cement to a width of twenty meters, is proposed by a company in Spain, according to Augustin W. This highway would cross three provinces and pass through or near a number of cities and towns, of which the most important are Toledo, Aranjues, Cuenca, Albacete and Chelva, crossing six rivers, whose power would be available for industrial services.

Sixty times a minute a new cigar sorting machine picks up a cigar, looks at it and selects the compartment where it belongs, according to the shade of its brown coloring. Mechanism then deposits it in the proper place. The new device, which is being utilized by several cigar manufacturers, is actuated by a photo-electric cell similar to those used in television. Light from the cigar falls on the sensitive alkali metal coating inside the cell, resulting in a shower of electrons which, properly controlled in an electric circuit, act on a relay circuit.

A special theatre for school children is being organized in Stockholm as an offset to the influence of the more commercial forms of entertainment. At the outset only matinees will be given at the Oscar theatre. Under the leadership of their teachers the pupils of the Stockholm schools, public as well as private, will form an organization, the membership fee in which will entitle each member to attend at a low cost a certain number of performances. Classical plays, high-class comedies and recitals by capable artists will make up the program. The idea is to train discriminating audiences, rather than amateur performers.

COULD NOT PUT ON HER SHOES

Mrs. Daugherty Was so Weak

In a little town of the Middle West, was a discouraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at her front door. Idly she turned the pages. Soon she was reading with quickened interest. The little booklet was filled with letters from women in conditions similar to hers who had found better health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I began taking the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to everyone I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1208 Orchard Ave., Muscatine, Iowa.

NORWICH TEACHER PRINCIPAL AT DAYVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 3.—Hundreds of pupils of the town of Killingly will troop back to their studies Tuesday morning, their long summer vacation at an end. Incident to the opening of the grammar schools in Danielson, Dayville, Goodyear, Attawaugan, Baltouville, the Center, Valley, East Killingly and South Killingly there are some changes in the teaching personnel.

At Dayville, Miss Rebecca Hollowell of Norwich will be in charge as principal. Miss Hollowell comes to this town with rich experience as a teacher, having been at a model school for several years in one of the state supervised towns near Norwich. Miss Hollowell's sister, Mrs. Charles Purdick, who taught at East Killingly last year, is transferred to the Dayville school.

At East Killingly, the teachers will be Miss Eunice L. Morey of Milford, Mass., a graduate of the Framingham Normal school, and Mrs. Aldenia Loomis, who recently completed her course at New Haven Normal school. Miss Helen P. Dixon of Plymouth, Mass., a graduate of Bridgewater Normal school, will be the teacher at the Valley school.

Mr. William L. Patnode, who is to be in charge of the school at South Killingly, is a graduate of Worcester Normal school and has been teaching for several years in the public schools of Hartford.

Miss Emily Davis of Danielson is to teach in the Brooklyn Center school, succeeding Mrs. Bertha G. Spaulding, who after several years of successful work has taken a year's leave of absence to recuperate her health. Miss Davis is a recent graduate of the Willimantic Normal school. Miss Elsie M. Parmenter of Wollaston, Mass., a recent graduate of Framingham Normal school, is to be one of the teachers at the East Brooklyn school.

With the changes mentioned the teaching staffs of the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn, which are under the same superintendent, will be about the same as last year. During the summer months several of the teachers have taken special courses at universities and summer schools.

In the Danielson graded school Miss Elizabeth R. Woodworth, a teacher of exceptional ability, will be the new principal. Miss Woodworth has been a teacher at this school for a term of years.

Seventh and eighth grade pupils of the Danielson and South Killingly schools will not begin their studies until the high school opens, probably on September 20. These pupils are to have class rooms in the enlarged high school building.

ACCEPTING OUR RESERVATIONS

Not a little significance is attached to the fact that the big powers are reported as taking the attitude that the reservations which have been set forth by this country in connection with adherence to the world court ought to be accepted under the belief that this country could be relied upon to do the right thing.

There are others which feel that an appeal should be sent to this country for a modification of the reservations so that this country would stand on the same ground as the others and not getting an advantage.

The chief trouble is found by the representatives of other nations at Geneva considering our reservation, with the fifth reservation with some question raised concerning the fourth. Apparently there is a desire on the part of many to obtain the support of the United States for the world court, even to the extent of accepting the reservations, either with the hope that their interpretation will be reasonable or that a modification can be obtained when a better understanding is had with this government as to how the other countries interpret them and of what is actually meant.

By what is finally done at Geneva there will be disclosed just how much ground there was for the claim that our adherence to the court was so much desired that the other countries were prepared to accept most anything in the way of reservations. If is only what was to be expected when the other nations scrutinize our reservations. It is necessary for them to accept or reject them and till they come to an understanding of what they mean they are not in a position to act.

We cannot overlook the feling that the assistance of this country is desired in this effort for an international court of justice. We stand in a position by ourselves since we are not in the league of nations and we are anxious to see accomplished the benefits which it is believed the world court would bring.

THE LINDBERGH-BERRY DISPUTE

There cannot fail to be regret over the difficulties which has arisen concerning the crew of the big Sikorsky biplane that is expected to be sent across the Atlantic this month. When Captain Rene Fonck, the prominent French ace, was chosen to guide the flight consideration was given to his skill and to his experience. What may have been said when he was secured concerning the crew has not been clearly established. Whether he was told that he could select his own crew, or whether nothing was said on that point remains to be cleared up.

Captain Berry has been closely identified with the movement to provide the funds for the Sikorsky biplane and have it flown over the Atlantic. He maintains that he is qualified to serve as an assistant pilot on that flight and that in consideration, in part at least, for his efforts, he has been promised such a place in the crew during the flight.

When Captain Fonck says Berry is not going and Captain Berry says that he is, there's a serious difference of opinion that needs to be adjusted. It discloses a state of affairs that ought not to prevail in connection with such an undertaking. It brings matters to the point of having it determined whose authority governs under such circumstances, whether it is Captain Fonck or the organization for whom he is working. And yet no organization could permit itself to jeopardize the flight by insisting upon unwarranted handicaps.

Whether it is any more than a school boy quarrel should be determined soon. It is unfortunate that any such developments should have been permitted and a clear understanding in the beginning regarding the picking of the crew would have avoided it.

There have been instances when similar disputes have arisen after the event was over without contributing anything of an elevating nature to the general public, and this affair promises nothing better. It would have been much better had it not arisen but it surely must be fixed up before the flight is undertaken.

DISTRESS AT HORTA

Sympathy is bound to be extended to any locality which suffers the effects of an earthquake or a series of such disturbances. And even more than sympathy is provided as is disclosed by the forwarding of material aid to the stricken people in the Azores. Fortunately the loss of life has not been as large as in some places, or has occurred in those islands, but Horta has nevertheless been given a severe blow from which it will encounter much trouble in recovering.

In islands of a volcanic origin it is probably no more than what is to be expected that there should be earthquakes, but the Azores have not experienced serious upheavals for many long years though just over 400 years ago Villa Franca with its 6000 people was wiped out. There were eruptions before and since but as there has been none since 1672 the people may have been justified in feeling secure from difficulties of that character.

Conditions in the islands are far different from what they were when Villa Franca was destroyed four centuries ago. The means of communicating with the outside world are not restricted to sailing vessels. What happened at Horta was quickly flashed by telegraph, possibly by radio, to other countries and it was not long before those organizations which are on their tiptoes to render assistance and relief under such circumstances were at work.

The destruction of property has been serious. The loss of life is about 25 but large numbers have been injured. There is not only need for food to tide over the situation but health conditions are already creating a serious menace. In addition conditions in the island are such that some time will probably elapse before the needed material can be obtained for the reconstruction of the homes. Clearly it is a case where much more than sympathy is needed and it is gratifying to know that no time is being lost in providing it. The world always has a keen desire to give assistance to those in distress.

A TIMELY SETTLEMENT

What had all the earmarks of developing into an ugly affair has been happily settled at Manville, R. I., by an agreement reached by the respective sides through the efforts of Governor Pothier.

Regardless of the merits of the dispute that resulted in the strike, they were quickly overshadowed by the clearly displayed disposition to cause trouble, endanger the lives of others and even, according to reports, desperate attempts to set fire to the mill property.

This developed a situation which was menacing. There was need for protection both for the public and for property and that appears to have been effectively provided though not until state police, special sheriffs and a detachment of the national guard had been called out for service, shots fired and barbed wire entanglements erected.

How thoroughly prepared Rhode Island was to see that adequate protection was maintained was disclosed in the declared attitude of the governor to the effect that the state militia would remain at Manville as long as their services were required.

When the decision was reached to call upon the governor to use his efforts to effect a settlement it was an excellent move. Both sides were apparently glad to welcome such a way out of the trouble. The adjustment means the early resumption of work and it must be recognized that the display of lawlessness was only a detrimental factor in the whole affair. Such a show of bad blood and a disregard for law and order invariably obstructs the real issues in dispute between employe and employer, but the same end should have been reached without the attempts at violence.

DAWES PLAN RESULTS

It is two years since the Dawes plan went into operation and Germany set out to meet the reparation requirements under it. It was welcomed at the time as the adjustment of a bad situation and as Germany has gone along under it there has been an appreciation of its benefits. It wasn't claimed to be a perfect plan, but it is getting results. Already Germany has paid $2,000,000,000 and of that sum, covering two years, more than $1,500,000,000 was in goods furnished to the several countries.

That the plan has worked so well must be attributed to the drafting of it to meet the conditions which existed and which must be met. Germany has of course obtained foreign loans to enable it to do business, but both it and the other countries must derive much satisfaction from the manner in which it is living up to its requirements. Germany is welcoming all possible chances to do business. It is extending the glad hand to the visitors and thanking them for coming, for buying and for seeing, but it thanks them even though there is no buying.

It has always been maintained that the first two years would not provide as great a test as the third. This is because there is a substantial increase in payments for the third year. But the aid which Germany needed to get back onto its feet, the stabilizing of its currency and the getting of it into the proper attitude for paying the reparations has unquestionably been furnished through the Dawes plan. The results have been so pleasing that the approach to the payments of the larger amounts is bound to be faced with more confidence. The excellence of the start should make the maintenance and increase of the momentum the easier.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

We are told that "a general scouring with vacuum cleaners and electric scrubbers of Westminster Abbey's interior has revealed marvelous decorations in gold and beautiful bright colors on wall and pillars which had for centuries been concealed under a cover of smoke and dust. A varnish believed to have been applied under the directions of Sir Christopher Wren, to preserve the colors of this work, undoubtedly served its purpose, but it also held the dirt and smoke." Is not this a good illustration of the general incorrectness of first impressions? We sometimes meet people for the first time with whom we are unfavorably impressed. There is a certain beauty of spirit that is concealed under a coating of dirt and smoke. Some unusual experience acts as a vacuum cleaner that removes their dinginess and we see the bright colors underneath. Many a royal soul is hid by the world's grime.

Is not mere bravado oftentime mistaken for real courage and natural shyness for cowardice? There is no mistaking the fact that a smooth tongue and a bold front will work wonders in certain places and with a certain type of people. In the aftermath of every war this is made prominent. The little Davids with their slings slay many a giant after the war with their mouths, and the amazing part of it is that they manage to get away with it—in certain quarters, and they know just where those quarters are. Secure from whizzing bullets in a country grocery store or at the city club they can make havoc of the enemy without fear of any bodily harm. On the other hand many a noble and brave spirit has been misjudged because of natural diffidence. The young fellow who only the other day lost his life in saving three children from drowning had been called a coward because he was so shy.

The shift of emphasis from one form of activity buries some trades and brings into existence others. Men who are now in middle life can easily remember when blacksmithing was a considerable trade. But if one travels far in any direction these days he will run across very few blacksmith's shops, but he will devoutly thank God that automobile repair shops are frequently in evidence. The word "stable" was often used 25 years ago but it has been pushed out of the dictionary by that modern conqueror, "garage." In some quarters the question is being raised is the summer hotel is not going to be put into the category of the dead. If one only watches the great traveled highways at this season of the year he will feel that the question is justified. The number of automobiles with camping outfits the year on those highways is simply incredible.

There is almost endless variety of ways and means of getting rest. A man's vocation in life determines in large measure what his avocation ought to be. There are some people who need far more vigorous vacations than others. It is much easier to get exercise than it is to find rest. Every person needs to practice the dead still exercises. "It is not every fool who knows how to use a rocking chair." To some it only means nervous depression but to others it is salvation. The poor woman who is worn "to a frazzle" with kitchen drudgery does not need the gale links, but a rocking chair. A normal person can trust his inclination for sort of vacation that he needs when he gets obsessed an agreeable environment, congenial companions, the vacation will not be a failure.

Another fundamental element of rest is change. If home conditions have made it impossible to get a vacation somewhere else, one can find some change at home, and in this there is rest. But the best results are secured by a change of place. It does us good to look at different mountains, hills, rivers, plains, forests cities even if they are no more attractive and beautiful than those we see most of the year. Is there not a certain charm in looking into the faces of strangers? Are we not benefitted in forming the acquaintance of kindred spirits? And we find them wherever we go—if we are looking for them. Along certain lines in this world we find just what we are looking for. It is certainly a luxury to strike out into territory that does not remind one of paved streets, brick walls and the din and strife of the market place; into those great open spaces that reminds one of infinity. Release from the usual activities is the real basis of a good vacation.

One often wonders what is the foundation of hero worship, and we all have it to a greater or less extent. And it is not to be denounced unless it is carried farther than the facts justify. How often are we informed by tablets that such and such houses were once visited by Washington. That makes the place neither better nor worse, and yet it pleases us to get the information, and we look at it twice. The writer spent a few weeks of August in the home town of Henry Wheeler Shaw, better known to the reading world as "Josh Billings," a popular humorist in the latter part of the last century. Josh Billings said many sage things that will live. Capital is made out of this fact in the little town. The house in which he lived once sheltered Henry Clay and President McKinley. There lies beaten pathway from the street to his grave in the village cemetery.

If one does not feel with the arrival of September a perfect frenzy for work do not think that the vacation has been a dismal failure. Remember that many months were required to make you feel that you really needed a vacation. If you plunge into work like a dynamo you will very likely peter out before winter. When you went away you were like an exhausted battery that needed re-charging, and if you know anything about batteries at all you know that they are not recharged in a moment. You also know that it is a process that cannot be rushed or hastened. It takes its own slow, even pace, and when it is fully charged it dispenses its power in the same slow even way. If you have been slowly building up strength during the vacation you will have reserve power to meet life's duties just as they come day after day. December ought to find you with a good battery.

One evidence that the month's release from toil has not been in vain is the satisfaction one feels in getting back. We doubtless get a good deal of pleasure when we shut our eyes and see again the kind people and beautiful scenery that the vacation has brought to our experience, but we get a good deal more when we open them and see the friends of many years again, and scenery fully as beautiful. When one walks through his own home after he returns he feels that it is the grandest place that God ever bestowed upon man and when he sits down to his own table he knows for a positive fact that his own wife is the best cook that ever graced this earth. How fine it is to go on to the street and have the cheerful fibbers tell him that he looks ten years younger—and he half believes it. At any rate he feels like throwing up his hat and shouting, "Hurrah for vacation and the aftermath!"

Every woman is a judge and jury unto her own husband.

WHERE AMERICA SPENDS MILLIONS FOR NUTS

A government agency states that nuts must be added to the list of supplies for which the United States is dependent upon the world.

Last year America bought for about $50,000,000 a half million tons of nuts or nut products, including chestnuts, walnuts, coconuts, and copra, palm nut oil and pecans, Brazil nuts, almonds, filberts and peanuts. The peanut, which is classified as a nut by the government, accounted for 36,000 tons.

"The nut tree has not been taken seriously by Americans until recent years," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"The Indian and the pioneer respected its gifts, but for many years a nut tree existed in America only to provide a happy outlet for the excess energy of small boys in the fall.

Nut Orchards Cut Imports

"America would be importing many more tons of nuts but for the fact that Americans have gone in for nut crops within the last 20 years. Pecan orchards have been planted in Florida and other southern states, walnut and almond orchards have been planted in California. The peanut, of course, is a new world native by birth, and a standby in Virginia and the south. Nevertheless America still must look abroad for nuts, especially those produced in the tropics.

"Where does America shop for nut meats? She goes to Tobago, Trinidad, Jamaica, the Philippines and South Seas for cocoanuts; she goes to Brazil for Brazil nuts and babassu nuts; to Lagos, Liberia, and Sierra Leone for palm nuts; to Italy and Spain for almonds, filberts and pignolia nuts; to Syria and Palestine for pistache nuts; and to France for English walnuts and chestnuts. Walnuts also come from China, Italy, Spain and Chile in some quantities.

On the Trail of the Elusive Walnut

"An American investigator went to the Orient to study the Chinese walnut industry. His experience throws light on the old sources of our nut meats. Shanghai, he knew, was the main shipping point for millions of pounds of walnut meats coming to the United States. Arriving there he called on the exporters and asked how to find the Chinese walnut orchards. No one knew. They came from the interior. That was enough for the exporters. But the American found a Chinese assistant who told him that the walnuts came from Tungchow, capital of Szechwan province.

"Tungchow, the American investigator said to himself when he reached Tungchow, there are no walnut trees in sight. But the word got out that an American was looking for walnuts and by the next morning a citizen who told him that the walnut trees were actually 100 miles farther on at Penchow. He obtained one of the last motor cars in Shansi province and started off for Penchow. The American reached his destination only to be informed that the walnut trees, as a matter of fact, were 25 miles farther on. Although the nuts were similar to the English walnut of California, the Penchow walnut tree is not found elsewhere in China. For one, the walnut tree is the 'aleurites' or the candle nut tree of the South Seas islands and into the valleys northeast of Peking. Did the Chinese, whose trees come from Persia like the English walnut trees, or are they native? That remains a plain mystery.

Six Tons Pressure to Crack This Nut

"In another part of the world tongues are wagging over a new and probably important development in the nut trade. Beside the northern tributaries of the sprawling Amazon grows a palm tree which produces the babassu nut. Probably the hardest grass imprecation for the phrase, 'a hard nut to crack.' Its spherical shell, about the size of a baseball, has been known to withstand six tons pressure! The prize for the strong man who can crack a babassu is a group of nut meats the size and shape of shelled Brazil nuts. Each nut meat will burn readily and can be used as a wickless candle. Babassu meat is 66 per cent oil, which is said to be the only nut oil that can be substituted for coconut oil. American inventors have been working busily on the problem of a portable nut cracker, capable of dealing with this tough nut right in its tropical home and rumor has it that inventors are on the eve of success. If they win, the babassu will probably join the Brazil nut as one of the most imporant exports of Brazil.

"To Americans must come much credit for putting nut growing on a business basis. The walnut orchard, the pecan orchard and the almond orchard are largely American institutions. Until this American idea came in nut trees were grown somewhat according to the Biblical plan when peace and plenty were achieved by every man dwelling 'under his vine and under his fig tree from Dan to Beersheba.' In Italy, in Spain, in China, in Anatolia, the peasant farmer felt surer of a livelihood if he dwelt under his own nut tree. Probably more than 80 per cent of the cultivated nut crop of the world comes from the peasants who own from one to five trees. Orchards are now becoming more common in Sorrento, Italy; Valencia and Alicante, Spain; Grenoble and Bordeaux, France; under the pressure of higher prices. For Spain the almond has definitely ceased to be a speciality crop. It takes highest rank among her exports to America.

The Coconut Puts Lather in Lather

"Almonds are grown all around the Mediterranean basin, but the United States gets her chief supplies from Italy and Spain. Anatolia, Syria, Greece and North Africa ship to northern Europe. The Orient also looks to the Mediterranean for almonds. Practically the entire Italian supply of shelled almonds goes to India where it is an essential to some of the famous Indian dishes.

"Recent exposures of cream dilution with coconut fat in New York city give some hint to the uses of the cocoanut. Its role as an edible nut is small compared to its sport in the modern industrial scheme as maker of oleomargarine, soap and salad oil and candles. It also is widely used in shaving cream manufacture to impart a lather-producing quality.

What Tin Cans Owe to Nuts

"An all-important nut which is not edible is the palm nut. The African Gold Coast ships thousands of tons annually to the United States for soap, candles, coloring for butter substitutes, heat resistant paints, shoe polish and for lubrication of cutting tools.

"The tin plate industry is one of the heaviest buyers of palm nuts. Palm oil is essential to the making of that necessity of modern civilization, the tin can. Thin sheet iron after being pass d into its bath of molten tin must be brought through palm oil, floating on the hot metal, when it emerges with its shiny tin coat."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Law Against Wild Carrot

Mr. Editor: Would like to draw attention to the fact that a weed called wild carrot, lace flower or birds' vest blossom is allowed to grow, seed and neighboring land become infested. I am informed there is a law that a fine of five dollars for each plant be imposed upon owners of land growing this weed. Why is the law not enforced? We farmers are trying to eradicate this weed, as it is poisonous to cattle and we think other property owners should be compelled to cut and burn this weed. We spend all kinds of public money to enforce the prohibition law why not give a little attention to other evils?

LILLIAN L. WILLIAMS.
Moosup, Sept. 2, 1926.

Every owner and possessor of lands shall cut down all wild carrots and Canada thistles growing thereon, or in the highway adjoining, so often as to prevent their going to seed; and upon failure so to do, any person aggrieved, or any citizen of the town wherein the lands are situated, may complain to any grand juror of said town, who shall thereupon forthwith notify such owner or possessor of such complaint; and said grand juror shall be paid for such service from the treasury of the town ten cents for each mile of travel in giving such notice. If said owner or possessor shall still neglect to comply with the provisions of this section, he shall be fined not more than five dollars, for each and every day of such neglect after said notice; and the expense of the grand juror who served the notice shall be included in the costs of the prosecution.

YOUR HEALTH

HOW TONSILS CAUSE DISEASE

By Elmer Hess, M. D., Erie, Pa.
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Focal infection means a spot in the human body which is infected with disease germs.

When this infection and its by-products can escape easily from the tissues of the body, there is little chance for damage to other parts of the body.

If these poisons can be thrown off at their source, the patient is usually not in danger. But if the foci of infection cannot be thrown off, the body tries to handle them to the best of its ability.

The blood picks up these poisons and the white blood cells try to destroy the germs. As a result of this battle between the germs and white blood cells, the kidneys are overtaxed.

If the kidneys cannot eliminate these poisons satisfactorily, and the blood becomes overwhelmed, then something happens in the other organs. The tissues or the body most susceptible to damaging influence from these poisons are the joints, the kidneys, the heart and blood vessel walls.

Besides the tonsils, the most common location for these foci of infection are located in the teeth, sinuses of the head, gall bladder, appendix, prostate gland in the male and Fallopian tubes in the female.

Today let's consider the tonsils. When healthy they are of no danger to the system. In childhood they retain and destroy much infection that otherwise would get into the system. But they are dangerous organs after they, themselves, become infected; because from them, often as a starting point, these serious general conditions arise.

Therefore, every diseased tonsil is a dangerous tonsil. It has been said, and rightfully so, seldom does one reach adult life with healthy tonsils. Does this mean that every tonsil in an adult should be removed? Not at all.

Many people are so strong that they build up defenses against these tonsils and it is therefore unnecessary to remove them. But when there is evidence that a focus of infection is working and damaging other vital organs in the body, the tonsil should be sacrificed immediately.

A great many people feel that as soon as the tonsils are removed they should be returned to good health. Unfortunately, such people do not realize that after the heart, kidneys and joints have been permanently damaged the removal of the tonsils will not restore the damaged, heart, kidneys and joints to normal.

Then they argue that if such is the case, why are tonsils removed? Simply this, the removal will prevent further damage though it will not restore the parts which have been damaged.

IN DAY'S NEWS

BREST - LITOVSK

American funds have been offered for the restoration of another war-ravaged European city—Brest-Litovsk, Poland, according to a news report from Warsaw.

Brest-Litovsk, which is famous for the separate treaty which representatives of Soviet Russia and Germany signed there, today consists of a fine railroad station and practically nothing more. Buildings which housed 50,000 people were laid waste and the large refugee population lives principally in caves and huts.

"Before the war Brest-Litovsk was one of Russia's most important trading centers and fortresses on her eastern borders," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"Complete restoration of Brest-Litovsk would mean recreating a city busy with buying, selling, carrying and transferring the products of a large agricultural region. Railways from Odessa, Kiev, Moscow, Warsaw, Vilna and East Prussia intersect at the lonesome new railroad station. But Brest-Litovsk is more than a rail center. It lies upon the inland waterway from the Baltic to the Black Sea. A canal east of the city connects the Mukhovets river and the Pripet river, which are, respectively, finger tips of waterway arms reaching from the north and south toward each other. Thus the city is served by a well-nigh perfect system of communication, extending in all directions.

"Brest-Litovsk lies 100 miles due east of Warsaw. Normally half its population was of Jewish blood, and it long has been a Jewish stronghold. It never developed an industry, but depended instead upon commerce. During the 16th century the synagogue of the city was regarded as the first in Europe.

"Grains, hides, soap, wheat and timber were the staples of its extensive trade. The lumber in which it dealt was floated in great rafts down to Danzig. Flax some of which went to Ireland and Belgium to make Irish and Flemish linen, was extensively grown in the country surrounding the town and formed another important article of its trade.

"The familiar geographic reason for the existence of a town, namely two rivers meeting, gives Brest-Litovsk its excuse for being. The navigable Bug and Mukhovets rivers join and at the point of confluence once stood the city fortress. Older fortifications were east of the city and covered four square miles. The defenses were the pride of Russia.

"But the World war showed what history had been reporting for years: that Brest-Litovsk was far from invulnerable. It was last mentioned in ancient documents on the occasion of its capture by a Polish monarch in 1706. Next Caesar, the Just of Poland built a fine castle. Princess or Gallician, Lithuania, grand masters of the Teutonic Knights, Tatar chieftains and kings of Poland held and stormed the city in turns and gained out from it gathered spoil from the countryside.

"All of Brest-Litovsk, however, records no such high moments as it experienced late in 1915. Things looked black for the Allies. Russia, which had been holding Germany on the east, had collapsed internally under the pressure of war. Kerensky, who still espoused the Allied cause, was soon displaced by the Soviet regime. Germany had driven deep into Russian territory. With this setting the last act of the Russian tragedy took place in Brest-Litovsk, which by that time had degenerated into a war camp and nothing more.

"At the headquarters of Prince Leopold of Bavaria, Soviet representatives signed a separate peace with Germany which put the entire burden of carrying on the war on England, France, the United States, Italy and their Allies."

EXTRA APPROPRIATIONS FOR $26,600 VOTED BY SPECIAL CITY MEETING

All the extra appropriations asked for were voted with little opposition in the special city meeting Friday night in the town hall, $19,000 for a cement roadway between the trolley tracks and two feet outside on West Thames street from High street to the city line, $3,600 for the police department and $4,000 for the fire department.

There were about 200 men and women in the hall when Mayor Milo R. Watrous called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock and City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read the call.

Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., presented the resolution for the West Thames street appropriation, explaining that it was the same thing that had been voted down in the annual city meeting in June, but since then a petition on the matter has been received. The question is whether it shall be done now or later on, he said, as it will have to be done for concrete is the only thing that will stand the wear. About $5,000 will come back from the Connecticut Co., so that the net cost to the city will be between $14,000 and $15,000.

John Woodmansee, a Thamesville resident, spoke for the appropriation, saying that ordinarily he would not stand for spending a single dollar more than had already been appropriated, but this was an absolute necessity. The street is in horrible condition and dangerous. This should have been voted before. The street has been patched too much already and it is throwing money away to do any more patching. The work should be done before frost, declared Mr. Woodmansee.

Albert Boardman opposed the appropriation, saying that it was an outrage to call this meeting within a few months of the annual city meeting. The people then thought they were spending all the money they ought to, said Mr. Boardman and he thought we ought not to spend this money now.

James P. Sheridan favored the appropriation, stating that temporary work was only wasting money. "Dangerous" is the word to describe the street, he said, and $14,000 should not stop us from making it safe. The state is doing a cement job, the finest in the state, from the city line to Mohegan hill and let us meet them. This condition in West Thames street is a positive detriment to the city. Let us get the work done before winter.

Mayor Waters requested Tyler D. Gay and Cornelius J. Downes to act as tellers in taking the vote, which had to be by ballot, and the result was 154 Yes and 25 No.

The police appropriation was next taken up. Corporation Counsel Shields presenting the motion for $3,600. He said that the police commissioners found that unless they curtailed police protection they would not be able to get through the year without a deficit.

Mayor Waters told the meeting that the finance committee of the common council had very carefully considered the estimates and cut them down to the least amount at which they could run the department and pay the bills and now they have received petitions for more police protection.

Alderman P. F. Sweeney, chairman of the police commissioners, had City Clerk Pullen read two petitions that had come to the police commissioners. One was from the Plaut-Cadden Co. and the other business firms for police duty on Main and Water street between Shetucket and Market street from 8 o'clock in the morning until relieved by an officer of the day force. The other petition was from Philip Raimondi and 27 others asking for the establishment of a police beat between the Point saloon and the city line in Greeneville.

Last year, said Alderman Sweeney the police department appropriation was stopped and there was an overdraft of approximately $1,000. This year a man had been placed in Taftville for three or four months as there was a petition from there because of holdups and women were afraid to go out on the street. This year, said the alderman, we asked for one extra man. The appropriation granted was $74,900, of which $71,525 is taken up by salaries, leaving $3,475 for general expenses. The work of the department cannot be carried on for this amount, he said, but there should be $5,000 outside the salaries.

This $3,600, said the alderman, will give us enough for one extra man. The pay of a policeman for a year is $2,067 in which there are 28 days off for which he receives pay, but the city has to put a man on and pay him on the days off for the regulars, so that it costs the city $2,216 per year for each policeman.

Miss Nancy Lucas inquired if the policemen were paid on their vacation days, saying she understood that it had been stated in the city meeting that they were not paid.

Alderman Sweeney replied that they were paid for vacation days and Mayor Waters said that his statement had been that policemen were not paid for days off on account of illness, no one man had been paid for lost time because of injuries, since the mayor thought the man was entitled to pay under the circumstances.

An inquiry from Mr. Boardman brought out the answer from Alderman Sweeney that the police pay increase began on June 16, and Chief Howard L. Stanton stated that the increase for the firemen began on July 1. This was because the fiscal year in the fire department ended on June 30.

The appropriation was declared passed when the vote showed 128 Yes, 15 No.

The appropriation of $4,000 for the fire department was next taken up on motion by Corporation Counsel Shields.

Mayor Waters stated that whatever he had said about paring down the amount needed for the police department applied equally to the fire department, declaring this was the most economically conducted department in Norwich and had the least overhead of any fire department anywhere.

Alfred G. Lillibridge, chairman of the fire commissioners, requested Chief Stanton to explain finance conditions in the department.

Chief Stanton responded by stating that the sum of $58,250 was asked by the department, the finance committee cut this $1,500, and the city meeting made the amount $56,750. Of this amount $52,450 is used in salaries, leaving $7,000 to $8,000 to run the department. It needs from $10,000 to $12,000 a year. There has been an increase in the cost of coal and several men have reached the maximum wage rate in the department. They were jumped from $4 to $5 when the pay increase which the people voted went into effect. We are the only department, said the chief which has charged our batteries with current stolen from the Connecticut Co. We knew it was dangerous but we kept on doing it until we decided to have a motor generator set. We were not to blame for the accident on July 4, but it cost us $300.

If this amount is not voted, one company will be closed, declared the chief. We will discharge enough men so as not to exceed our appropriations. Even if this is voted tonight, said the chief, I have already discharged one man to take effect Oct. 1. Our general expense fund is exhausted tonight.

Mr. Boardman asked why, if we have such an efficient fire department, we continue to pay high rates for insurance, to which the chief retorted: "I don't fix the rates. Men who know more about it than I do fix your rates. You pay according to your hazard and you'll probably continue to pay."

The vote was 106 to 59 in favor of making the appropriation.

The meeting then adjourned after voting to authorize the common council to borrow a sum not to exceed $26,000 to meet the appropriations that had been voted. Corporation Counsel Shields explained that this was the only way the city could secure the money. Eight citizens passed around in front of the desk to cast the ballots that carried the motion.

VETERAN RETIRED OFFICER REACHING 86TH BIRTHDAY

John Irish, veteran police officer, now retired, will quietly observe his 86th birthday Sunday at his home at No. 146 Laurel Hill avenue. Mr. Irish will be remembered by a host of friends in this city by a shower of postal cards and messages of congratulation. Owing to his health the birthday observance will be quietly observed this year but it will not be forgotten.

Mr. Irish is a native of North Stonington, having been born in that town on September 5, 1839 the son of Jedediah and Nancy Irish. During the Civil war he enlisted with the Boys in Blue and served throughout the campaign. He is adjutant of Selkwick post, No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, and takes much interest in all post activities.

JOHN IRISH

On January 1, 1786 Mr. Irish became a member of the Norwich police force, the department at that time numbering 20 patrolmen and four officers. In 1878 by a vote of the court of common council, the police force was cut from 24 to 11 men and Mr. Irish being among the youngest officers in years of service was among the 13 men dropped from the department. One year later however, he was reappointed to the force and continued to serve as police officer until his retirement on October 7, 1915 a little over 40 years of continuous service.

During his active years, Mr. Irish has been an ardent horticulturist, finding much pleasure and success in the cultivation of flowers and likewise was an enthusiastic fisherman who was always among the first to "wet his line" streams for trout on the first of April.

PLAINFIELD MAN WAS RESCUED FROM DROWNING

Becoming exhausted while in swimming at Ocean beach late Tuesday afternoon John Welcher of Plainfield, World war veteran, was rescued from drowning by two employes of the Rudd Bathing pavilion.

Welcher, a member of the Moosup American Legion, who was gassed in France during the war, swam out from the beach and was nearing the raft when his strength gave out. Thrashing cries for help attracted the attention of Frank Stewart and George Chapman engaged in painting on the pavilion, who securing a boat rowed around, hurriedly commandeered a canoe and put out to the stricken man's rescue.

They succeeded in getting the floundering swimmer aboard and beside him ashore. The war veteran suffered little from the experience although he had to be aided in dressing, after which he returned to his home.

TWO YOUTHS AT MOOSUP HAD GIRL FROM STATE SCHOOL

As the result of an investigation made in Moosup by Officer Dyer Russell, two West Warwick, R. I., men are in the custody of the police of that place, because of the association with a 16 year old girl, former inmate of the Oaklawn School for Girls, according to the Moosup Journal.

One of the young men with the girl arrived at the Moosup hotel about 2 a. m. Sunday and registered as Battey Evans of Pawtucket. Meantime the other young man remained in the machine at the door. Officer Russell, who had directed the couple to the hotel, suspected all was not right and upon investigation found that the men had left the young girl at the hotel, promising to return for her Sunday afternoon.

The girl's story was to the effect that she had escaped from the school about 1 a. m. Saturday and was hidden in the woods until Saturday evening, when the young men had picked her up. She was taken back to the school by Officer Russell and his wife Sunday; the officer reported the matter to the West Warwick police and from the description given they were able to make the arrests.

The men are likely to be charged with aiding the girl's escape from the institution, as well as other misconduct.

At an afternoon tea which was given at their home Thursday, Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Hill of Noank announced the engagement of their daughter, Constance Agnetta Hill, to Freeman Raymond Hathaway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joan F. Hathaway of South Orange, N. J. She then studied for a short time in Italy. For the past two years, Miss Hill has held the position of supervisor of art in the public school system in Oceanside, Long Island, and will resume her duties there this fall.

Mr. Hathaway attended New York university and spent two years in service during the World war, being stationed in New London during part of that time. He is now associated with a firm of insurance brokers in New York. The date for the wedding has not yet been announced.

PLAINFIELD MAN IS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Wilfred Sevigney, 44, of Plainfield is at the Backus hospital in a critical condition from injuries received Friday night about 9:30 when he was struck at Taftville by an automobile driven by its owner, Joseph Sluzinski, proprietor of a grocery store at 207 Central avenue.

Sevigney has several broken ribs, injury to his back and possible puncture of the lungs. His condition was recognized as critical when he was brought to the hospital and it had not improved up to an early hour this (Saturday) morning.

The accident happened on Norwich avenue about opposite Taffs Station. According to the report made by Sluzinski, the Plainfield man got out of a machine where a man was fixing a flat tire and started to cross the street. Sluzinski stated that Sevigney stepped back and forth in front of his car and then started to run across the street when he was hit and knocked over.

Sluzinski took the injured man to the hospital and then reported the accident at police headquarters. His machine had one headlight broken.

MARRIED IN PARKED CAR BY ROADSIDE AT NIGHT

Parked in a sedan by the roadside in Windsor Sunday night, Clifford E. Young of Rockwell street, West Hartford, and Miss Margaret E. Simpson of Windsor were married by Rev. E. M. Bassey, pastor of Windsor Locks Methodist church, with the public unaware of what was taking place. The couple decided to be married Sunday night. It was necessary for the clergyman, according to law to perform the ceremony in the town in which the license was issued. A license had been secured in Windsor several days earlier. Unable to locate a Windsor clergyman, it is said, the couple took Rev. Mr. Bassey in their car and drove to Windsor, where the ceremony was performed. After the wedding the officiating clergyman was taken to his home in Windsor Locks. Mr. and Mrs. Young are spending their honeymoon with the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Young, of Quambeg, near Stonington.

COMPLETING LAFAYETTE AND ASYLUM STREET WORK

Work on Lafayette street is expected to be completed in a few days and the street will be open to traffic. This piece of macadam is from the intersection of Washington street past the W. W. Backus hospital to the Williams street intersection, meeting at this point the tarred road laid by the city. The work is being done by Contractor Wilson and was recently inspected by First Selectman William S. Murray.

Men in the employ of the city street department today (Saturday) will put the final touches to Asylum street, by running the steamroller over the road and smoothing off the rough places, according to street Commissioner John C. Donovan.

LEGION MEN DISCUSS ARMISTICE DAY PLANS

Plans for Armistice Day were discussed at the meeting of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, held Friday night at the post rooms on Shetucket street with Commander Edward C. Dunbar in charge. The committee reported that work would be rushed on the German field piece received by the local post to prepare it for dedication exercises at the park on Armistice day, November 11.

Lengthy and interesting reports on the recent state convention at New Haven were given by the delegates, the reports showing that Norwich men were placed on several important state committees and also received honors in the selection of delegates to the national convention at Philadelphia in October.

A discussion took place relative to the Boost Norwich idea at the national convention and with the Norwich Chamber of Commerce sponsoring the idea the local post will probably carry something into the parade worthy of boosting Norwich. Other cities in the state have got behind the Legion in the "boost the home city campaign" and it is understood that not a few of them will provide the home boys with some sort of souvenir of the town, to be scattered about as the parade is in progress.

One of the important discussions was relative to the On to Paris drive for 1927, the International Legion convention being scheduled for France in that year. Past Commander Samuel Jennes was appointed chairman of the committee and it is expected that a number of Norwich Legionaires will make the trip back to the old battlefields of France. Publicity is to be secured relative to the cost of passage to and from Norwich and this is to be published for the benefit of any ex-service man who may desire to attend the convention, the necessary thing being that he become an enrolled Legion member prior to January 1st of 1927.

Plans were also discussed for the On to Philadelphia delegation, a number of members signifying their intentions of taking in at least one day of this convention.

Previous to the close of the meeting the subject of holding entertainments was brought up and put over until the following meeting, and the session closed in the usual form.

RIVERVIEW AND TAFTVILLE OPEN SERIES THIS AFTERNOON AT TAFTVILLE GROUNDS

The climax of the baseball season locally will be reached this week end when the Riverview club of the Norwich State hospital and the Taftville A. A. hook up in the first two games of their five game series. The first game will be played this afternoon at Taftville while the second game will be played at the state hospital diamond on Sunday afternoon.

Both Taftville and Riverview have been coming along at a fast clip during the season and the interest in both teams has been running high. Riverview has ruled a slight favorite but Taftville has been mounting almost even money during the past few weeks especially when the New Departure team of Meriden took two games from Riverview. These two defeats brought down the Riverview team a degree. Another thing that boosted Taftville's stock was the fact that Manager Troland will send in an Eastern league pitcher against his opponents.

Manager Zemke however according to rumor is taking no chances and has selected Jeremy Dwyer as mounds-man for his game today. This is simply rumor and it is possible that he will pitch West or Dugas instead of the collegian. Whoever pitches it is bound to be a real ball game for both teams will have a strong lineup in the field.

Manager Troland has benched a number of his regulars and has put in some of the best known players in the state. Tommy Sippy will be seen in the outfield and Jim Daley will be on short. For pitchers he has Berg, Buckland and Reynolds of the Providence Eastern league team, besides Lefty Jarvis. He is also keen for pitchers and it is quite likely that he will start Reynolds today's game and Berg or Jarvis in the game on Sunday. For Sunday Troland will play the short-field position. These players should add considerable strength to the Taftville outfit.

Riverview will also present a strong battery with Monk Normandin back of the bat with Rafus on second and Dugas at the initial sack. Jack Clarke will be seen in the outfield with either Lefty Dugas in right.

The lineups for today are:

Taftville—Reynolds, Berg or Buckland; Lindstrom, Cardin; Dr. Tom-linson, Dwyer ss; Yerrington 3b; Sippy lf; Lloyd Jarvis cf; Dona rf; Quinn-Dwyer, West or Dugas 1b; Bolduc ss; Harrell 1b; Rafus 2b; Hamilton ss; Liberty 3b; Mills rf; Moore or Clabby cf; Meyers, Dugas or Hamilton rf.

The game is called at 3:15.

The game Sunday at Riverview will be equally as good as today's battle and the fans are assured of two consecutive well worth seeing.

VELVETMEN CLASH WITH VALLEY FALLS ON SUNDAY

J. B. Martin faces one of the strongest teams of the season Sunday, when the J. B. Martin grounds when the Valley Falls nine of Rhode Island, comes with the locals. The Valley Falls club is rated as one of the top clubs of New England and has the reputation of having in its lineup one of the fastest players outside of organized ball.

This club has defeated some of the best teams in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut including the New Bedford Eagles, Fall River Collegians Bristol with the famous Ike Kennedy twirling against them Oysterville Cape Team, Checkerboards of Providence, New England and Ball Rovers and in fact have only been defeated three times this season. Manager Costigan is bringing with him the strongest lineup available. McDermott or "Pop" Lisky will do the backstop work with McDermott or Tierney on the mound. Furey will cover first, Samson or Monahan at second O'Connor will cover third, with Doyle at short. In the outfield will be Burke cf, Hackett lf, and Dugan rf.

The Velvetmen are out for revenge for being defeated the first game they played here and will lineup as follows: J. Murphy rf; E. Murphy 1b; Murphy 2b, DeCelles ss; F. Gley c; on the mound duty the manager has undecided who will take up the task but is out scouting and no doubt you get one that will make the fans from Valley Falls sit up and take notice. In the outfield will be Dugan rf, Krauss lf, and W. Gley cf. Extra, Pecora, Lemieux, Smith. Game to be called at 2:15 p. m. (D. S. T.) Simcox and Roy will officiate.

HARRISVILLE VS. MOOSUP ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The Moosup Town team will have their opponents on the Carpet grounds at Moosup on Sunday, the Harrisville A. A. which is classed as one of the fastest semi-pro teams in eastern Rhode Island.

Manager Riley, who has the Rhode Island boys in charge is well known in the section of Connecticut as a good judge of ball players and one of his hunches gives the fans a run for their money. The Moosup team has been greatly strengthened during the past month having won the last seven games played defeating Putnam, Danielson, Taftville Town team, and Pawtucket from Providence.

The lineup of both teams will be:

Harrisville—Dellay c; Riley, p; Arise 1b, Menard 2b; Archer or Ballou, Kirby ss, Manville lf; Fourner cf, Delcharne rf; St. Amant, Robiton or Vestenelli, utilities.

ATHLETICS DIVIDE DOUBLE PROGRAM WITH YANKS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Philadelphia split a twin program with the Yankees today annexing the opener by 7 to 2 and dropping the closing struggle by 7 to 4 after the New Yorkers came from behind with a five-run rally in the seventh. Babe Ruth banged his 41st circuit drive of the season off Lefty Grove in the fourth inning of the second game with none on base.

Although the Yankees gained an even break today, Cleveland's victory over Detroit shortened New York's lead in the pennant race for the one half games.

REACH DOUBLES FINALS WILLIAMS AND RICHARDS

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Brushing aside the opposition of Louis N. White and Louis Thalheimer, R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards today pressed on to the final round in defense of the National doubles championship they won here a year ago.

Although four sets were required to decide the contest at 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, the 1925 titleholders made no serious effort to settle down to the brilliant tennis of which they are capable, until the closing games of the match. Playing well within themselves, the Davis Cup pair dismissed glaring mistakes with grins and then promptly went out to repeat their offenses. A capacity gallery consequently drew few thrills from a match which was too loosely played on nbnontnh sides of the net to develop spirited forecourt play.

In sharp contrast to his brilliant trouncing of Wednesday when the champion crushed the French offensive of Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, Williams today was highly unreliable, both at the end and in the back court. Richards Borethe Burden of the attack with sufficient ease and assurance, however, as to present stubborn resistance to the defense of William T. Tilden and Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., in the final round tomorrow.

Williams repeatedly failed to save his own service games, a break by White and Thalheimer costing the final set, however, he tightened up and won the third set. In the second round, the champions sparring a sharp and determined forecourt battle into Texas territory to finish the match.

Exceeding the men's doubles encounter in thrills was a semi-final struggle in the national mixed doubles which tumbled the two American singles champions, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory and William T. Tilden, to a three set defeat. In both the second and third sets, Elizabeth Ryan and Jean Borotra broke through the service repertoire of Tilden to obtain their winning advantage, the battle being decided at 3—6-4, 6-2.

The victory gave the California player and her French partner the right to oppose Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston and Irene Lacoste of France in the final round match, after having gained their contest by defeating Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., and Henri Cochet of France, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

At the same time the closing matches in two other national competitions will be played; Nathaniel W. Niles, senior, and junior, of Boston, Charles D. M. and Malcolm Hall of Weston, Mass. for the father and son title, and the teams of Samuel Hardy-Walker Parr and A. J. Gore-Claude Hotchkiss looking for the national veterans honors.

Semi-finals in the father and son event were played today, with the Boston pair defeating F. L. Pearce and G. G. Pearce of Montreal, 6-4, 6-4, and the Hills eliminating C. P. Shaw, Sr., and Jr., of Providence, R. I., 6-2, 5-6.

ANNA BRADFORD'S GIRL TURNS IN FASTEST MILE OF SEASON

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Anna Bradford's gal, the racing mare from the Arden Homestead stable of Goshen, turned in the fastest mile of the year at the State fair grounds here this afternoon, winning the Syracuse hotel stake for 2:03 pacers. Walsh Will Dickerson in the sulky, the mare turned the second mile in 1:59 3-4, leading Skeeter W. Home by about 10 yards. The first quarter was clocked in 30 3-4; the second in 29 1-4, the third in 29 3-4; and the fourth in 29 seconds. Dickerson's speedster also won the first heat in 2:03 3-4.

Straight heat victories were recorded in the other three races on the Getaway day program. Belle McKlyo, owned by Fred K. Jones, of Philadelphia, took the 2:26, Pace over the mile and sixteenth route with Putnam driving. Belle McKlyo led throughout both heats.

Tommy Murphy, with Mike Dillon, made easy work of the 2:29 trot, reeling off both heats in 2:07 1-2. The 2:08 pace over the mile and a sixteenth, went to Norman Grattan, driven by Seth Plain. Palin's Gelding was the pacemaker in each heat.

ANDERSON WINS ON FOUL FROM RYAN

Anderson was pouring lefts and rights to the head when he sank to his knee in pain from a low blow, after two minutes and forty five seconds of fighting in the third round. Anderson weighed 129 1-2, Ryan 133 1-4.

Eddie O'Dowd, 129 pounds, of Columbus, was awarded a judge's decision over Murray Layton, 131 1-2 pounds, in a six-round preliminary on the same card.

BRILLIANT TENNIS MARKS OPENING ROUND OF EASTERN CONN. TOURNEY

Brilliant tennis but no upsets marked the six matches in the first round of the third annual eastern Connecticut tennis championships played on Friday afternoon at the Norwich Golf club courts. Although there were no upsets two of the favorites to reach the semi-finals were given stiff opposition and the matches carried to three sets.

The two three sets matches proved to be the feature matches of the day's play. In the first Joseph M. Lewin of New York was forced to three sets by John Gardner of Old Lyme, Gardner playing brilliantly so that he won 11 of the games from Lewin. The first set went to the New York player by a score of 6-4. But Gardner came through strong in the second set with a smashing service and evened the sets by taking the second 6-3. In the third set Lewin was forced to extend himself and took the set 6-4, but not without a fight.

In the second three-set match Alex Persons, Worcester county champion, of Worcester, playing a somewhat erratic game eliminated Wells Lyman of Montville, 6-1, 1-6, 6-3. Persons who is a left-hander was not up to his usual game which may be accounted by the fact that he took the courts without any warm-up after a drive from New York to Norwich. He had little difficulty in the first set which he won easily, Lyman taking but one game.

In the second set Lyman cleverly outplayed Persons both at the net and in the back-court game. Persons took things easy in this set and was apparently resting, taking a chance that he could come through in the third set which he did with ease. In the third set Persons showed that he is a player to be feared and in this set displayed his brilliant service to good advantage. Lyman took three games in the set while Persons, who was fatigued rested.

Paul Kaufman of Washington, D. C., a former Norwich man made short work of James Pearson of Norwich when he defeated the local player 6-1, 6-0.

In the first set of the match between Percy Harwood of Norwich and John Angeles of New London, Harwood won but not without a fight, the set going to 12 games. The second set also went to Harwood at 6-3.

There are several first round matches yet to be played and these will be played today. Royal D. Leighton of New Haven, Cape Cod champion is expected to arrive today and will meet Russell A. Clapp in a first round match.

In the second round matches today Lewin is to oppose Persons and a battle is expected as both were favorites to reach the semi-finals before the draw made it necessary for them to meet in the second round.

Disco and Williams will clash in a second round match today. The semi-finals will be played on Sunday and the finals will take place on Monday.

The men's doubles will also be played today as well as the first round of the mixed doubles.

PERSSON WILL BE ON DEMPSEY-TUNNEY CARD

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—While the sale of tickets for the bout between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney goes on apace, the announcement of details connected with the staging of the magnitude of a world's championship ring contest, the time of Tex Rickard, the promoter, and his staff.

Word came from New York where Rickard spent the day, that Harry Persson the Swede will be in the semi-final bout on the preliminary program the night of the big contest, September 23. Persson's opponent has not yet been picked, as Rickard is casting about to obtain the best man he can find to meet the Swedish heavyweight.

The other bouts also have not been decided upon, so far as it was known here.

Members of the Pennsylvania State Athletic commission, who were at fight headquarters today, had no information to impart as to who will be the referee of the big bout. It is probably the name of this official and those of the two judges will not be made known until close to the day of the bout.

One time-keeper has been named, he is Joe Bannon of New York, and he will act in behalf of Dempsey. Rickard's representative said they would get in touch with Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney at Stroudsburg, and have him name Gene's watch-holder.

PLAYGROUND ATHLETES ARE PREPARING FOR FAIR MEET

Much interest is being displayed by the children of the local playgrounds in the playground events at the athletic meet at the Norwich fair on the last day, Wednesday Sept. 8th. The various aspirants for track honors are putting in much practice for the meet and some lively contests are to be expected.

At present it is understood that relay teams from three of the larger of the city playgrounds, Elizabeth street, Lake street and Greeneville are to be picked for the meet, which should be guarantee enough for the success of these events as all three of these relay teams have shown up well in the meets held during the regular playground season.

John P. Murphy, undoubtedly, will be in charge of the playground youngsters for the fair events.

It was the intention of the Duwel A. A. which is in charge of these athletic events that a picked team from the local playgrounds compete against a like team from a playground of another city but this has found to be impossible because of the fact that the playground seasons in other nearby cities have all been closed for a week or more.

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR LABOR DAY GOLF TOURNEY

The largest field of golfers in a number of years is entered in the annual Labor day golf tournament at the Norwich Golf club. The field now numbers close to 100 with the prospect of many last minute entries provided it is a good golf day.

One of the features of the golf club on Labor day will be the dinner match between two picked teams of club members. This match is creating no little interest and the players will not be picked until Monday morning.

This afternoon a team representing the Norwich Golf club will go to Willimantic to play against the team of the Willimantic club. Twelve members of the Norwich club will comprise the local team.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates got back in the pennant race today by defeating the Chicago Cubs 3 to 2 in a ten inning pitching battle. The worlds champions won the game when Kaufmann, who had allowed only two hits for nine innings, weakened in the tenth. After Mueller had singled, Eddie Murphy, former American league star, batted for Cronin and beat out a hit to Beck. Smith followed with a single which scored Mueller, breaking the tie and Murphy scampered across the plate on Hill's out.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

Not Understood

Not understood, we move along asunder,
Our paths grow wider as the seasons creep
Along the years. We marvel and we wonder
Why life is life, and then we fall asleep.
Not understood.

Not understood we gather false impressions,
And hug them closer as the years go by.
The virtues often seem to us transgressions,
And thus men rise and fall and live and die.
Not understood.

Not understood, poor souls with stunted vision.
Often measure giants by their narrow gauge:
The poisoned shafts of falsehood and derision
Are oft impelled 'gainst those who mould the age.
Not understood.

Not understood, the secret springs of action
Which lie beneath the surface and the show,
Are guarded, with self-satisfaction
We judge our neighbors and they judge us.
Not understood.

Not understood, how trifles often change us—
The thoughtless sentence or the fancied slight
Estrange dear hearts of friendship and estrange us,
And on our soul there falls a freezing blight—
Not understood.

Not understood, how many hearts are aching
For a kind sympathetic An day by day,
How many cheerless lonely hearts are breaking
How many noble spirits pass away
Not Understood!

O God! may men would see a little clearer
Or judge less hardly when they cannot see!
Or think that men would draw a little nearer
To one another. They'd be nearer Thee
And Understood.

Silence

When cross and vexing words are said
And deep cut bravely still,
Annoying tongues will have their say,
Do with them what you will.
Compress your lips, but not a word
Can e'er be taken back.
Control your every action too
Or else be sorry after.

Anger is like a sudden storm
It comes and goes in time,
But it doth belong to me
Does it recover, so Thou may Should, and I believe.

Lord knowest it is not weakness to pardon.
To thank Gentlest, ever most,
Lead us a Shepherd, Lord, I ask,
Lest I go out in darkness glad.

Oh give me one candle and clear eye.
Oh, little knave, be the praise forever,
A wise old owl sat in the maple tree
A jovial happy owl was he!
He has been all in the leaves all day,
Hears a wee sleeping his life away,
But at the sound of the old inside
Chirper
Looks about with a sudden flare.
Then he sat in the prayer was Enough
Then addressed cried, Whoo! Whoo! Whoo!
What for old maid under face!

Alas dear Thou shall such amazing grace
As to grant thy servant Thy voice to hear
Thy to accept did the old maid
Speak.
So glad! hearted, she was fain; and Weak
And as had obedience upon the ground
Fell roused again by a terrible sound.
Once again from the top of the tree
Was heard
The loud warn whoo of the ominous bird.
Then she awakened: "Dear me, I must Know who.
Most anybody, Lord, will do."

The Bridge You'll Never Cross

Is what you think that makes the world
Seem sad to you,
Your mind may color things gay
Or make them radiant hue.
Be glad today be true and wise
Extract pure gold from dross
Always realize time not thought about
The bridge you'll never cross.

Always work for you to do
Use mind and brain and heart.
Here's honest human service too
A touch to take your part.
Make every opportune
A worthwhile gain not loss
The best is yours so do not fear
The bridge you'll never cross

If life seems dark and difficult
Do face it with a will
You do not have to work alone
Surrounded with you still
Walk on with courage toward the goal
Walk truth you sought emboss
To anyone look up and just ignore
The bridge you'll never cross

WELL IMPRESSED BY CORNER

Dear Social Corner: It was my good fortune to attend the first meeting of the Shore Line club in Mystic by invitation of Be Natural, whom I have known many years. She has proved to be the most loyal friend I ever had. The ladies who served the dinner were all strangers but so good as to make every one feel at home and eat heartily.

The program in the afternoon arranged by the one who invited me, certainly was fine, and Suzanne is a gifted poet.

As a reader of the paper and for one good time; and I wish to become a member and will take for my pen name.

GRANDMOTHER'S SWEET CUCUMBER PICKLE

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am sending a recipe for grandmother's sweet cucumber pickle.

Seven pounds of ripe cucumbers, pared, quartered and scraped, then wash them and boil in weak vinegar until you can pierce with a fork. Take out and drain and pack in a jar; have ready one quart of good vinegar, three pounds of sugar one half ounce each of whole cloves and stick cinnamon, tie spices in a square of cheese cloth and boil together. Pour this over the cucumbers and when pickled they are just the thing for tea with good bread and butter. I do not use the full amount of spices as it is rather strong.

I was a visitor at Twice Twenty's picnic Sept. 2, and was invited to join the Corner. Had such a good time, couldn't stay out any longer I don't see any "social corner" the whole house seemed to be filled with sociability and good cheer in spite of the rainy weather.

THE WANING OF THE SUMMER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I have been a reader of your very interesting Social Corner letters a long time before I joined Club No. 6, and as I read so many requests for more letters will try and do my bit. Please do not look for much for a letter as I am a new writer. Have attended four meetings since becoming a member and would love to attend many many thanks to each one of the hostesses for their kind hospitalities and for giving us such a good time, but I cannot go that in person Therewith extend it to you by means of the best newspaper in town my sincere appreciation.

You all seem like good pals and work with such a will and deliver the goods to. I hope we may meet again while these beautiful September days are with us for surely the golden summer is fast waning although it may linger for a brief season in the lap of autumn. Yet it will soon disappear and be seen no more till another year.

Yes the time approacheth when the leaves shall forsake the branches and return to their winter home. Then the good housewife will put away her bathing suit in the night proof chest and will don her dust cap and armed with a broom she will destroy the handiwork which the spider hath wrough in her absence and she will put her house in order for the winter. And her better half will return to his vocation and thus endeavor to earn enough money wherewith to pay for the winters coal. And the kiddies with a good whoop will send on their lohn and start for school. For summer days Tisbemith to Dee abode in the north and spent in her prayerss for she had hoped to land a multionaire, but all her fishing was for naught. All she caught was a oyster.

Yes surely the days growth shorter because the sun setteth sooner in the west and riseth later in the morning. So of a truth I say golden summer is on the wane

September is coming to the door
Septembor mild and grayish
Of smiles to beat the heavy chairs sore
She always has a face full
Such beings as sweet and restful days
And nights that soothe a fellow
As she comes down the woodland ways
A painting red and yellow

Septembers here the summer is old
And though we are roasted still
Mornings at soon be clear and cold
And evenings grow and chilly
Old summer with the azure skies
Is fall'ng now and dwindling
Soon we may arise to start the fires
And hit on coal and kindling

And soon again we will roam, no dreams
Before the grate and embers
While frost upon the pumpkin's shines
You know it's this September
Come fairest month of all
Come forth, Your visits always pleases
Bring us a message from the North,
The land of the cold breezes

SANDWICHES

Dear Members of the Corner: The sandwich is of course the piece de resistance of the out door feast. Now dates are short, regions of appetizing sandwiches that it seems a pity that ordinary picnic menu should include only the inspirited ham and boiled egg, and perhaps as a great variety the cheese novelty. The bread used for sandwiches should be at least a day old, the slices cut thin and even, the crust trimmed off. It should be light and evenly baked, avoid bread that is full of holes as in that case too much butter is used and the sandwich will become disagreeably greasy.

The bread may be white, brown, whole wheat, Indian, rye or pumpernickel. It may take the form of rolls or biscuit, cold gems or muffers but the filling must accord with its binding using a lettuce leaf with each cheese filling or mixing with the cheese a half cup of English walnuts. Gingerbread is also nice with the filling of cream cheese and nuts. To make a very appetizing sardine sandwich wash, skin and bone some sardines. Place them in a bowl with a little butter and mash them to a smooth paste. Season with pepper and lemon juice. Spread the mixture on a slice of buttered bread and cut another slice on top pressing it down with a flat knife.

Egg and watercress sandwiches are a novelty that some thin slices of bread and spread evenly with watercress, sprinkle with some chopped chives or a very little grated onion. Now spread then thickly with hard boiled egg yolks which have been rubbed through a sieve.

In making meat or cheese sandwiches both slices are spread with butter, but one side only with the meat, etc. pressed gently and cut in two. Of all things the edges of the sandwich should be free from butter and all suggestions of the filling. Cold lamb sandwiches with thin slices of meat, nicely salted between the thin slices of bread are appetizing for a picnic luncheon, and a welcome change from a ham sandwich. A glass of currant jelly will make them more popular.

Cut slices of rye or brown bread without removing the crust, rub half a pint of cottage cheese to a smooth paste with a little melted butter, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons of thick cream, and put the mixture between the buttered slices. This may be improved by using olive and tongue. Stone and chop French olives, season, cut thin slices of bread, butter, spread one half with thick olives and the other half thickly grated tongue. Press together and serve in the usual way.

For chicken salad sandwiches mince the chicken and season with salt and pepper and finely chopped olives, a trace of onion juice and a little lemon juice. The mixture must not be thin enough to run.

There is literally no end to the fillings that are possible for sandwiches, providing one knows how to prepare them in an appetizing way. Any cold meat may be run through the chopper and made to do service by deft seasoning. But the first requisite is a dainty attractiveness. People who are not near any good bakeries where sandwich loaves are to be had use pound baking tins in making home made loaves. Such little loaves make slices just the right size. The bread should be buttered on the loaf in order that the slices may be of wafer like thickness.

Sweet sandwiches are not often seen in this country. But a delicious sweet sandwich is made by mixing chopped figs and dates, moistening with a drop or two of lemon juice and using that as a filling. Chopped nuts may make part of the mixture.

Chocolate sweet sandwiches are greatly liked by children. Put 1 teacup of grated chocolate, 1 egg, 1-2 pint of milk and an egg in a small pan with sugar and flavor to taste with lemon or vanilla. Mix well then stand in a sauce pan of hot water to thicken. When it has thickened enough take off and spread on slices of bread and butter sandwich fashion. It is also very good spread on the top and pressed together.

Nasturtium sandwiches are novel, and most people are fond of them, especially when the flowers and leaves are gathered fresh from the garden. Drop them into ice water to crisp then, while the rest of the lunch is made ready. Cut the bread in thin slices and butter it. Place a thin layer of the yellow petals on one pungent leaf between slices. No seasoning is required aside from a light sprinkling of salt as the nasturtium has a delightful distinctive flavor of its own. If the leaves are used of the nasturtium it is best to add a little mayonnaise.

Cucumber sandwiches are perfectly delicious. The cucumber is peeled and sliced end but in ice water then drained and placed on slices of whole wheat bread a very little mayonnaise is put on and the whole covered in the usual way.

V. B. A.: Asked what kind of a steamer I used for the puffs.

I use a steamer with holes. Just oil your puffs up stiff and lay them at right on the holes in the steamer and cook ten minutes with the cover off and ten minutes with the cover on.

A VISIT TO THE WIGWAM

Dear Social Corner Friends: Last week in spite of the weather conditions I started old Elizabeth and down the Montauk trail I wandered until I came to The Mohegans little church nested among the sturdy oaks on the top of a hill. I met the wee Indian women gayly in front of the church were a large room made of leafy bowers of birch saplings, where I found it was their 66th annual wigwam meeting. Chief Occum greeted me at the entrance, and sure did give a welcome feeling. Inside of the wigwam was a busy scene with various booths and in the center was a large basket of shields suspended from the center, which were readily disposed of at 10 cents each.

Princess Tayal Moose was there and revealed the mysteries of the future during the day. I had the pleasure to meet Miss Gertrude Harris and found her a very charming person. She wore a very pretty Indian costume and head dress of beads and a lone feather. I remarked to her that she could be called "Blue Feather," also met Ernest Hamilton a member of the Mohegans and he sure was a piano wizard. Oh boy! how he did play and he sure did put over the ice cream and soda to his customers. Much credit is due to this young man. And all in all of the Social Corner members did not go they certainly missed a wonderful outing and a good feed.

I learned that two sisters, Mrs. Adeline DeMeare and Mrs. Delana Skeesuck were too ill to attend and they were greatly missed from the leafy tent. The shower which came up and passed over in a short time on Sunday afternoon did not dampen the spirits of the braves for we all gathered into the church for awhile but followed our evening chowder served by young ladies in strange Indian costume under the leafy bowers. Then I departed for home making a resolution to myself to be sure and attend the gathering next year.

Peggy Alden: Would you write us and tell us about the two fiddler reunions that you had the pleasure to attend recently.

Ma of Greene Gables: Was awfully glad to read your letter in last week's page So you are well? That's fine.

Balsam Fir has journeyed down from Dry Mills, Me., to visit her daughter in Telleville so she informs me. What an interesting letter she soon will be giving us.

Sorry dear I will get my letter too late I will try to get my letter too I hustle I will try off. With best of wishes

SOAP RECIPE WANTED

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is a long time since I have talked with you but have not forgotten you and in looking over a bunch of recent Bulletins I see the Shore Line club is a real thing and what wonderful times you must be having.

Before I suppose you attend every meeting now that I see you are home. What a queer summer it has been? Not very pleasant to be at the beach and I hear farmers complaining too. This is month of fairs and I suppose you will all be attending one or more. It is a busy time to meet old friends.

Tatts: How are the "singers?" Hope the showers helped in removing you for all the water you carried to it.

Can some of you flowers growers tell us how to root rose bushes? I do not mean ramblers. If you bend a branch of these down and cover it with dirt it will root but not so with other kinds. I am sending a good sponge cake recipe which takes only two eggs.

Sponge Cake: Beat two eggs yolks add gradually 1 cup of sugar, then 3 tablespoons of cold water. Fold in whites of two eggs that have been beaten stiff with a pinch of salt. Then fold in one cup of flour that has been sifted four times with 1 teaspoon of baking powder. Bake 25 minutes.

I wish some one would send a recipe for making soap.

PREFERS "DELIGHTFUL MEDIUM" CLIMATE

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: We have just moved from a very wet and unusual week into the bright hot sunshine of the waning summer. How I would enjoy a more even climate. Once had an aunt living in Denver, Colo., and I remember after hearing of the different wonders seen out that way the Rocky's, etc., I wrote and asked her just what kind of climate there was in that section and her answer was, "a delightful medium."

And I have been wishing I could find that kind of climate to live in for I do not enjoy either extreme hot or cold weather and am only comfortable when the weather is "a delightful medium."

Fuller Phun: Am glad if what I said about varnishing a piano will help you.

Yes I used the sulphur. Instead of putting it in a bag, I just made a little hole of it with powdered borax and stood my cracker jar in it and the red ants did not bother the crackers anymore glad to say. That was where they were just gathering in battalions. Will keep it in mind for another season.

Jennie (Club No. 1): I always use the cloth binding for juicy pies and find as you say, I have never found any shortening so good for pie crust as the plain best quality lard. Always have it cold when worked into the flour. Nothing better than any good bread bread flour. I never use the pastry flour.

Kitty Lou: The recipe for fruit salad sounds so cool. Have a great love for salads in the summer time.

Ellie: A few weeks ago I read your letter and was interested in your description on how to paint a papered wall. I have one room on which wall paper was just faded, not a tear of any kind, and it fits the wall so snug. I was just dreading to remove the paper, knowing it could never be papered any better, so I am thinking I will try the flat paint on this papered wall, hoping I will have as good luck as you did. There is no border, just a moulding as a top finish. It is my only papered room and am sure I shall enjoy having it painted as all downstairs rooms, but this one are painted and all sleeping rooms tinted.

Ann Tenna: Your poetry entitled Uncle David's Summer Boarders, is true in many cases I am sure, and instead of earning extra money, Uncle David was obliged to spend extra money to repair all damages when the summer boarders had departed.

Kitty Lou: The little gift you sent me, I keep it in my shopping bag, always "a friend in need," and I always think of you whenever I see it and your address to a perfect stranger. We may meet some day.

Congratulations to all who received tag of envelope greetings to all shutins and sympathy to all in trouble.

Have enjoyed all the vacation letters and no doubt there will be more. It is nice to see the membership of the Social Corner increasing.

All we love to see the page, which the Social Corner editor so kindly reserves for our letters filled.

Best wishes to all.

THE STAY-AT-HOME GIRL

Dear Social Corner: I wish Reader would give her address in writing me, as I answer her letter through the Corner.

The stay at home girl cannot be truly happy unless she engages in some real work. The secret of happiness is first, occupation, second occupation and third occupation. Any man who runs a home for a single week, doing all the cooking, ironing, cooking, baking, scrubbing, sweeping, dusting and putting in order, will confess a housekeeper has a most uninteresting and nerve wearing existence. Nevertheless I believe no one need become a slave to housework. The stay-at-home girl should not worry if her house is not in perfect order. If the sun be shining and the task of dusting seems a burden, let the sun remain, obey the calls of nature, go out into the sunshine, drink in plenty of ozone and make yourself feel like a new being who knows nothing of household drudgery.

I know of a woman who learned many beautiful poems while stringing beans, shelling peas, and peeling potatoes. After having made these beautiful thoughts her own. She delights in repeating them when sweeping and dusting and even when at the washtub. Not long ago I heard her reciting Byron's The Battle of Sennacherib and keeping time to its wonderful meter as she labored at the common tub.

This same girl has obtained a very good knowledge of history by working with another young woman her own age. Both girls were too poor to have their sewing done and they have arranged to spend several afternoons of each week together in a little sewing bee. One girl reads while the other finishes both sew and talk over what they have read.

A pocket book of synonyms, pressed into service, while one is going back and forth on the cars in the odd moments between duties or while taking a morning walk will quickly increase one's vocabulary. Facility in the use of words makes one an attractive conversationalist and enables us to express graphically our ideas and opinions.

It is a very simple matter through even the most desultory use of one's book of synonyms, to add eight or ten words to our available stock, and there is a growing fascination in finding oneself able to select just the right word to convey a particular shade of meaning.

I know of a home girl who has been made happy through learning Esperanto, the peace tongue. The girl is sensitive, because she is deformed and she did not court visits from those who would gladly have read to her or amused her in some other way. Finally a little friend of mine found a way into her heart and taught her Esperanto. Her name was then placed in the Jardiloj, and she soon began to receive postal cards from all over the world. Naturally she delighted in the postals and took great pleasure in reading these postals and replying to them. She also received many curios which added to her interest and made her room more cheerful. Then she began to be interested in the countries where the far off Esperantists lived, and found delight in reading and studying about them. For the past three years she has been studying earnestly, and quite recently she has obtained a position as a short hand writer. She is now a happy stay-at-home girl."

A FRIEND OF CATS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I was quite surprised to read that Ann Tenna felt she was getting in the good graces of the public by stating she does not crave the society of those feline animals—cats.

I certainly for one do love cats, and they are very useful and I do not think they are any thing to be classed with a two-faced person. I think the untrue friend comes under the roll of Judas Iscariot's descendants. Don't you?

We have a cat that doesn't seem to mean trouble. All the evidence points to the cat as at any rate the principle source of pet in Europe and hence America and the western world generally. The very word "puss" is only a domestication, so to speak of the name of the Egyptian moon goddess, Pashi. It is common knowledge that a cat of some sort was a household pet in ancient Egypt, and was so valued and loved that in certain parts in the ancient empire on the hills, it was held sacred. Human, if not devine. Honors was paid to it after death; for its body was carefully preserved as was that of his mistress, and thousands of its mummies have been exhumed.

Ernest Ingersoll in his Life of Animals, says the mummy has revealed the secret. When moved by curious interest, you ascend the Nile to Ben Hasan, and bend your steps to the pit tombs of the sacred cats behind the ruins of the great temple of Bubastis, you will perchance catch sight of a living and elegant cat watching from some knoll for a bird, or perhaps some hare or jerboa. That is the nature of that animal. He has to hunt his own meat the same as we kill hens, and the butcher kills animals for us to eat. Of course in that lithe and eager beast which seems so familiar, although perhaps you have never seen it in that way before, stands the parents of our "fire side sphinx."

It is the Egyptian or Caffre or Libyan, or gloved cat, for by so many names does fellx libyca go into our books and museums, I can't remember all I have read about them. I do not consider pussy treacherous.

I like this little piece.

I love little Kitty
Her coat is so warm
And if I don't hurt her.
She will do me no harm.

So I will not pull her tail
Nor drive her away
But pussy and I
Very gently will play.

Now it seems to me if pussy was so terribly bad, classed with all meanness these beautiful lines would not have been written about her.

Just for fun I would like to know how many Social Corner Sisters hate cats.

No hard feeling sister Ann Tenna. This is written in the right spirit same as your own letter, but I want to let pussy know she has a friend.

A PUSSY'S FRIEND.

CLEANING STRAW HATS

Dear Social Corner Members: I clean white straw hats with white velveteen dipped in ether (sulphuric).

I have cleaned straw hats with the following, also white leghorn hats: 1 1-2 tablespoons of lemon juice to 1 of powdered sulphur. This is the method: Rub the hat thoroughly with the paste allowing it to dry on. When the hat is quite dry rub it off. If you haven't the sulphur sometimes I use meal with the lemon. You will not expect it to be as smooth as when new but I know it looks better than when sent to the cleaners as in some way they seem to take all the finishing off and a white substance like flour appears on the surface. For white hats, Milan, hemp, Panama, and rough straw hats you can use the oxalic acid. I send the recipe but use a white bristle scrub brush (if use a tooth brush, an old one.)

Begin at the center of the crown then scrub down and around over the crown, side-crown and brim. Rinse with clear water, hold the hat over the sink and wring a piece of cheese cloth and wipe off with a rotary motion. Do not wet it so wet as to alter the shape, press under a damp cheese cloth; press on by cutting board and use a pail cover with cheese cloth for the crown.

A white chip hat I wipe off with ether or alcohol but you cannot do much with them when they are discolored.

Oxalic Solution: This is the way I make my oxalic solution. One ounce oxalic crystals, one pint of water. Dissolve these and use with much success. Put it in bottles and you will always have a help.

CAKE TIN IDEA

Dear Editor and Sisters: Please accept my thanks for the check, and for the recipes requested. I tried the first salad dressing and found it very good. If it wasn't the one you used to make N. Y. Z., nobody will ever know—not even me.

Calming, clamming and company have kept me pretty busy lately. We went to R. I. one day. Started 3 a. m. which is really a lovely time to travel. Got home a little after noon, with just about clams enough for supper. Not much luck that day. The next day we went to Poquonnoc and got about a half bushel.

Here is a cake tin idea which some one besides myself may find useful. I got two aluminum basins of about the quart size at the 10-cent store. The average cake recipe is just right for the two basins—makes two half size cakes and only one need be cut at a time. One may be made plain, and nuts, raising or cocoa added to the other cake. When baked, turn cake out on plate, cool and put basin over it. Keeps moist until ready to use.

PICNIC AT BUMBLE BEE'S SEPT. 16.

Dear Social Corner Members: I wish to call your attention to what a pleasant time we have had meeting in the various places this summer.

Summer is nearly over and it is soon to be put down as a page of history, but pleasant memories are always present with us.

Many thanks to Cosmos, Twice Twenty and Olga for helping to distributing our universal pin which so many have expressed their delight in getting. By the presence of one in a certain group several new acquaintances were made.

Lucy Acorn: If you have not stopped since I saw you last, you have got quite a distance away. That sure was a good dinner. I am looking forward to another.

Valentine: I am glad to know the secret of canning corn is the speed you make from the cob to the cooking point, and to set the cover on tight after it has boiled one hour. I have just helped put up 36 jars for winter.

Try pinning your stockings together with a safety pin when you change. It will save time and trouble. Use a different size pin for the smaller children then for the larger ones, adults included.

I have found lemon juice and salt fine to remove ink from white fabric when laid in the sun

Have just returned from Twice Twenty's picnic and in spite of the rain I will pronounce it the pleasantest gathering yet.

Glad Bumble Bee is going to have her picnic Sept. 18 at her home located on the Norwich and Colchester road between Yantic and Fitchville. She tells each one of use to bring our plate, cup, fork and spoon with something nice to eat.

As a helper of the hostess we hope all the clubs will be represented.

Hoping for the success of the Corner.

TO KEEP TOMATOES WHOLE ALL WINTER

Dear Sisters: To keep tomatoes whole all winter place sound ripe tomatoes in a crock that has been sterilized. When the crock is packed full, cover with equal parts of vinegar and cold water. Place a thick cloth over the top, flannel will do. Place it so the edges are well down in the liquid. Put a plate on the flannel to keep the tomato down. Cover.

Currant Sauce For Game: Mash 2 quarts of fresh ripe currants, add 2 cups of chopped raisins (seeded) and juice of grated rind. 2 medium sized oranges. Cook slowly for two hours, add three pounds of granulated sugar, stir until dissolved and cook slowly for one hour longer. Turn into glass jars and seal.

To 12 quarts of corn cut off the cob add 1 1-4 cups of sugar, 1 cup salt and 3 cups hot water. Put on stove and when boiled five minutes pour it over the corn that is packed in scalded jars and seal at once. When using corn drain and rinse thoroughly, but I think it advisable to put it over and boil five minutes in fresh water, add seasoning and serve.

Canned Peaches Without Cooking: Select large perfect peaches. Pour boiling water on them and let them stand 20 minutes sometimes 30 will do but I think it is better to let them stand until the water is near cold. Then skin off of them. Pack in a jar a layer of peaches and cover with a layer of granulated sugar. Now add another layer of peaches and sugar the last layer being sugar. The juice should be poured in at once. Keep in a cool place. It is much better if kept where it is dark.

Green Pea Chowder: Cups of peas green, 1-2 cup onions, 3 slices salt pork, 4 slices shaved beef.

GUESS WHO

THE PICNIC AT GREEN HILL

Dear Social Corner Members: A week ago today (Tuesday) I was at Green Hill. It I where 10 members of Club 5 and a few friends enjoyed a picnic at the cottage of Green Hill who was ably assisted by Blandena to give all a good time. We all enjoyed their hospitality and greatly appreciated their invitation. I am glad to see so many letters from Myrtle. Keep them coming. American Girl: glad you won a pen. I well remember when you learned all that. Do you remember when the bottle of Hinds Almonde cream was tipped over and no one knew who did it?

Mother Ware: You sure know how to care for rose bushes. The Shore Line is sure a winner this month.

Aunt Lize: Was glad to see a letter from you although I do not always too. Hope you enjoy your trip on Labor day.

Kenso: Am going to try your pickles. I was hoping you and Peggy Alden not might attend our meeting at Mystic.

Wheeler: Sorry, but I never heard a word about the napkins or spoon.

Jeremy: Your ideas are good. Have been trying to plan something of the kind myself. It is not fair for just a few to carry on the work and I think all are more interested if they feel they have something to do about it. It's discouraging to ask who will take chargo next time and no one answer. I know some times when I have met with Club No. 2. Club 1 I would ask over and over again before some one would say they would. I don't think it is because they don't want to help out they just don't want to go ahead with it.

MAKING APPLE PIES

Dear Friends: Just a few lines to let you to know that I am still in the land of the free and home of the brave. I have been very busy with canning and trying to do the housework at the same time. I think some of the new writers may go ahead of some of the old ones so let us try to keep the page good and full. I like to open the paper and see the page full and running over. I wonder if I have thought the Montauk trail was rather too much for me. I certainly enjoyed it very much. So glad that he has got his auto fixed but didn't I hear him as he passed the other evening and wasn't he singing Old Lang Syne.

Had the pleasure of having Happy Go Lucks and Primrose over the week end and enjoyed their visit very much. How about those Johnny cakes? One sister told of making apple pies. I take the sugar and flour and shake and a little salt and stir it together. Line a pie pan and put part on the bottom of the apples and the rest on top and hardly have much trouble with the juice running out. I don't even wet the edges of an ordinary sour apple. I take about 3-4 cup of sugar and 3 tablespoons of flour and spice to taste with a little salt. Try this and see if you don't have a pretty good pie. Will close and let some one have room who can do better than I can

Good luck to all.

RURAL AUNTY.

PLAY CLOTHES

Dear Cornerites: Just a hint to busy mothers about play clothes. For a time I was at a loss to find something sufficiently dark to give at least the appearance of cleanliness. I tried black sateen, but found that after washing it neither looked very fresh nor wore well.

Now I buy plain gray gingham or chambray, ten yards at a time, and turn out bloomers, blouses and dresses by the dozen. They not only launder well and wear like iron, but they can be made to look very pretty as well. Some of the dresses I make with collars, facings and belts of black and white checked material, others I pipe with red, still others are brightened with just the right shade of blue. In fact almost all colors harmonize with gray.

A little blue and gray plaid remnant which couldn't quite be stretched into a dress was finished with the plain gray, collar and belt and made to look the prettier for it

Yours for the Corner,

DORIS.

A DELIGHTFUL PICNIC AT GREEN HILL, R. I.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Did I hear some one ask, "Who has become of Interested Reader?" Well I am right here in the same old place. I have been very busy for the last month, have been visiting quite a good deal and had quite a lot of company.

I attended the Social Corner meeting in Mystic at Grange hall a splendid dinner and a splendid program. Be Natural and her helpers fairly outdid themselves.

I also had the pleasure of going to the picnic at Green Hill. It was Blandina and Green Hill as hostess. A delicious dinner was served at noon on the wide porch by Blandina who furnished coffee and lemonade for all although for most of us times too cool or the mosquitoes was not dampened in the way soon strolled the beach and sat under the large umbrellas. All too soon the time arrived for us to start for home thanking the hostesses for entertaining us so delightfully.

Dorothy Bradford: A very good suggestion when are you going to make the car again?

Ruthina: I am thinking about that too.

Eva G: Do write us few lines. Don't let that little car take all your time.

As it is nearly time for the next meeting I will close with best wishes to all.

PAINT THAT PEELS ON WINDOW SHASHES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It rained nice yesterday morning and I say, thank you, our editor for it

When I read [illegible] corners in Saturday's issue I feel I thought there was something wrong with our eyes. But a second reading convinced me that was working properly.

Miss Ware: Glad all chores. I see you were one of the lucky ones. You are the only one I know who has had. If you don't mind me, was E. L. M. who I am.

To the sisters who need to paint or varnish, why not spend the time and money I spend in painting shades instead of anything I've found very good. I cannot remember how many years and have not got my paper hanging.

Would like to ask the sisters if they ever have trouble with the paint peeling off their window sashes? I have been told that if I would put on a coat of white shellac before painting would do away with this trouble. If any sister ever tried this will be with [illegible]

Census Reveals Astonishing Fact

According to the 1920 Census, there are [illegible] women and girls employed in all trades in the United States. Nearly ten million women would make a vast army.

Napoleon said, An army travels on its stomach." This woman's army travels on its general health. Probably there is scarcely a woman in it who has not forced herself to work when she was not able. In all sorts of weather and under trying conditions like good soldiers, they stick to their posts.

Many women have learned that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helps to keep them fit to work.

ON WAY TO ATTEND NORWICH WEDDING NEW LONDON MINOR WAS TOO SPEEDY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 3.—Autoists were generally accused in the police court today. Speeders were the most aggravating offenders, while men who parked their machines in the restricted sections of the principal highways were also there on answer for their disregard of rules and regulations intended to prevent congestion of traffic and to avert accidents.

Anthony Piscatelis was best man at a wedding in Norwich yesterday. He went there Wednesday night. He was in a hurry to join the jolly party that assembled the evening before the ceremony took place so he hit a pace on Ocean avenue that was estimated to have been 50 miles an hour. That made a policeman stop, look and listen. He could hardly believe that what he saw was actual. But it proved to be the real thing in speed. Piscatelis is a minor and had the speed craze in his head. He didn't deny that he was hustling, but did not think he hit the pace attributed to him. He was charged in the city court with violation of the rules of the road and a fine of $10 was imposed. So the most thrilling thing in the career of a young fellow was cut.

Augusta Viconi, residing at 185 Main street, was fined $150 under the prohibition law. She has been suspected of selling booze and her place was searched by State police. They found nothing of a lawless nature. But they had abundant evidence that the place was reputed to be a house where liquor could be purchased. So the woman was prosecuted on the reputation clause of the law. She demurred to the complaint but that action was overruled and she was fined as stated.

A couple of drunks were guilty by their own acknowledgment. They were on their feet but they could have been safer had they got under cover. The court viewed the matter as for the benefit of the city if the pair were allowed to get out of town, so that was the condition on which they were released.

Orazio Perrone, a truck driver, was charged with passing intersecting streets without reducing the speed of his machine. He was ordered to court by Policeman Clarence Martin, when the officer saw Perrone drive along Bank street at a speed estimated at 35 miles an hour. He drove into and out of traffic with partial abandon the officer said, but escaped collision. Perrone, the officer reported, had been warned on previous occasions. His excuse for his speed was that he had delivered goods at the New York steamer and was hurrying to his garage. He said he saw a Ford and a Dodge just ahead of him, but they were going slowly so he "stepped on the gas" and went ahead of them. That was just what the complaint charged him with doing. Perrone represented that he was going only at a speed of 12 or 15 miles. The court accepted the testimony of the officer as reliable and imposed a fine of $10.

K. L. Williams received a like fine for speeding in defiance of the rules of the road. He admitted that he was not aware how fast he was going.

Half a dozen autoists were charged with having parked cars in restricted areas on Main and State streets. Two of the accused gave $5 bonds each conditioned on their appearance in court today, but they failed to show up and forfeited their cash. The others accused were allowed to go on suspended judgment with a warning not to return. Two of the accused were strangers in the city while the others should have been familiar with the conditions of the ordinances.

Fletcher Russell came over to New London from Montauk Point where he had been working. He had saved up some money and came here to put it on deposit in a savings bank. He stopped in a store to make purchases of clothes and when he had completed that business he ran out on the sidewalk, bumping into a policeman in plain clothes as he did so. He offered the cop a 7-24, but the officer did not see fit to accept the gift, so the donor told him to go where it is supposed to be hotter than it has been here at any time this summer. That sort of talk did not set well with the officer, so he arrested Russell as being intoxicated, a natural inference to draw from what happened. Russell made oath that he was not intoxicated and showed his bank book as evidence of the truth of what he said. The court suspended judgment that Russell might go on to Brooklyn, where he said he was going for a vacation and to pass Labor day with friends.

James N. Snow has sold two houses and small parcels of land, corner of Blackhall and West Colt streets, to Nellie M. Dunbar.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold a small strip of land on Willetts avenue to Antonio DiMaggio. This land adjoins other land of DiMaggio.

Sadie Belt has sold a house and lot on Hime street to Luther A. and Charlotte M. Eccleston.

Anna C. Towne, Boston, has sold a building lot, corner of Mott and Neptune avenues, to Edward A. Bailey, Porto Rico.

Archie and Nina W. Hutchins have sold to David and Alice L. Wyatt, two building lots on Avery court. The land was formerly owned by Thomas W. Casey.

Charles W. Bedell, 64, of 189 Requot avenue, an electrical engineer in the employ of the New London Ship & Engine company, died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital last night. He is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter. Mr. Bedell was well known here, having resided in New London about eight years and was considered an expert in electrical engineering. Several weeks ago his health began to fail and about a week ago he was admitted to the hospital as a surgical patient in the hope that an operation would improve his health. The operation, however, revealed a condition not anticipated. Mr. Bedell grew lastly became worse and about 9 o'clock last night he succumbed a sinking spell and expired within a short time.

William N. Welch, 33, a patient at the State Hospital, Norwich, escaped last night and a request was made of the New London police to keep a watch for him. Welch is described as being about five feet, five inches in height, weighs 122 pounds and has brown hair and eyes.

UNCASVILLE WOMAN'S CAR BUMPS NORWICH TROLLEY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 3—An automobile driven by Emma Poullot of Uncasville, collided this evening with a New London-Norwich trolley car on Williams street, near the corner of Main street. The automobile was damaged and Patrolman George Cockell, who witnessed the accident, arrested the woman on a charge of reckless driving. She was offered to appear herself in the police court tomorrow morning.

A girl of 16, residing in Waterford was struck by an automobile owned and driven by William J. Leonard, 538 Main street, this city, last night on Great Neck road, Waterford. The girl was not seriously injured. She refused to reveal her identity, neither would she consent to submitting to an examination by a physician. The girl had been in bathing for she was clad only in bathing suit when she attempted to cross the highway, stepped in front of Leonard's automobile and was knocked down. Leonard stopped his machine as soon as possible and offered to take the girl to a physician's office, but she refused to accompany him and she refused to tell her name. She however consented to allow Leonard to drive her to her home. This he did, but she refused to allow him to accompany her into her home to relate the story of the accident to her parents. Leonard later came to police headquarters here and reported the accident as a matter of form and to protect him from any possible violation of the law.

Dominick Sutera, 335 Huntington street, employed as truck driver by the Eastern Dairy company, lost his right to drive to-day, when Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel ordered Sutera's driver license suspended. Sutera was driving a large truck of the dairy company several weeks ago on Howard street, corner of Depot avenue, and it collided with a pleasure automobile in which were four passengers, three of whom were injured, and the automobile was damaged, so that it was said practically be for junk. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered suspended the license of John Delwing, 93 Union street.

The police received a telephone message this evening that an automobile accident had occurred on Main street, corner of Richards street. Motorcycle Officer George McCaskey was sent to investigate, but when he arrived he found that the drivers of the colliding cars had reached an amicable agreement as to a settlement of damages and no arrests were made.

John R. Bowman Jr., Norwich, who was appointed appraiser of the bankruptcy estate of Hirsch and Company today in Norwich this afternoon requested the New London police to keep a watch on the Hirsch store during the day and night and that any effort that might be made to remove stock from the place except at times when Mr. Bowman was present. Complaint was made to the police this evening by Nathan Kozlin, 22 Spaang street, that boys were causing damage to his garden by trespassing upon his premises and requested that the practice be ended.

Harold Pinney, son of Captain of Police and Mrs. Charles A. Pinney, employed in New York, arrived in New London this evening and will spend the holiday with his parents.

A telephone message this evening from a resident of Grove street, who refused to reveal his identity informed the police that youths were causing damage on that street and where the city is having improvements made. A patrolman was sent there, but when he arrived the boys had dispersed.

Joseph A. James was found drunk on Water street this afternoon and was arrested by Motorcycle Officers Clarence Martin and George McCaskey. He later furnished a surety on his bond of $25 for his presentation in the police court tomorrow morning.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Catherine Birmingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Birmingham, of 111 Vauxhall street, to John E. Corcoran. Miss Birmingham is employed by Augustus C. Stearns, insurance agent and Mr. Corcoran, who is a son of Patrolman and Mrs. Michael Corcoran, 36 Fair Harbour place, is employed by the New London Ship & Engine company.

Announcement is made of the marriage, August 28th of Miss Lillian M. Ursprung, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Ursprung, and William White, of Westfield, Mass.

The season at Ocean Beach is waning so rapidly that the decreased number of visitors and residents there was very noticeable today. Indications now are that the first days of the coming week will see the end of the season there. The beach represented today one of the most picturesque sights of the year. The atmosphere was absolutely clear and the range of vision was greater than usual. There were a score or more of white yachts at anchor in the lower harbor that stood out against the eastern horizon, while a navy craft in battleship gray completed the picture.

Ocean avenue is being oiled at the southern end. The street department has placed signs warning autoists that "fresh oil" has been placed on the highway. Cottagers who have been here for the summer are leaving in the pleasantest time of the season, for schools will soon open and the children must be ready for the beginning of the term.

The "Jazz Singer", with George Jessel as the star, had a very large audience at the Lyceum theatre this evening. The company goes direct to Boston where it opens at once for a long run.

There is said to be an unusual number of vacant tenements in this city at present, but they are not the most desirable of residence places. Property that is kept in good order finds ready tenants, at rents that are well up.

New London and vicinity will furnish much of the criminal business for the September term of the superior court, which opens at Norwich Tuesday next. Detective William Lewis has been in this section a few days looking up testimony and getting witnesses for cases that are to come to trial early in the term.

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 3—The sudden death of Denison Chesebro Hinckley, 60, from apoplexy, occurred shortly after midnight at his home, 37 Highland avenue, Westerly. Mr. Hinckley's birthplace was the Hinckley hill farm, in Pawcatuck Thursday evening, accompanied by his wife, he had been out in an automobile and returning home complained of illness about 10 o'clock, death following a few hours later.

Mr. Hinckley was the son of Charles Henry and Lydia Jane Knight Hinckley and was born July 31, 1866. He attended Westerly schools and was graduated from Westerly high school in 1885. BULLETIN'S CABLED NEWS TOLD OF ACCIDENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 3—Miss Sally M. Frankenstein, American woman, mentioned in cable paragraphs of the Associated Press in this morning's Norwich Bulletin, as taken unconscious to St. Ives hospital, Cornwall, England, as a result of an automobile accident in which Roger D. Hart, American member of the staff of the Liverpool Y. M. C. A. was killed, was a Westerly young woman. When here she resided at 140 West Broad street, Pawcatuck with her sisters, Mrs. Russell H. Hemphill and Miss Katherine D. Frankenstein, the latter sister being employed in New York.

Mrs. Hemphill knew nothing of the accident, when the paragraph was called to her attention this morning. She telephoned to her sister in New York, who cabled the hospital in England. A reply was expected Friday night and Miss Katherine D. Frankenstein planned to sail from New York to England Saturday if passage could be obtained.

Miss Sally M. Frankenstein is the daughter of the late Louis J. and Fanny Moss Frankenstein and was graduated from the Westerly high school in 1907 and from Smith college in the class of 1911. At the time of the World war she went abroad and for some time after the war was located in Coblenz, Germany. In New York she was employed in an executive capacity with the Smith College club.

Later a cablegram received Friday afternoon by Miss Catherine D. Frankenstein announced that her sister, Miss Sally M. Frankenstein, was merely bruised in the automobile accident in which Hart was killed.

The session of the Third District court Friday morning before Judge Oliver H. Williams was a short one, when he read the following:

State, Frank H. Brown, chief of police of Hopkinton, vs. Elgin A. Clark. Attorneys agreed to the assignment of trial on next Friday.

James W. Burk vs. William S. Archie, a trespass and ejectment writ. Attorney Roche announced the plaintiff as ready when Judge Williams stated that Attorney S. H. Davis, representing the respondent, had been called suddenly to New York. The case was continued one week.

Trial calendar—State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, vs. William Conn. Represented by Attorney Dunn, Conn entered a plea of nolo to the complaint of operating an automobile August 29th without a driver's license.

Solicitor Ferguson said that the defendant had been sentenced six months ago by the court for the operation of an automobile while under the influence of liquor. At that time his license had been revoked by the State Board of Public Roads and had never been reissued to him.

Attorney Dunn informed the court that he had been in conference with the State Board of Roads and assurance was given that the license was to be restored the first of September. He said that the respondent, living in Potter Hill, was courting a girl friend in Clarkville and that she had given him a pocketbook containing articles of devotion which he knew she would have use for Sunday morning. Accordingly Mr. Coon did an 'admirable act' when he sought to return them to her, when he found them in his pocket in Potter Hill. He took a chance, got as far as Granite street and Grove avenue in Westerly when arrested by a Westerly office who demanded his operator's license and then gave him a court summons.

Judge Williams said that he knew that his record of driving while intoxicated was a serious case and that his reputation as a sober driver was not good, though the errand might have been a commendable one. He said he was not going to give the accuser any days in Providence County jail, where he had already served some time, but that his disrespect to law was a serious one. He told him that he was not a good fellow but had the reputation of being a booze fighter and a booze hunter. Judge Williams imposed a fine of $50 with the payment of costs. Through Coon's counsel notice of an appeal was given, Nathan Saunders became surety for his appearance in the sum of $300.

Judgment was entered by agreement of counsel in the damage case for $175 for the plaintiff, Elbert W. Scrobie, pro ami, vs. Purdy and Bleeker of Brooklyn, N. Y. The case grew out of an automobile collision August 23rd, in Richmond, R. I., when the motor truck operated by Austin J. Kitteridge of New Haven, struck the touring car in which Postmaster Elbert W. Scobie of Orange, Conn., his wife and child were riding. The occupants were uninjured, but the automobile was smashed. Driver Kitteridge at the time taken into custody by State Trooper Earl North, was given a hearing in special session of district court and fined $25, although he claimed that his engine did not function properly and the collision resulted. The truck was attached at the time and placed in the R. I. Garage, to be subsequently released when the insurance company official learned of the occurrence.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Political clubs were being formed in Norwich a half century ago and many political gatherings were taking place throughout the city. Items of the week as taken in part from the columns of the Norwich Bulletin of 1876 are as follows:

Monday, August 28, 1876—One of the most sensible changes in the new postal law, which everybody will appreciate, is that which allows a person to write his or her name on a newspaper wrapper, and also the word "from," to let the party receiving it know who it is from, without violating the law. It also allows the sender to write on a package the number and kind of articles it contains.

Rascals have been breaking windows at the German Lutheran church during the past few weeks. Glass valued at over $200 has already been broken, among it a memorial glass worth $75.

The Greeneville democrats have organized a campaign club with J. B. Batchelder president and propose to organize a company of Tilden guards.

One of the horse railroad buses has been sent to Willimantic to run between the depot and the camp ground.

The two six-oared shells for the Norwich club reached New London yesterday.

The track of the horse railroad on Franklin street has been raised six inches during the past few days. The open street cars have been very popular these warm days.

Tuesday, August 29, 1876—Mr Emerson wisely says that "everyone has two natures, widely different." This explains why it takes a man working by the hour only thirty seconds to climb over a wall into the shade at 12 o'clock, while he commonly takes 20 minutes to climb back after the clock has struck one.

W. H. Nash has retired from the Norwich Croquet club. As he is known to be the best player in the state his loss to the Norwich club will be a hard blow.

A member of the Norwich Eagle club shot an eagle yesterday which measured seven feet from tip to tip of wing.

The city is improving the barn on Central Wharf which is to be used to house the city horses.

A New York paper states that New London women go over to the forts every day and flirt with the officers, to keen themselves in practice.

Westerly is having an epidemic of colds, nearly every other person in the town suffering with that malady.

Wednesday, August 30 1876—A committee of five gentlemen from Stonington came to Norwich yesterday and presented Stiles T. Stanton a valuable sword for his use at the Philadelphia encampment. The Hon. W. H. Palmer made the presentation speech.

The Democratic caucus was held in the town hall last evening. H. H. Heath was elected chairman and Samuel D. Wilson and Charles E. Briggs clerks. The following delegates were elected: State, Seneca E. Thresher, P. T. Creed, Jacob B. Batchelder, John P. Murray, congressional, Edward Hunter, John Enright, Henry L. Parker, William Noss. Senatorial, T. Walter Swan, Currie Gilmore, George C. Bill, H. A. Briggs. Probate, D. J. Park, E. H. Thomas, D. P. Coon, Charles E. Briggs.

A New London boy recently swallowed a quantity of small change. He is a bony boy and the neighbors send around and borrow him to use as a rattle-box to amuse their children.

The directors of the Chelsea Savings bank have declared a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent per annum payable on and after the 15th proximo.

The Sprague Print mills in Rhode Island, Maine and Connecticut which have been idle for several weeks are to resume operations at once.

Sitting Bull's wife had no mother and the question arises where did he learn to fight.

Thursday, August 31, 1876—In this weather it is pleasant to learn from an exchange that 60 years ago occurred the year without a summer. Frost occurred in every month of the year 1816. Ice formed half an inch thick in May, snow fell to the depth of ten inches in Vermont, seven in Maine, three in the interior of New York and also in Massachusetts in June; ice was formed of the thickness of common window glass throughout New England, New York and some parts of Pennsylvania on the fifth day of July; Indian corn was so frozen that the greater part was cut down and dried for fodder in August, and farmers supplied themselves from the corn produced in 1815 for the seed of the spring of 1817.

Mr. S. S. Post, formerly of Danielsonville, an one of the best teachers in the state passed through here yesterday on his way to Westerly, to take charge of the high school there.

The water in the city reservoir is five feet below high water mark. The supply remaining is ample for the present though economy should be observed in its use. People are advised to take water for baths only on Saturday nights.

Friday, Sept. 1, 1876—There was a large and enthusiastic outdoor meeting at Greeneville last evening under the auspices of the Hayes & Wheeler club to ratify the state and national republican nominations. The speakers were men of great ability and included Hon. John T. Wait, James Gilmore, Hon. John T. Adams, Hon. Lucius Brown and A. E. Park, Esq. The crowd was decidedly interested, the music inspiring and the meeting a grand success.

Company C left for Philadelphia on the West Side last noon on which the Willimantic company also came down last evening. When Company C left the armory, Franklin Square and Main street were crowded and nearly 1,000 followed to the train. The company made a splendid appearance and were cheered and applauded all along the route. They will do the city credit at Philadelphia. The Plainfield and Putnam company came down on the Worcester boat train and with the other company of the Third sailed on the City of Lawrence for Jersey City.

Charles Corn of North Stonington was drowned on Wednesday by falling face downward into a brook. Mr. Corn was suddenly taken ill causing him to lose his balance and fall into the brook.

In a house on Washington street yesterday a large plate of honey was left in a closet and during the day the good housekeepers were surprised to find that a hive of bees had taken up their abode there. The bees were finally driven out with a good deal of difficulty.

The meanest man on the street nowadays is the one that is seen hanging around a band of street musicians, near enough to hear the music, but far enough away to avoid the hat.

The little blue fish are now biting well in favorable weather and Fort Point and other places down the river are much frequented by those who love to cast a sportive hook.

MYSTIC

Mystic grange No. 171 met Thursday evening with Worthy Master L. O. Allyn in the chair. Five candidates were unanimously voted in. One application was received. Miss Stratton of the farm bureau has sent a letter to the chairman of the economic committee and has set Sept. 21 in Grange hall for the millinery class. Those intending to be in it are to send their names to Mrs. Dora Wheeler, or Mrs. Margaret Morgan. The reports by the lecturer and guests were given of the New England lecturers' conference held at Maine state college at Orono, to which many of the granges sent their lecturers at a cost to the grange of three cents per mile. The miles traveled by Groton and Mystic lecturer was a total of 1150. The conference lasted three days and the other eight were spent in travel. Miss Shrider read a complete report, giving an account of the trip from start to finish. She called on Mrs. Maud L. Green, lecturer of Groton grange who added a few amusing incidents. Saville Green, treasurer of Groton grange also added to the report and Paul Green, son of those mentioned, described the roads, some of which are poorer than any Connecticut roads and with dust beyond description, on the dirt roads owing to so many cars being in line. The last speaker was William Thomas, treasurer of Groton grange, who mentioned the potato fields in Maine, many potatoes raised there being shipped out of the state by carloads. BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Reddy Sees the Horse

A fish no matter what its name,
You'll find is fishy just the same.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy trotted along down the beach with Graywing flying above and just ahead of him. He was on his way to see the Sea Horse Graywing had told him about. When he saw Graywing stop at a small tidepool, in which the water was not deep enough to cover the body of a horse had one been lying there, Reddy at once became suspicious. He suspected that Graywing was playing a joke of some kind. "Where's that horse?" he demanded.

The way Graywing's eyes twinkled! "Right down there in the water," said he.

Reddy didn't even look. He knew there wasn't any horse in any such pool as that, and he intended to tell Graywing just what he thought of him. But Graywing didn't give him a chance.

"I'm glad you've come over here, Neighbor Fox," said Graywing, "because I am going to show you something which you never would have found for yourself. I told you that I would show you a Sea Horse, and I will. But a Sea Horse, and a land-horse are not at all alike. I know just what you are thinking. You are thinking that a horse of any kind must be a great big animal. That is where you are wrong. A Sea Horse is a very tiny fellow, but he's a Sea Horse just the same. Anyway, that's what he is called, and when you have looked at him, I think you'll understand why. Just as a favor to me, Neighbor Fox, come look down in this little pool."

Now, what could Reddy do? Graywing spoke so pleasantly, and was so polite and seemed so very much in earnest, that Reddy couldn't very well refuse. So rather ungraciously he walked over where he could look down into the pool. "Look down on that piece of seaweed growing there," said Graywing, "and see what is hanging onto that seaweed by its tail."

Reddy looked. Then he blinked very hard, rubbed his eyes and looked again. Slowly a good-natured grin spread over his face. He was looking at a curious little creature which was upright in the water, with the end of its tail curled around the stem of a seaweed, and which was only about three or four inches long. On its back was a fin. Because of that fin Reddy suspected that it must be a real fish. But it didn't look like a fish. It most certainly did not. It had a head shaped like—well, when Reddy looked at it, he turned to Graywing and said at once, "I know what you mean! That a Sea Horse, and I don't wonder they do. His head is shaped like the head of a horse. It certainly is. I suppose he's a fish."

Graywing nodded. "Yes," said he, "he's a fish, even though people always called a Sea Horse. Watch him now!"

The funny little Sea Horse had let go of the seaweed with his tail and now he was swimming across the little pool with his head in the water. He didn't appear to use his tail at all in swimming, but to steer with that back fin.

"We don't see Sea Horses up here very often, but sometimes I guess a great many Newcomb you glad you came over here?"

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Would you like to take a trip behind the scenes in movieland? It can easily be arranged and without the long railroad journey to Hollywood. All you have to do is visit the Broadway theater on Sunday and see the latest Gotham production The Part Time Wife with Alice Calhoun, Robert Ellis, Freeman Wood, Edwards Davis, Janice Peters, Patricia Palmer and a host of film stars. This picture is a romance of the inside of a movie studio. It reveals that behind the many make-believe dramas and comedies which the film folk enact for the camera are many real heart throbs in their own life.

Supplying the supremely active Richard Talmadge with new, original and amusing stories must be no sinecure of a job; but James Bell Smith, who had been responsible for nearly all of the vehicles of this famous star has done it again! In The Wall Street Whiz, which appears locally for its premiere presentation at the Broadway theater Sunday only as the second feature he has hit the comedy nail right on the head; and incidentally socked the dramatic spike in the same place. Plenty of melodrama and more laughs than could be supplied in a Brain-fag Asylum, decorate The Whiz from the first reel to the last; and Richard is certainly himself again. He runs the well-known gamut of fights, thrills, and high and lofty tumbling, adding some new ones at every jump.

A new Kinogrami completes the bill.

Strand Theater

Masquerading as a butler in a millionaire's mansion and saving his wealthy friend from the clutches of financial ruin in Wall Street, Richard Talmadge has a fast and furious career in The Wall Street Whiz, his latest comedy-melodrama at the Strand Sunday only. Dick Talmadge has established himself solidly in the affections of hundreds of thousands of movie goers for his swift-moving, snugly wrought tales of romance and adventure. The Wall Street Whiz is another step for the young comedian up the ladder of pre-eminence. Others in the cast are Marceline Day, Lillian Langdon, Dan Mason, Carl Miller and Belle Bennett. Jack Nelson directed.

Careening down a winding mountain road, children shrieking in terror as the lumbering motor bus approaches the cliff, the grind of brakes, the screech of wheels against the stoney bank:

This is but a sketchy word picture of one of the thrilling moments in Maurice Flynn's latest F. O. B. comedy melodrama The Traffic Cop, in which the breezy and buoyant star comes again to the Strand theater on Sunday only as the second feature.

A new comedy completes this program.

LABOR SUNDAY MESSAGE AT CENTRAL CHURCH

Labor Sunday is to be observed at the Central Baptist church on Sunday evening with a special program. Dr. David G. Pitt will speak on The Message of the Baptists to Labor. There will be read the message of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America which includes 30 of the leading Protestant groups in the United States.

SIX FAST BOUTS BOOKED FOR FAIR

In addition to the eight field events to be staged at the Norwich fair on Sept. 8 for the first time in the history of the city amateur boxing will be brought to Norwich, six fast bouts already being arranged as part of the fair program. Four of the bouts are to be imported from New Haven, being hand-picked by Tom Tracy, secretary of the A. A. U., who will accompany the boys to Norwich. The other two bouts will see local boys who are being trained by Johnny "Shiek" Leonard. The "shiek" as was announced a while ago, has opened a stable here in the city and has over a dozen boys now under his wing, and has promised the committee in charge of athletics, two bouts where no love will be shown. The bouts will be in the 115, 120, 125, 130, 135 and 145 pound class, the names of the boxers to be made known later in the week.

Entries for the field events are coming in fast, many well known athletes from throughout the state being already entered. The local people at the fair will have their first opportunity of seeing Norwich's latest crowned state champion, Joe Jackson, winner of this title at the police games in New Haven on Aug. 11, when he led a large field of Connecticut's best to the tape in the 100-yard dash, as the local boy has entered in the open A. A. U. 100-yard dash.

Palace Theater

Abies Irish Rose that has registered such a tremendous hit with Norwich theatergoers will have its final performances at a matinee and evening showing today and although the demand for seats has been heavy there are still good seats at the box office for both of today's performances. Tomorrow Sunday evening the regular motion picture policy of the Palace will be inaugurated and the program is an imposing one the feature picture of the evening being no less than Thomas Meighan in his lastest and in many respects his greatest production in which the popular star is supported by Rene Adoree, star of The Big Parade, Aileen Pringle and a notable cast of players.

Tin God's. The title's significant for more than one reason. Principally because it figures as a milestone in Thomas Meighan's career.

Imagine the story of a man who marries a beautiful woman. She loves him but also has a passion for politics. Time passes and soon she has forgotten her first love for the second. A child comes but she continues to spend her time away from home. Then—one day, the little boy passes on. After a terrible argument, the husband packs his bags, and rushes to South Amedica.

At a small town which has sprung up because of the building of a bridge, he finds solace in rum. Losing his position as engineer in charge of the structure, he sinks deeper and deeper. Sickness comes but he is nursed back to health by a native girl.

Days pass and then—like a wind from the north, the wife reappears. Misunderstanding his eagerness at seeing her, the second girl, whom he really loves, hastens away to kill herself. He learns of her intention and follows—too late.

The picture ends, as it began, showing him enter a chapel he has built under the bridge to the memory of his life's one beautiful love.

Here's drama that pierces the emotions. And when you see it you'll never—oh, what's the use? See Tin Gods

A great comedy The Fourth Alarm with the popular Our Gang comedians the Palace Topical Events and an Esaops Fable, Alpine Flappers completes the film program, for the stage presentation the management has secured Ruth Marea Brewer direct from the Metropolitan theater Boston, famous star of the radio, who can play 14 different instruments. The stage presentations however are not included in Sunday evening performances but start with the matinee on Monday. The Palace concert orchestra, Walter W. Lang conducting, will render an overture consisting of Barcelona and Bye Bye Blackbird and appropriate selections for the picture program.

Breed Theater

Need any first-class battles staged?

Upon the shoulders of Frank Williams, Eugene Hornbostel and Major Harold Harcourt fell the responsibility of staging for George Fitzmaurice's screen version of The Dark Angel, an identical reproduction of one of the most vivid battles of the World war.

Samuel Goldwyn, who is sponsoring The Dark Angel, expressed anxiety for a real battle, and the technicians under Hornbostel, construction manager, have reproduced one calculated to start ex-doughboys to singing. Over There.

Fitzmaurice has used large military units in various sequences of the production, including infantry, artillery and other branches of the British service, and promises in the battling sequence something distinctly out of the ordinary and as nearly correct technically as his large crew of experts could make.

Broadway Theater

"Why shouldn't the woman take the man? Why should she always wait to be taken?"

Thus queried Dorothy Overend in her dressing room recently. Miss Overend plays the role of Iris, the Lady of the Green Hat, in Michael Arlen's dramatization of his own novel. The Green Hat, which will be presented at the Broadway theater, Friday evening only, Sept. 10.

As all the readers of that "best-seller" recollect, Iris mocks at convention and appropriates the male she desires. Her portrayer's remark above quoted was prompted by a letter Miss Overend had just received from a Princeton student, taking exception to a bit of significant business in the play. He said things didn't happen that way—and that they shouldn't happen that way, if they ever did. Miss Overend didn't despise the youth of the student, nor was she offended at his criticism. She disagreed with him—that's all.

Miss Overend was born in Melbourne, Australia of Irish, Scotch and French parentage. She graduated at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, London, winning there a certificate of honour awarded for conspicuous talent awarded by Sir John Hare, Lady Tree and Sir Gerald du Maurier.

She starred throughout the English provinces in The Easiest Way, Oh I Say, A Pair of Silk Stockings, Outcast, The Bust of Egypt, Passers-By, and Nobody's Daughter.

In London she supported Sir Gerald du Maurier, Arthur Bourchier, Sir Charles Hawtrey, Seymour Hicks and at Drury-Lane and the Haymarket theaters in Bulldog Drummond, Tilly of Bloomsbury, Good Luck, and various Bernard Shaw, Sir James Barrie, Oscar Wilde, Alfred Sutro plays.

Mail orders now being filled.

STOCK PRICES SOAR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Breaking away from the tradition of quiet and indecisive trading in a pre-holiday session, stock prices today bounded upward under the leadership of the high grade railroad shares, about a score of which touched their highest prices in a year, or longer. The usual week end realising was in evidence early in the session, but offerings were well absorbed and the general upward movement, which started around midday, reached its peak just before the close when many of the day's highest prices were recorded.

Bullish enthusiasm was created by the optimistic tenor of the weekly mercantile reviews; the large volume of funds available in the call money market at the renewal rate of 4 1-2 per cent., and the report that the steel industry started September with operations around 83 per cent. of capacity, an increase of about 5 per cent. in the last fortnight. Stiffening gasoline prices in the middle west and expanding public participation also were regarded as favorable factors.

Persistent rumors that some of the smaller federal reserve banks would shortly increase their rediscount rates were disregarded, while the increases in rediscounts and not circulation shown in the weekly federal reserve statements were construed as an indication of an expanding commercial and agricultural demand for funds. The failure of G. L. Miller & Co., a large real estate mortgage concern, was not announced until after the market closed.

Chesapeake & Ohio crossed 160 to the highest price ever recorded on the prediction of President Harahan that earnings this year would reach $22 a share. New York Central crossed 146 to the highest price since 1909 on a large turnover, and Southern Railway touched a new peak for all time at 151 1-4. Other rails to break through to new high levels for the year, or longer, were Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Pacific, Rock Island, Louisville & Nashville, Omaha, Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific preferred and Chicago & Northwestern.

U. S. Steel was sluggish in the early trading, selling down to 148 1-8, but it later rallied to 151 on predictions of a large increase in August unfilled orders which will be made public a week from today. Independent steels were practically unchanged.

Railroad equipment shares were in brisk demand under the leadership of Pullman, which advanced nearly 4 points to 166 1-4, the highest price since 1910, on rumors of an early stock split-up. New York Air Brake also touched a new high at 46 3-4.

A more uniformly upward movement also was apparent in the public utilities. Western Union jumped 4 1-2 points to 151, a new record top, and new maximum quotations also were registered by American Power & Light and Brooklyn Edison. Despite rumors of further price cuts as the result of increasing competition, and reduced schedules by one of the large manufacturers, pools were again active in the low priced motors, but the new gains, as a rule, were small. General Motors responded to reports that sales in the manufacturing year ended July 31 broke all records by climbing nearly 3 points to 211 1-2, but slipped back a point from that level on realizing.

Oil shares held fairly steady. Packing issues received better buying support on reports of trade improvement. Cudahy moving up nearly 3 points while the Armour issues gained about a point each.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent. all day. Time money was unchanged but private paper was on a flat 4 1-2 per cent. basis, instead of 4 1-2 to 4 3-4.

With the exception of Spanish pesetas, which jumped about 10 points in the late trading to 15.30 cents, the principal foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling ruled around $4.83 3-16 and French francs around 2.97 cents.

Wheat prices were slightly firmer on reports of unfavorable weather in the Canadian wheat belt. Cotton futures eased slightly on predictions of good holiday weather. Raw sugar was unchanged but coffee prices sagged moderately.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Julian L. Williams of Julian street, Norwich, entertaind at their summer home at Shelter Harbor at an all-day outing Thursday, the employes of Mr. Williams at the Davis plant at 25 Town street, Norwich Town. Although the weather was disagreeable it having rained the greater part of the day, those who attended the gathering reported a most enjoyable time. The outdoor sports usually held were omitted, because of the wet ground, but the company of men went in bathing. The party left Norwich early Thursday morning, arriving at Shelter Harbor, which is nine miles below Westerly, about 10:30, a few coming later. Included in the party, which was conveyed in several automobiles, were William Bottomley, salesman; Lloyd Amea, foreman of the plant; Leonard Dompkins, assistant foreman; William McKeever, stock clerk; James Way, patternman; Edgar Archambeault and Mervin Pieretti. Miss Dorothy Harvey, bookkeeper in Mr. Williams' office, Miss Yvonne Sabourin of Norwich, with Mr. and Mrs. Williams, completed the party.

The special feature of the day was the delicious shore dinner of clam-chowder, steamed clams, green corn, fornfritters, crackers, cold meat, fancy cakes, coffee, punch and watermelon. Later James Way entertained with several sleight-of-hand tricks, with selections over the radio, provided an enjoyable programme.

The Norwich party arrived back at 11 o'clock, having spent the evening at Shelter Harbor. The Williams cottage is located just across the pond from the Quonochontaug life saving station. Last year, Mr. Williams suspended all business for the day and entertained his company of employes at the cottage in the same hospitable manner.

INSIGNIA FOR NAVY TRADE SCHOOL GRADUATES

The recent change in the uniform regulations of the United States navy prescribes that a graduate of one of the navy trade schools shall wear a specialty mark of the branch he has selected on his left sleeve. For instance a graduate of the Machinists Mates school will wear a propeller, musician's school an embroidered harp, electrician's mates school a ball, etc. This marks the man as a specialist and prevents his identity being lost aboard ship and increases his chances for promotion.

Mrs. Frank Corcoran and daughter Mary Jane have returned to their home in Rochester after spending the summer with Mrs. Corcoran's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wholey. They were accompanied as far as Albany by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wholey, Miss Irene Wholey and Miss I. Wilson who are enjoying an automobile trip over the Mohawk Trail.

VIRGINIA TO SUPPORT CAPE COD PROJECT

J. Gordon Bohannan, chairman of the port authority of Virginia and the Hampton Roads Development committee of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, has announced that he would lend his personal support to New England's fight for federalization of the Cape Cod Canal. His first efforts in this work will be in assisting the New England delegation of the Inland Deeper Waterways association convention to obtain the indorsement of that body for the Cape Cod project. The convention goes into session September 17, in Richmond.

Mr. Bohannan's announcement came in answer to an appeal for assistance in promoting the Cape Cod federalization plan issued by Frank Davis, manager of the Maritime Association of Boston to the New England—Virginia committee composed of business men from both sections. The Virginia State chamber of commerce already has indorsed the canal and its improvement by the federal government, the action of the state chamber simply being an approval of the recommendations of George Washington, first president of the United States, who was the first to survey the site for the canal and urged its importance on the people of the United States as an asset to national defense. The state chamber resolutions urge abandonment of the canal on an equitable basis.

"Taking over of the Cape Cod canal would be a very substantial help to the port of Hampton Roads," Mr. Bohannan said as to his personal opinion. "It would shorten the time between Boston and Hampton Roads ports by about five hours. This would mean that the produce from the Norfolk section principally, and from other sections or the state as well, could be put down in Boston harbor in time for early morning markets and thus gain a entire day. As it is now, Merchants and Miners ships leaving Norfolk in the afternoon reach Boston about eight or nine o'clock on the second day. Produce on these ships has to be held over until the next day's market. Using the canal the ship would reach Boston at an early hour in the morning, the produce could be unloaded and taken to markets and handled the same day. Not only this, but the more general use of this canal which would be the result of the ownership and operation of the canal by the government, would mean the elimination of danger to a large extent, which particularly in the winter, attends trips around the cape.

"Moreover, it would bring New England and Virginia closer together, not only in time and in distance, but in friendship."

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

September 8th will be the opening day for the fall terms at Norwich Free Academy and the local public schools, the Academy to open at 8:30 o'clock and the public schools at 9 o'clock. The parochial schools of the city will begin sessions Tuesday morning, Sept. 7th, at 8 o'clock, when masses will be celebrated. School sessions will commence at 9 o'clock.

In announcing the opening of schools for another year an announcement of interest has been made by Rev. S. A. Iclek, that he has put another grade into effect at the new St. Joseph's parochial school, that a grade equal to the first year in high school. It is the plan of Rev. Fr. Iclek that the Polish children of the city, following their completion of eight grades in the lower schools, should continue attending St. Joseph's school as first year high school students. Rev. Fr. Iclek states that the studies in this new grade are to be exactly the same as are taught at the Norwich Free Academy, so that students on completion of first year high school studies at St. Joseph's school, will be able to enter the Norwich Free Academy as lower middlers, or second year students. It is expected that fully 25 students will enroll for the first year high school classes thus relieving the congestion at the Academy during the first year.

Rev. Father Iclek states that at St. Joseph's school there are 11 rooms occupied for school purposes and that five or six rooms remain available for future use. There will be between 60 and 70 pupils in the first year high school pupils when the term opens next Tuesday.

For the convenience of the pupils at St. Joseph's school a lunch counter has been installed thus providing luncheons at moderate rates, the same policy as followed at the Academy.

St. Patrick's parochial school will follow its usual schedule according to Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. Mag; as no changes have been contemplated.

At St. Mary's parochial school Rev. William A. Keefe has announced a change in superiors, Sister Claver to succeed Sister Robertus as superior. Sister Robertus has been teaching the fourth grade for the past three years. There are several changes in the faculty at the school but the policy will remain the same as in past years, the school to follow the schedule as outlined by diocesan authorities, under the supervision of the Connecticut board of education.

Changes in the teaching staffs at the public schools have already been announced and everything is in readiness for the opening of the fall term next Wednesday.

PAYS $216.06 FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

Napoleon LeBarre, a constable from Taftville, was fined $200 and costs, a total bill of $216.06, in the local police court Friday morning, when found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. LeBarre was arrested Thursday night by Officer S. P. Whitmarsh of the state police after LeBarre's machine had collided with another machine, and the accused had been examined by a physician. Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, counsel for the accused, made a strong plea for his client on the grounds that he was an officer of the law. This failed to register with Judge Libby who stated that he had sympathy for the man as an individual but not as an operator and he imposed a fine of $200 with a 30 day jail sentence, execution of the sentence being suspended.

The case against Earl Campbell of Ashville, N. C., charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, was continued until Saturday to allow the sailor to bring more witnesses to court. Campbell is the man who led Officer Peter Driscoll on a chase through the center of the city before he was finally caught in a restaurant, after breaking away from the policeman.

The complaint against Campbell was made by William Sargent and Mr. Gagnons of New London who stated that the accused drove his car nearly into their car on the military highway. Officers Driscoll and Renton testified that the accused was drunk and in no condition to operate a car.

Campbell denied being drunk or resisting an officer. Although Judge Libby informed the accused that the case looked bad for him, he allowed Campbell another day to secure more witnesses.

LAWRENCE AMERICAN WOOLEN MILLS ON FULL TIME SCHEDULE

An Associated Press dispatch from Lawrence, Mass., says:

The mills of the American Woolen company are now running full quotas of employes on a full-time basis, a survey of the local plants showed this week. Orders now reported on the books of the company indicate that this condition will continue the rest of this year and well into the next year. The demand was greatly stimulated by the slash in prices announced by the company during July, when it opened its 1927 lines. The four big plants of the company here have felt the stimulation of the market conditions for the last two weeks. Gradual increases of employes have been made and are still continuing. Full time work has been in order during the last two weeks. The condition is an agreeable change from that of June and July, when part time work and reduced payrolls were the rule.

Fire Convention in New Orleans

Others may join the party which will leave the state early in October.

Other people have prejudices; we have convictions and opinions.

PROMOTED TO ASSISTANT MANAGER FOR METROPOLITAN

The many friends of John E. Fitzgerald will be pleased to learn that he has been promoted to the office of assistant superintendent of the Norwich office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, to assume that position on Monday next. The promotion of Mr. Fitzgerald comes as a result of increased business at the Norwich office, and his selection as assistant manager because of his fine record since entering the employ of the company on March 1, 1922.

Mr. Fitzgerald was formerly with the Alling Rubber Co., serving for 13 years, nine of which were as store manager. He has also served in his home city as councilman and is widely known in fraternal circles.

PACKING UP PLAYGROUNDS EQUIPMENT FOR WINTER

The men instructors of the city playgrounds during the past season with Superintendent of Recreation Earle E. Brigham, were busily engaged on Wednesday and Thursday in collecting the equipment at the various grounds for storage during the winter season.

The see-saws, swings, chutes, etc., at Hobart avenue, Thamesville, Farm and Elizabeth street were collected on Wednesday, these four being stored in the nearby schoolhouses. The remaining five grounds were cleaned up on Thursday and their equipment put away in the basement of the city hall. The baseball, volley ball, hockey, and other sports equipment used by the playgrounds have also been stored away so that the 1926 season in the Norwich playgrounds is about a thing of the past.

August had a rainfall here of 3.80 inches, according to the measurements made at the Norwich water department office.

"Your Child's Eyes"

The school child does not always realize the necessity of an education; the parents often fail to realize the necessary appliances for acquiring it. The eye is our main avenue of education. Defective vision causes more school failures than any other one thing. Your child may see well perfectly. But the one who indicates normal vision and does it with DEFECTIVE EYES, needs glass aid much more than the one who doesn't see so well. We make a specialty of fitting the eyes of children and young people, guarantee an accurate and proper adjustment of glasses, and take care of the eyes until and after they reach maturity. Bring your child NOW for examination.

CHARLES HOPKINS CLARK

[illegible] Atheneum and Watkinson Library of Hartford. He was the president and [illegible] director of The Hartford Courant Company.

Mr. Clark attended his first republican national convention as a reporter in 1888 and attended every subsequent convention, latterly as a delegate at large from Connecticut.

Mr. Clark visited the Philippines and the Far East with William Howard Taft, chief justice, when Mr. Taft was secretary of war, went to the West Indies with Sir William Van Horne and also to Guatemala. He went to Mexico with Charles Dudley Warner, and to Europe with E. P. Parker and on another occasion with his family and other friends.

The editor of The Courant had an unusual gift for forming lasting friendships and a great capacity for sympathetic affections. He loved association with men. One of his lifelong intimates was Jacob Turner, connected with the composing room for over sixty years, who died as foreman emeritus at the age of eighty-eight, in 1924.

The decline in Mr. Clark's health came in the spring of 1924 after he had broken a bone in his shoulder by a fall while trout fishing. The shock of the accident, while it did not long incapacitate him, left him with declining strength. However, he came to the office with great regularity, latterly with the assistance of a chauffeur and nurse to guide his faltering steps. He attended the A. P. directors' meetings and to his duties on the boards of corporations and public institutions. He came to the office January 21 for the last time, discovering upon that day that, finally, he was too weak to work.

Mr. Clark was born in Hartford April 1, 1848, and except for a few boyhood years, when the family resided in New York had always made Hartford his home. He married Miss Imen Root of Hartford in 1873 and she was the mother of his two children, Horace B. Clark, the secretary and a director of The Hartford Courant Company, and Mary H., now the wife of H. K. W. Welch of Hartford. Mr. Clark's first wife died in 1879 and in 1880 Mr. Clark married her sister, Miss Matilda C. Root.

Mr. Clark was a member of the Century club, the Yale club, and the University club of New York; also of the Hartford club, the Graduates club of New Haven, the Dauntless club, the White Hollow Fish and Game and the Metacomet Fish and Game club of Canada, the Monday Evening club of Hartford, and of the Asylum Hill Congregational church.

EMINENT MEN PAY TRIBUTE TO CHARLES HOPKINS CLARK

HARTFORD, Sept. 6—(AP)—Leaders in public life and representative newspaper publishers and editor paid tribute to Charles Hopkins Clark, editor of the Courant, who died tonight.

Among these expressions were the following:

Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times:

"In the death of Charles Hopkins Clark, the country loses one of its foremost citizens, a true patriot, a wise counselor, a courageous leader, a type of the best American manhood. He was a man of the broadest sympathies and intelligent appreciation of human problems and perplexities, of scholarly attainments and an intimate knowledge of the political and economic questions of the world. His genial nature and warm hearted friendship emotionately attached to him men of diverse opinions and predilections. He was a practitioner of the highest standards of journalism, an honor to the profession, and a noble inspiration to his contemporaries. He was for many years a most useful member of the board of directors of the Associated Press and of its executive board. He goes to his rest crowned with a record of great and distinguished public service, and with the respect and admiration of all who knew him. His life and works will be treasured memories. I have a sense of keen personal bereavement, and I mourn with his family and associates, for I have lost a dear and good friend."

Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Washington Star, president, Associated Press:

"In the death of Charles Hopkins Clark, the country has lost a really great journalist. Hartford one of its finest citizens and the Associated Press one of its wisest advisers. I have known him well for many years, respected and admired his great qualities of mind and heart and held him in tender affection as a dear friend whose passing is a keen sorrow to me."

Kent Cooper, general manager the Associated Press:

"Charles Hopkins Clark was the personification of the world loyalty, loyal in all things to which he adhered. He had almost a super-loyalty for his friends. There abided in him genuine affection for those who were fortunate enough to be associated with him. No man devoted himself more loyally to a duty than Mr. Clark devoted to the responsibilities of serving as a director of the Associated Press. For that reason he will be greatly missed by his fellow directors and by the management at this organization."

Melville E. Stone, counselor, the Associated Press:

"My acquaintance with Mr. Clark began more than 30 years ago. Charles Dudley Warner and General Hawley had been valued friends for a good while and it was quite natural that my relation with Charles Hopkins Clark should open into intimacy and affection very speedily. To a personal character sturdy—indeed inflexible in its disregard to high moral principles, he had the added advantage of such QUESTIONS BRAINARD'S RIGHT TO THE TITLE OF LIEUT. GOV.

Holcomb in a personal letter to each delegate to the republican state convention which he has begun to send out, he letters urge support of Chairman John M. Wadhams, of the state board of finance for the lieutenant governorship, "a place that has been vacant, under the constitution, since our present able executive succeeded to the governorship from the lieutenant governorship."

This declaration of ex-Governor Holcomb, who was attorney general and judge of the superior court before becoming governor is directly contrary to an opinion by Attorney General Healy in the winter of 1925, after Hiram Bingham had resigned the governorship the day after his inauguration and Lieutenant-Governor Trumbull had been sworn in by ex-Governor Holcomb as governor of Connecticut. In the meantime, Mr Brainard, who had been elected a senator from the 14th senatorial district, had been cleared by the senate in Leahs presidential election. Attorney General Healy declared that the action, under the circumstances, automatically made Mr Brainard lieutenant-governor.

Among 25 Persons Arrested Were Federal, State and County Officers

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 5—(AP)—In a series of raids directed by M. O. Dunning, prohibition co-ordinator for the southeast, federal prohibition officers at 6 o'clock tonight had arrested 25 persons, including federal, state and county officers and were continuing the drive.

More than 100 prohibition officers from Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida were engaged in the raids which were conducted after preparations so secret that B. C. Sharpe, of Charlotte, prohibition administrator for Georgia and North Carolina and South Carolina did not know of the plans.

In giving out a formal statement, Dunning characterized the raids as "his answer to Mr. Sharpe," who recently issued a statement criticising the existing status of prohibition enforcement in his district.

The officers descended on the "Hell Hole" section of Berkeley county, so-called because of its swamps, arresting among others, Alonzo B. Seabrook, federal prohibition agent who is accused of conspiracy and bribery; H. S. Gamble, sheriff of Williamsburg county, charged with conspiracy to receive bribes, and George C. Hay, of Charleston, S. C., state constable, held on charges of accepting bribes.

The prisoners were locked in the "brig" of the coast guard cutter Yamacraw. The raids continued through the day.

Preparations for the raid have been under way for weeks. Coordinating pounding said today, "I discovered, one of them G. D. McKnight, federal agent, was operating from the "Hell Hole" into Berkeley county last night.

Mr. Dunning quietly began gathering his forces at Charleston last Saturday. Thirty federal agents Sunday morning boarded the coast guard cutter Yamacraw. Others started arriving for Charleston. Arriving in Charleston harbor late yesterday afternoon, they boarded the Yamacraw and remained on board decks. When the ship docked the agents left in groups of twos or three, each under a leader who had specific instructions as to what his group should do. Warrants had been issued in blank and these were filled in by the leaders of groups. United States marshals.

The raid was so well timed that within an hour after the order went out the first reports of arrests and seizures of liquor and cars running without lights began coming to headquarters.

Seabrook was arrested at his home by Deputy United States Marshal C. H. Schultz who was accompanied by McKnight and several other prohibition agents. His house was searched, officers claimed they found fourteen and a half gallons of moonshine whiskey in the house and $1,000 in cash, which $500 was taxpaid money which is to have been given to Seabrook as planted rum runners under Dunning's direction.

FOUR NEW LONDON PEOPLE INJURED WHEN TRUCK SKIDS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 5—Four New London people motoring here in a two-ton Whyte truck to attend the funeral of Victor Swichone Monday morning were injured, two of them quite seriously, shortly before three o'clock, Sunday afternoon, when the truck skidded on the wet road, in making the turn entering the village of South Windham and turned over on its side after crashing into an elm in front of the George F. Stiles home. Philip Severin of 194 North Bank St., driver of the truck and employed by the New London Fruit & Produce company who own the machine, sustained possible internal injuries. His condition is being closely watched at St. Joseph's hospital where the party were taken in the ambulance. Max Forader, 169 North Bank street, elderly father-in-law of Severin, sustained two fractured ribs and lacerations.

Mary Kostenko of 194 North Bank street, young step-daughter of Severin, sustained severe cuts on the left hand and both legs. She was discharged from the hospital after receiving treatment. Philip Levent of 39 Tiley street, leaped from the truck when he saw the impending crash. His forehead struck against the tree and was cut and he was struck in the back by the cab of the truck when it was ripped from its fastenings. He was not detained at the hospital, however. The truck skidded into a culvert as it failed to make the treacherous turn. It then crashed against the tree and fell over on the right side, badly wrecked. Victor Swichone, whose funeral the party were coming to attend, was killed Friday afternoon when run over by a city street department truck. Levent came along to see Willimantic.

Constable Alfred P. Abbe of Windham investigated the accident and has served a charge of reckless driving against Severin. Due to the fact that the truck was not being used for business the liability or property damage insurance coverage is not effective and the damages must be sustained by Severin. The latter has been employed as a truck driver for twelve years and his wife stated that it was his first accident.

SYMPATHY FOR FAMILIES IN TRUCK FATALITIES CASES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 5— Mike Yurenyak, city truck driver held on a manslaughter charge as a result of the death of Victor Swichone, another city street department employe Friday afternoon, in the police court Saturday morning. On petition of Attorney John King, representing the defendant, the case was continued to Saturday, September 25th. Coroner Arthur A. Bill has given notice that he would come to this city Tuesday to hold an inquest on the death of Swichone. Swichone died about half an hour after being run over by a city truck operated by Yurenyak. Sympathy is being extended the wife and five little children of the dead man. Due to Yurenyak, who is head of a family, officials acquainted with the circumstances of the accident consider it unavoidable and there have been no disclosures made public to show that the truck driver was negligent. The machine was proceeding at a walking pace with it bounded off a loose rock which sent it against the unfortunate throwing Swichone who was walking beside it, to the ground. Bonds of $5000 were continued in Yurenyak's case.

In the local police court room Saturday morning Raymond W. Doherty of 275 Barnes avenue, Providence, R. I., pleaded to have himself not guilty of a charge of operating motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He was represented by Attorney Keon. At the close of the evidence Judge Franz H. Foss imposed a fine of $200 and costs, remitting $50 of the fine the balance was paid. Witnesses called by Prosecuting Attorney Gardner were Superintendent Police Officer William J. Anderson who noticed the car zig-zagging as it came down from The Ridges into the city on the night of Saturday, July 31st; Henry Tarrasant of South Coventry, who was with Anderson at the time, Motorcycle Officer Arthur M. Hurley who made the arrest after receiving the complaint from Officer Anderson and Dr. S. J. Turcotte who examined Doherty. When arrested, Officer Hurley said that Doherty smelled of liquor but could not say as to whether or not the man was intoxicated. Doherty tried to do away with a bottle he nearly filled with Italian wine, before entering the police station. At Lieber's request Dr. Turcotte was summoned. His statement which he verified in court was to the effect that the man had had a drink of ale or some nature, but there was no indication that he was intoxicated.

Doherty said that he was employed by a telephone and telegraph company in the vicinity of Bridgeport and Westport. He was the guest of friends in Hartford and during lunch he drank a glass of wine. His friends then gave the bottle exhibited in court. His next stop was at South Coventry Lake where he gave a friend a drink out of the bottle. The only drink he had had was the one in Hartford. He denied that he car zig-zagged although he admitted it was unsteady due to the construction of the road and to a defect in the steering apparatus which he later had repaired in a Washington garage. He showed the bill for the repairs but as it was not dated it carried no weight in the evidence.

Arthur J. Dubreuil, bondsman for Doherty, said that when he saw the man at police headquarters, three hours after the arrest, Doherty was perfectly normal. William O'Brien testified that he saw officer Hurley arrest Doherty on Main street. Doherty walked around the car and appeared entirely sober.

An automobile party of six, three young men, Frank Arbeck, 27, of 21 John street, Attleboro, Mass., driver and owner of the car; Stanley Wojeck of this city, and Peter Perkosker of North Attleboro Mass., the two Misses Bobbs of Pawtucket, R. I., and another girl unidentified, miraculously escaped injuries, about eight o'clock Sunday morning, when the Nash touring car in which they were traveling from this city to Bridgeport, skidded on the wet road in North Coventry and overturned. Arbeck who said that he had been driving only about three weeks was placed under arrest by State Policeman Clifford G. Willis of the Stafford Springs barracks, on a charge of reckless driving. He furnished bond, to $500 for his appearance in the Coventry town court Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The accident happened near the Brooks home, in Coventry. When the brakes were applied to the car it skidded along for about 100 feet, struck against the bank, slid back along the road for some 20 feet, bunted against the bank again and then plunged along for about 15 feet before rolling over with the four wheels in the air. The only injury was a slight cut on Arbeck's hand. The party crawled out to safety and with assistance righted the machine which was then driven off under its own power. The top and windshield were demolished and an axle bent.

Joseph Beaudry, formerly of this city, died Friday afternoon in Salem, from injuries sustained when a tree that he was chopping fell unexpectedly and a limb struck him on the neck. He was born in St. Emelie, Canada, in 1852, a son of Adolphe and Julien Emon Beaudry. Over one hundred lively babes were entered in the Better Baby contest at the Elks' Country Fair Saturday afternoon. The contest and a highly colorful doll carriage parade were the feature attractions of the afternoon. Dr. A. Knowlton of the state department of health, a staff of nurses from the bureau of child hygiene, Misses Ida Olsen, Margaret Lewis, Helen Van Metre and Theresa Vincent, and student nurses from St. Joseph's hospital training school. During the thorough examinations made of the infants the mothers were given valuable advice on their care.

In the doll carriage parade, the pretty children pushing cleverly arranged carriages made a very interesting display. The prizes for both events will be announced from the grandstand three o'clock this afternoon. The attendance at the Fair has increased greatly during the three nights past. The balloonist, profiting by the experience of getting the public lost, plans to see when he was lost in the darkness Thursday night has changed his ascending time from near midnight to twilight. He furnished a thrill by dangling by his feet and unfurling an American flag which he waved in carefree fashion, as he hung headdown several hundred feet in the air. He then executed a safe parachute landing.

Willimantic stands in line for still another new and attractive business and amusement building. Saturday, Louis J. Cesarty of 295 Jackson street, who has operated a theatre on Broad street here for several years announced his intention of erecting a fine store structure to house a theatre with a seating capacity of 1,500. The location of the proposed playhouse has not yet been fully determined but Mr. Cesarty promised a roomy and attractive building in a central part of the city. With the lease on the Broad street theatre expiring about that time, Mr. Cesarty plans to have his new building ready for opening next fall.

Miss Mary Murphy of Prospect park, near South Windham road, received a telegram a few days ago that her brother, James Murphy of Clayville, N. Y., former resident of this city had been shot and is not expected to live. He is a patient at a Utica, N. Y. hospital. No particulars of the shooting were given. DANIELSON

RUM RUNNER GABBY— EASY PREY FOR THE POLICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 5—It has become something of an axiom that bootleggers are never without friends or customers. Take the case of Louis Memmoli, 27, of 472 Park avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. He was sent over to Brooklyn jail from the Killingly town court Saturday morning after he had been fined $400 and cosst for trying to run a load of alcohol from New York through Danielson to Worcester, and it may as well be mentioned that he also had 50 pints of liquor in his contraband cargo.

Memmoli could not pay his fine, so went over to jail. But did he spend the holiday season there? He did not. New York people just love to tell you that everything of Manhattan island is out in the sticks. It would appear that when the occasion warrants they find that such a small community as Danielson is not so far away—they discover it, in fact. Someone rushed up here Saturday evening in response to a telephone call and put up the $411.74 required to obtain Memmoli's release from jail, and there is more or less ground for the assumption that Memmoli is enjoying labor day and the repossession of the nice new sedan he was driving when he was captured as much as many people who stay here all the time and wonder a great deal about how a great many things happen and the reason therefor.

Memmoli cannot be rated an expert in finesse as a rum runner. Maybe he is afflicted with that "out in the sticks and dumbbells" theory as to everyone who lives outside the twelve mile limit from New York's city hall. There must be something remiss with a man who has 8 5-gallon cans of alcohol, 36 1-gallon cans of alcohol and 50 pints of whiskey in the back of a sedan, not to mention an open bottle for a convenient drink, who stops his car on a side street in a town the size of Danielson at 3 a. m. as he did Saturday leaves it and walks over to an all-night restaurant to telephone to Worcester of his successful trip and to announce his forthcoming prompt arrival with the goods. But that is what Memmoli did. Officer John Gebert was not slow to size up the man and the car and to get the rum runner's load.

In court Saturday morning Judge W. Fenner Woodward fined him $200 for illegal transportation of liquor, $200 for keeping with intent to sell, and costs a total of $411.74.

Wm. Memmoli, when he was arrested was Walter Dingalkoski, 18, of 15th street, Brooklyn, N. Y. In the eyes of the court he rated as would a passenger in an average car and such charges as were filed against him were noted.

Memmoli made more than one trip through Danielson during the summer season. The police had his number—and by such a foolish move as one would never attribute to such wise people as New Yorkers—admit to the world that Memmoli's help being, in fact, he made a bust of a trip that is going along good until he arrived here.

NAP. DE FOREST IN JAIL— COULD NOT PAY BIG FINE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 5—Napoleon DeForest, resident of Mechanic street, never can be convinced that Saturday was anything but pulley day in the town court. He was fined $411.74 when he was asked to pay $500 and costs for violation of the liquor laws, not to mention the costs.

DeForest was fined on five counts, four on each count, three counts for actual sales, one count for reputation and one count for keeping with intent to sell.

A Friday night raid by County Investigator W. E. Jackson of Willimantic and Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of this town led to the downfall of DeForest, who for months has been reported to have had a place where something to drink could be obtained. He had been previously warned to quit and his failure to do so led to his arrest. Failed to court in default of the fine, he was taken to the county jail in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Matilda LaPointe, 68, wife of Louis Lapointe, died Saturday in Danielson where she has been resident for some time. Mrs. LaPointe was a native of Canada, but had lived practically all of her life in this town. She is survived by her husband. There are no children.

If there are men hereabouts who are competent and full of good work at the trades of carpenters, glaziers, painters, masons, operating derricks and scaffolds, there is work for them at the government armory in Stonington, Conn., so a service announcement at the Danielson postoffice makes known. The pay is from $5.60 to $6.08 per day for toolmakers and $5.84 to $6.12 per day for gauge makers. No written examination is required, but applicants will be rated on their experience and physical condition. Unskilled laborers are wanted at $4.75 per day. Efforts to get the employees needed in the vicinity of Springfield have failed the notice says.

Guy Rowland, alias E. A. Rowland of Jamestown, N. Y. was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Saturday morning to face a charge of forgery, an offense alleged to have been committed in January of this year and to have involved the signing of the name of John Ludwig to a bill of sale for running town roadster Rowland went to jail for ten days.

Tomorrow (Tuesday) prisoners who are to face charges of a criminal nature at the September term of the Windham county superior court will appear before that tribunal in Willimantic and will be out to plea. A considerable number of prisoners are held at Brooklyn jail in default of bail and some are held there without bail. Those who will be before the court are as liberty under bail. It is not likely that any cases will be tried on Tuesday, such trials as may be necessary coming later in the term.

Sunday, Major E. L. Darbie entertained Captain Edward J. Noons, a Providence attorney who is assistant adjutant of the 43rd division, in which organization Major Darbie has command of special troops.

After 10 o'clock this (Monday) morning, the postoffice will be closed for the day. However, the lobby will be open. There will be no deliveries by carriers.

Roland Boulaine is spending the holiday period in New York, with a group of friends from Danielson.

J. C. Witter has purchased of Albert Day of Springfield a dwelling on Broad street, opposite Davis Park. Mr. Witter said Sunday that he has no definite plans regarding the property.

From 12:30 this (Monday morning) until 4 o'clock there was dancing at the pavilion at Willowood park, the attendance attracted from many sections of this part of the state.

There was a large attendance Saturday evening at a supper given by St. James' [illegible] at the [illegible] at noon Sunday a dinner was served there to the [illegible] for another group who wished to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Head and members of the family from Westerly were holiday guests of Michael Head and family of Academy street.

St. James' parochial school is to open for the new school year Thursday morning.

A number from this place were at the First Congregational church in South Killingly Sunday evening to attend a special service preliminary to the Old Home day exercises to be held on that community today (Monday).

Until rain came to slow down the week end traffic through Danielson appeared to be about the peak of the present summer season, and, outside of Danielson, there was much wild driving in the territory. Later reflected in a string of more or less serious accidents.

Several of the cottagers who have been spending the summer at Alexander's lake will call it a season with today and go to their homes, with only week end stays at their summer places contemplated for the remainder of the year.

WESTERLY

OFFICERS FIND LIQUOR IN PAWCATUCK RAID

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 5—Before Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck, in Stonington town court Saturday night, John Farrara, of 21 Wall street, Stonington, was admitted to $1,000 bail for his appearance in town court Tuesday morning at 9:15 o'clock to answer to a charge of possession of intoxicating liquors. Manuel and Amelia Pont of Stonington became his surety.

Patrolman William Ostman, armed with a search warrant and accompanied by Officers Frank O. Burrows, Edward Doyle and John Heartmen, visited the premises at 6:15 o'clock Saturday night. Two 5-gallon jugs and a 10-gallon wooden keg of moonshine rewarded their search and this they seized as evidence.

Saturday morning at 6:50 o'clock, Officers William Ostman, Frank O. Burrows and John Heartman made a visit to the place of John Fernandez, 1 Grand street, corner of Northwest street, where they found the door locked. Minnie Anthony was asked to open the door, but went to a back room. After the third demand was made the officers broke in the door. When entrance was gained he was found emptying the moonshine in the sink. The officers continued to a back addition where they lifted up some floor boards and digging down two feet found a barrel in which they detected the odor of moonshine, they reported.

In Pawcatuck Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Margaret Walker Silvia, daughter of Mrs. Charles H. Brown, was united in marriage with Edward E. Labor day in Westerly will pass without formal observance, parade or athletic contests, as races or baseball games. Should the day prove pleasant the Westerly heights of Watch Hill, Pleasant View and Weekapaug will be popular on the last holiday of the season. Not only distant visitors but local people, lacking other diversions, will go to the shore. An indication of the rush was gained Saturday, when automobile traffic, both east and west, through Dixon square in the afternoon and evening broke all records. Saturday the overhead police signal flood light was moved from its former position, opposite the St. Clair corner to nearer the center of the Square. Traffic Officer Robert Kessel, stationed near the silent policeman has kept busily occupied in directing the long line of automobiles, which with slight holdup extended the length of Broad and High streets. To care for pedestrian traffic Officer LeRoy Norman was at the St. Clair corner crosswalk. The peak of the vehicular and pedestrian traffic was reached about 5:30 Saturday night.

At Watch Hill a regatta is scheduled in Little Narragansett Bay between sailing craft of the Alden and Herreshoff class. Trophies donated by Mrs. Frank A. Styles of Watch Hill and Pawtucket, R. I., which will be awarded at the conclusion of the races and also the prizes given by Daniel F. Larkin for the winners of the Fourth of July races.

Westerly industries will be closed as well as the postoffice and retail business places. The Westerly postoffice will keep holiday hours; the general delivery and stamp windows will be open from 7 o'clock until noon. There will be no rural or carrier deliveries and the post office lobby will close at 10 p. m. Outgoing mails, however, will be sent as usual.

Sunday proved a rainy and dreary day. Frequent showers kept people within doors, both in town and at the beaches. Automobile traffic was light and in marked contrast with that of Saturday.

Saturday evening, when automobile traffic was heavy, soon after eight o'clock, Ed Burdick, 31, residing on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, was knocked down on the Pawcatuck river bridge, near the E. Howard Clark store by the automobile operated by Robert A. Stewart. Patrolman George H. Champlin, on duty in the square, investigated the accident and took Burdick to the office of Dr. M. H. Scanlon on High street, where it was found that the man had not sustained serious injuries. He had abrasions of the left arm and left leg. No responsibility for the accident was attached to the driver of the automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Miller of Richmond, Va., suffered injuries from an automobile accident on the Stonington-Westerly road, Thursday, about 3:35 o'clock in the afternoon. Driving a Willys-Knight touring car eastbound to avoid hitting an automobile coming out of the driveway at John Chappell's, Mr. Miller struck a telephone pole near the residence of Selectman Arthur F. Babcock. The injuries sustained were cuts from broken and flying glass. Taken to the office of Dr. C. Grant Savage on Elm street, Westerly, Mrs. Miller was found to have received cuts on her leg, knee and chin, while Mr. Miller received a bad gash below the knee. Patrolman C. Wilcox Brown was called to investigate and assisted in taking the injured people to the doctor's office.

COSTLY NEW SCHOOL DEDICATED BY BP. HICKEY

WESTERLY, Sept. 5—Rain weather interfered but slightly with the formal dedication of the new parochial school of the Immaculate Conception parish on the corner of High and Dixon streets, this afternoon.

Rt. Rev. William A. Hickey, bishop of Providence, dedicated the school, being attended by 20 clergymen from Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut. In spite of the rain the procession left the church and moved at 3:30 o'clock through High and Dixon streets to the corner stone, where the ceremony of blessing and dedicating the new school building was held. Hymns were sung by the choir. The people assembled then proceeded to the Dixon street entrance of the new school building. Coming out of the building, the procession moved to the new convent just north of the school building on High street, from their returning to the church. At solemn benediction in the church, Rev. A touring car, a red Essex, was reported to the Westerly police Friday night as having disappeared from a Watch Hill garage. The automobile was owned by J. H. Morton of Watch Hill and New York. Saturday afternoon a Westerly automobilist proceeding along the Westerly-Norwich road saw an abandoned automobile near the Frank White farm. When the theft was reported to Chief Brown of the Westerly police department, he learned that there was little gas in the automobile, when left by its owner and predicted that the machine would be found abandoned for the roadside, not far from Westerly. Motorcycle Traffic Officers Robert M. Kessel and George L. Madison were sent to the place and finding that the car tallied with the description of the lost one, had it towed to the R. I. garage, where he owner obtained it undamaged.

Labor day is one of the developments of a movement which was begun on behalf of labor more than a half century ago. As this movement reached its height it was proposed that there should be a special day in it year for the holding of parades of labor organizations and the first Monday in September was fixed as the date. This was in 1884 and it certainly was a practice which the organizations in the various cities had been accustomed to carry out during the month of September. Labor organizations as then constituted have since [illegible] Labor day has been maintained although there is less attention given to parades and to addresses upon labor than was the case a couple of decades or more ago.

In the course of the decision it is stated there was no violation of the [illegible] and the lookout of the City of Rome was not insufficient, but that [illegible] could not [illegible] have been avoided by either vessel.

Even though the City of Rome was the overtaking vessel it does not appear [illegible] greater responsibility upon the officers of that ship than they did upon the submarine for the reason that either vessel could and should have made the collision impossible, and they emphasize the [illegible] that even though there [illegible] respected [illegible] avoid a collision. [illegible] during recent [illegible] nights, the contention being that had such been the case, though not required by International rules, there would have been no question about the determination of [illegible] the vessel ahead was going. When vessels cannot escape collision on the open sea it is time for every possible protection.

PENALIZING CRIMINALITY

From time to time there is evidence furnished to the effect that conditions in New York are not what they should be and that real attention must be devoted to correcting them. Warning has been served by judges upon gun toters and other criminals and now Judge Mancuso has made a statement to the grand jury which should have the effect of bringing that same influence to bear in other directions.

Judge Mancuso calls for the revision of the laws under which it is possible to stave off trials so long, the holding to strict accountability of lawyers who commit unprofessional acts or use methods to delay trials of persons charged with crime and stiffer sentence for habitual criminals.

In the sentencing of certain prisoners under the new law which has gone into effect in the Empire state judges have indicated that no quarter can be expected by the criminals. When their acts show the need of stiff sentences they are deprived of the leniency which has hitherto been open to them through appeal to the jurors' wards. Long sentences mean much more than they did, and apparently an effective weapon has been placed in the hands of the authorities with which to discourage crime and protect the public.

It can be readily appreciated that along with this there should go the necessary law changes which will correct other equally deplorable conditions such as the revision of the laws which permit of long delays intended solely for the purpose of having the case forgotten, permitting time for witnesses to die or disappear and escaping the penalty that is deserved. When lawyers play into the hands of the criminals and take advantage of the law to the detriment of the public it is time for changes in the law which will deal quite as effectively with that condition as the Baumes law appears to have done with the court sentences [illegible] heard.

[illegible] in some of this kind the necessary support should be forthcoming.

LABOR DAY

Once again Labor day is with us and there will be a general observance of it throughout the country. It finds the country suffering from no serious labor disputes, although there can be recalled a number which ought never [illegible] and brought about [illegible]

SLIPPERY ROADS CONTRIBUTE TO AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS IN TOWN

Wet and slippery highways Sunday contributed toward automobile accidents in Norwich Sunday, two of which occurred close together about 11:30 o'clock on the Yantic flats. Fortunately the damage was all confined to the machines.

The Ford coupe of Arthur E. Fish of 27 Franklin street was struck by a Massachusetts car owned and driven by J. B. Dunphy of 31 Dugas street, Northampton. The latter car had the running board and mudguards cleaned off on one side and the coupe had the wishbone bent and a hub cap torn off. The Northampton man did not consider his mudguards worth taking home but left the crumpled metal by the side of the road.

Harold Wade of Colchester, driving his roadster toward Yantic and traveling in the trolley tracks on his extreme right, became involved in a curious accident when a machine coming in the opposite direction, skidded, pivoted around to the direction from which it had been coming and hit the left rear wheel of the Colchester car. Wade's machine was knocked across the trolley tracks and over into the bushes and fence by the side of the road.

The machine that did the damage was a Dodge touring car, owned by N. Kotkoff and driven by Peter Magral, both of Fitchville. As Magral, coming toward the city, was about to meet the Colchester car, another machine was parked at his right and when he put on his brakes, his car swung completely around so that its right side struck Wade's machine. The left rear wheel of the Colchester machine was crushed, mudguard damaged and glass broken. The Fitchville car had its bumper twisted, top broken and torn, windshield broken, and right mudguards bent.

Constable Lucius Fenton who was summoned to the place, made an investigation of both accidents.

Sunday night at 9:30 o'clock on West Main street near the Washington square corner the Dodge touring car of Charles O'Neil of East Great Plain, which was driven by Joseph O'Neil, skidded and struck the machine of Abraham Schindler of 234 Main Pleasant street which was parked at the left running board of the Schindler machine was damaged.

There was found [illegible] the wounds already noted he had [illegible] of the upper part of the [illegible] Lieutenant Graham remained a German prisoner until after the armistice. Decided on Ministry

Returning to the United States Jan. 25, 1919, he was admitted to the Walter Reed hospital in Washington, from which he was discharged May 10, 1919. Mr. Graham resumed his Y. M. C. A. work in Utica, N. Y., but his health was so impaired that he was forced to resign at the end of the year. Little hope was held out for him as he had a permanent concussion of the brain due to fifty-one shell which had not been removed. The injury to the right side of his body had paralyzed the left side of his face. But in spite of intense suffering the veteran maintained a cheerful outlook and determined to fit himself for the ministry in the profession in which he was most useful in view of his [illegible] to do so.

The United States Veterans bureau at Hartford took over his case, [illegible] matriculated at Yale Divinity school in the fall of 1922. Mrs. T. I. Bergman of the local bureau personally [illegible] himself in the case of Mr. Graham and [illegible] in his behalf. [illegible] sentiment who would see that Mr. Graham [illegible] in his [illegible] of divinity degree without a long, hard fight that nearly cost him his life.

"At the time I entered the divinity school," said Mr. Graham, "the faculty regarded 60 as the passing grade, but as I had no academic degree I was obliged to [illegible] 75 to pass. It was [illegible] and I had to study so hard [illegible] pain in my head would [illegible] to drive me [illegible] Even now I am rarely without a headache and any unusual mental strain will cause me terrible pain. I have to lie down a part of each day and I am obliged to receive medical treatment twice a week. But it was difficult for me at examination time. Once or twice I collapsed on the street because the mental strain had affected the injured part of my brain and brought on my paralysis again. And after an examination period I was generally confined to bed for a week.

"The hardest thing, though is to know that I can never accomplish big things. I am doomed to lead a quiet, inactive life it is because of my health but I am sure, but I have become very fond of the peace and there is much for me to do. My ultimate goal is to become a student pastor in some college town because I love to study and I am happiest when working with men and boys."

Influence in Community

Two years ago residents of Windham Center and South Windham were invited at the suggestion that the men of the two towns be brought together socially. People had tried that sort of thing before without success. One [illegible] was the inhabitants of the towns to [illegible] in small groups and because of South Windham were too far apart in classes and besides [illegible] business men of Windham Center did not [illegible] to associate [illegible] with the mill [illegible]

But the new pastor kept working quietly and [illegible] he had sold [illegible] to the [illegible] of the leading citizens of [illegible] Station, with 37 members [illegible] and now the community [illegible] to the Windham Center [illegible] Windham now has 115 [illegible] attendance [illegible] Not only have [illegible] young men and [illegible] they have [illegible] a better [illegible] community [illegible] the suggestion of [illegible] have organized a [illegible] the country boy [illegible] the Y. WITCH HAZEL-ANISE KNOCKS OUT MAN AFTER KICK AT NEW LONDON

(Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 5—What has been called a "crime of passion" was [illegible] was brought [illegible] the police court [illegible] had been well [illegible] sweets in the Pouliot of Uncasville, more than 40 years of age and who has driven an auto during 15 years. She was driving down the hill at Williams street and ran her auto into a trolley car that was coming up the incline, and which was brilliantly lighted, just before 8 o'clock at night. The car was the Norwich trolley that leaves here at 7:15. Policeman Cockrell, Motorman Joseph Rutherford, Conductor Joseph Rubell and Harold Alger, a spectator who was passing, all told the same story as to what occurred, that Mrs. Pouliot ran her car out of traffic and headon into the trolley car. Mrs. Pouliot declared that she did not see the car till it was too late to avert a collision, and she told the court that she was of the opinion that the trolley car did not have head light nor illumination inside. The others all declared that the trolley car was well lighted. Mrs. Pouliot is not troubled with impaired vision, so the only conclusion that can be reached is that she "lost her nerve."

Herbert King, a minor, was fined $20 for operating a car without being in possession of a license so to do. He owns the car, but he has never taken out a license to use it.

Samuel Dubois, a navy lieutenant, was fined $10 for speeding. He said he did not realize that he was "hitting it up" as he did to go 45 miles an hour.

Two more cases of liquor law violation were prosecuted Saturday, and fines were imposed in each case. John [illegible] for a while had a profitable [illegible] business there for months sought to make money quicker and resorted to the sale of liquor. He sold to agents and they gave the information to the police with the evidence [illegible] to place what they alleged. Him was fined $150. He had the money to settle with the court, too.

Saul and Tyra D'Aignon came here from Tampa Bay, Florida, and began business at Ocean Beach with the idea that they could "clean up" in a season by running rooms. They perhaps had the right notion of things, but they couldn't to augment their receipts by the sale of booze. They manned Le Pon Ton rooming place, said to be located in and went out with the [illegible] of travel, but soon they were able to [illegible] while they were in that [illegible] port. They paid well for [illegible] but [illegible]. Then they informed the information to the police, [illegible] and pay and a raid on Le Bon Ton followed. The officers searched the place and found an abundance of liquor, all packed away in a suit case and nicely sealed in pint bottles. This represented something more than $100 to the owners, at the price the liquor brought at retail. The accused did not attempt a defense. There was no use to do that for the evidence to convict was at hand. They were fined $300.

As this raid was the second within a fortnight the end of the season at the beach was a disastrous one for some of the holders of concessions.

Mary Daranowski, of Niantic; Eular Countryman, Niantic; Helen Donohue, 235 Huntington street; Master William Birchall, 73 Belden street; Master Francis Mariani, Great Neck road, Waterford; George Maine, 146 Green street; Mary Keitkowski, 28 New street; Mrs. Edson Patterson and infant son, 19 Center street; Barbara and Rueda Wiseman, Stonington; Harry Hanson, 15 Center street; Margaret Holmgren, 38 Shaw street; Mildred Hudson, Niantic; and William Connor, 290 Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Saturday.

The funeral of Charles H. Bedell, formerly employed as electrical engineer at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company, held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 189 Pequot avenue, was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including officials and employes of the New London Ship & Engine company. The services were conducted by Rev. W. K. Bailey, temporary rector of St. James' Episcopal church. The bearers were employees of New London Ship & Engine company and were Ernest Nibbs, Hugo Momm, Grant Edgar, Louis B. Doane, Donald Battles and William M. Curtiss. The body was forwarded to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where burial will take place Monday.

John Foley, veteran cobbler, died Friday night at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Rose Hall, 23 Grove street, after a lingering illness. He had been employed at various periods by different shoe repairing establishments of the city.

Mrs. Mary Abbie Morrill, 26, wife of Charles Morrill, died at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence hospital Saturday morning, where she had been under treatment but a few days. Besides her husband, Mrs. Morrill is survived by two children, three brothers, two sisters and her mother.

Abraham Notkins, of New Haven, has sold two houses and lots on Connecticut avenue to Mary M. Granatin.

Leo T., and Joseph P. Lyons, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah J. Lyons, 134 Montauk avenue, are among 351 applicants for the admission to the bar of New York state. Messrs. Lyons passed the examinations for their admission which were held at Albany last Thursday when 1500 students took the examination. The former is at present engaged in the law office of former Secretary of State Elihu Root and the latter is in the office of former Judge Delehanty and Professor Loring, both of New York.

Frank Saunders of Whittlesey street, made complaint to the police Saturday night that a house he is having constructed on Vauxhall street, is a playground for youths every night between 7 and 9, and that considerable damage has been occasioned there.

The New London police were requested this morning to maintain a watch for Peter Barbieri, Hartford, who is wanted in the latter city on a charge of murder. Barbieri is described as being 35, about five feet, six inches in height, black moustache, black curley hair and dark complexion. When he escaped from Hartford, Barbieri drove a Hudson automobile bearing registration, 55-833.

George A. Tyler, chief petty officer attached to the United States Coast Guard destroyer Cassin, stationed at the section base, State pier, was arrested at the Star restaurant, State street, Saturday midnight, charged with intoxication, breach of the peace and carrying concealed weapon. He will be presented in the police court Monday morning. Tyler was in the restaurant and was in a disturbing mood. His actions attracted the attention of Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman John Foley, who arrested him. The revolver was a 45 calibre, but unloaded, was found in Tyler's pocket.

Dorothy Lewis, Indian, 32, of 650 Bank street, was arrested Saturday night on Potter street by Patrolman William Reardon, where she was drunk and unable to navigate. The woman, who has a long police court record, principally on charges of intoxication, will be presented in the police court Monday morning.

Clayton N. Gates, sailor, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman John Sullivan, charged with breach of the peace and will be presented in the police court Monday morning. Gates was on State street about midnight and creating a disturbance.

An automobile owned by C. E. Flaherty, 15 Colver street, which was parked on Main street, near Douglass street, was struck by a New London and Norwich trolley car that left from New London for Norwich at 8:45 o'clock this evening. The automobile was damaged.

Stephen Stanley, of Niantic, was arrested Saturday morning when his home was raided by state police from Groton barracks. Stanley was charged with violation of the liquor law and was locked up at the police station here in default of a surety on his bond of $500. Stanley's place had long borne the reputation of being a place where liquor was to be procured. Evidence against the house obtained recently and Saturday a force of State police officers, armed with a search warrant, swooped down upon the place. A search revealed evidence of trafficking in liquor and besides that evidence a large still was seized.

Celebrators of the holiday started in earnest Saturday and as a result there will be a large docket to claim the attention of Judge S. Victor Pierce when the police court convenes Monday morning. There are about 20 men and women in the police station tonight charged with intoxication. Besides those locked up for that offense, there are about a dozen drivers of automobiles, who will face the court on charges of violation of the state and city motor vehicles laws.

An automobile owned by John A. Morton, a guest at the Ocean house, Watch Hill, was stolen from that place Friday night and Saturday the New London police were requested to maintain a watch for the stolen auto.

Mrs. Bogue, 139 Winthrop street, made complaint to the police Saturday night that two men had attempted to rob her by grabbing her pocketbook. Mrs. Bogue stated that she was on Winthrop street on her way to her home, when an automobile stopped longside the curb and one of the occupants alighted, asking her if she was aquainted with a woman whose first name was Dorothy. When she informed the inquirer that she knew of no women by that name, the man as alleged to have attempted to seize her purse, but her cries caused the fellow to jump into the automobile, which was speeded away.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY BUSINESS REVIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—(AP)—Labor day, which marks the end of the summer season, finds business in better shape than it has been in any similar period for years past, with excellent prospects of record-breaking trade this fall.

While the summer is invariably a period of slackening commercial activity, the decline has been scarcely noticeable this year. The steady improvement in the domestic business situation also has been accompanied by indications of improved economic conditions abroad, particularly in the continental countries, with prospects also brighter for an early settlement of hte British coal strike.

Crop conditions generally are regarded as satisfactory. While the harvests are not expected to break any records for size, the prices obtained give assurance of substantial purchasing power in the agricultural regions, particularly in the southwest.

The record-breaking railroad traffic reports bear striking testimony to the country's huge consumptive demand of food, materials and merchandise. Steel mill operations were reported around 83 per cent of capacity as the month opened, despite a graduate decline in building construction and increasing foreign competition. Automobile production and sales are being maintained in unusually large volume, but one of the manufacturers announced a reduction in manufacturing schedules as the week closed.

The stability of oil prices in the face of a rather steady increase in crude oil production is explained by the record breaking consumption of gasoline, and the large increase in reports. Gasoline prices are ruling several cents a gallon higher today than they were a year ago. The copper market also shows more firmness.

Bank clearings in the principal cities are running slightly larger than the corresponding period last year. Factory employment is high, with wages generally above those of 1925. Commercial failures in August were relatively small, but a large New York real estate mortgage firm went into bankruptcy on Friday with liabilities of nearly $7,000,000 and assets, consisting largely of bonds held for sale at par, somewhat above that figure.

Judging from the monthly earnings statements, the prosperity of the railroads is greater than it has been at any time since the war. Stocks of several carriers have sold at their highest prices in history during the past week, with the general average of 20 leading issues at the highest level since 1912. Consumption of electric power also is at the highest level in the country's history.

The turn of the season has not been accompanied by any marked stiffening in money rates, as was expected in some quarters. Money for commercial purposes appears to be in plentiful supply, while the quick absorption of several large bond issues recently testifies to a huge underlying investment demand for high grade securities.

COLT BOUND FOR FAIR HAS LEGS BROKEN AND HAS TO BE KILLED

P. A. Schultz of Mystic, who was on [illegible] with three horses to exhibit at the New London county fair here, lost a valuable Morgan stallion colt, which had to be shot because of injuries which it received in an unusual accident about 11 o'clock Sunday morning near the Poquetanuck drawbridge on the military highway.

A son of Mr. Schultz was driving a horse hitched to a sulky, leading the colt behind, when an automobile driven by William A. Kinsman of 1114 Fairmount street, Washington, D. C., skidded into a pile of stones by the roadside. The horse in the sulky took fright and ran away, but Schultz fell out of the sulky and the colt lost his footing and was dragged along the highway by the runaway horse until he was stopped.

Mr. Schultz claimed that the automobile hit the horse but this was disputed by the Washington man who said the runaway was caused by the skid into the stones, and denied that he hit any of the horses.

Report of the accident was made to Sergeant Myron O. Morgan at police headquarters, who notified the local agent of the Connecticut Humane society, Fred H. Wyant, who went to the drawbridge where he found the colt so badly injured that it had to be shot.

The knee bones in both fore legs of the animal were broken almost clean across, the skin was scraped from a good portion of the foreleg and also from the hind legs.

RESPECT FOR LAW STRESSED BY REV. FR. JOHN J. REILLY

It was announced from the pulpit of St. Patrick's church Sunday that the parish school will open the term Tuesday. The opening will follow a special mass in the church at 8 o'clock, offered to God to invoke His blessing on the work of teachers and pupils during the new school year. When the service is over, the children will assemble in the basement [illegible] by classes to their school rooms. New pupils are expected to register this (Monday) morning, but [illegible] may be assigned to their respective grades preliminary to the formal opening exercises Tuesday.

With the beginning of September, too, all parish children are expected to attend the special mass every Sunday at 7. Referring Sunday to this matter, Rev. John J. Reilly emphasized the importance of this rule, also the wish of the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May that parents and children adhere to it, save in very exceptional cases—children who are sickly, nervous, or the like. Father Reilly asked parents to discourage the absence of their children at the other masses, seeing to it that they were promptly in their places with the other children of the parish, as a matter of discipline and order and for the general good. He deprecated the action of some parents in giving their children the impression that they are a little better than others, or permitting them to infringe even the simple rule of attendance at their own special service. It was well from the outset, he impressed upon all parents, to let children understand that they must have respect for law—if always, at least for the common laws they [illegible] and especially for civic laws.

The brief words of admonition were [illegible] and Father Reilly's listeners that in the eyes of God all are equal and that [illegible] special consideration for [illegible] class or privileged [illegible]

[illegible] the middle aisle are reserved each Sunday for the children. The overflow being provided for in the two galleries, where there is always a Sister or teacher from the parish school in charge. The pupils remain in their pews until the adult worshipers have [illegible]

During the announcements, Father Reilly stated that, while all returns from the week's mammoth lawn party were not in, it was certain to prove the most successful social event ever held by the parish. Rev. Myles P. Galvin, general chairman, will announce the net receipts later. The rector and his assistants expressed their obligation to White Cross council, K. of C., for the loan of their fine grounds, also to the members of the different committees, who worked with such a laudable spirit of co-operation and such notable efficiency.

Sunday was the 15th Sunday after Pentecost, the epistle read in all the masses of the Catholic world being Galatians V, 25-26; VI 1-10, "Brethren, if we live in the spirit, let us walk in the spirit," etc. The gospel was Luke VII, 11-16, narrating the miracle of the restoration to life of the only son of the Widow of Nain.

At the 7.30 mass the great number receiving communion from the rector and his assistant was led by the members of the Children of Mary society. At 9, two priests were also required to administer the sacrament, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass being assisted by Father Reilly.

PLAN MOTH QUARANTINE CHANGES IN MANY TOWNS

Changes in the gypsy moth quaran[illegible] in this state, to release [illegible] towns and provide regulations for [illegible] ones generally infested by [illegible] and the other more highly [illegible] affected, are planned by Director W. L. Slate, Jr., of the state agricultural experiment station. The proposed state [illegible] will conform to recent [illegible] in the federal quarantine. A public hearing is to be held on the matter at the capitol, Thursday, September 9, at 10 a. m.

Consideration is to be given at that time to the inclusion of brick, stone and quarry products and other materials liable to distribute the pests among the products requiring permits for shipping out of the quarantined areas.

The generally infested area, where the most rigid state quarantine will prevail includes Windham county, most of Tolland and towns of Hartford county east of the Connecticut river. The other area will include the other towns of Hartford and Tolland counties, a number in Litchfield and New Haven counties and nearly all of Middlesex and New London counties.

The towns proposed for release are in Litchfield and New Haven counties. Fairfield county is the only one entirely free of the pest, according to Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist, who is active in work of eliminating the gypsy moth.

MISS ANNA M'GRORY SPOKE AT CATHOLIC WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Immigration was discussed by Miss Mary Lenzen, of Bridgeport, Miss Bertha Lichnoosky and Mrs. E. W. Nolan, of Meriden.

On the subject of "Rural Catechism Centers and Vacation Schools," the Rev. Matthew J. Judge, diocesan director, led the discussion. Miss Anna McGrory, of Norwich, Mrs. John Reilly of Willimantic, Miss McCarthy, of Rockville, Mrs. Henry Lee, of Danbury, and Miss Elizabeth Cronin, of Colchester, took part.

The delegates also considered the National Catholic School of Social Service and the endowment fund.

$102,710 IN FINES FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

Fines aggregating $102,710 were imposed in Connecticut courts last year upon 1,334 motor vehicles operators convicted of driving under the influence of liquor. It was an increase of approximately $12,600 over the aggregate of such fines in the year 1925. However, since there were 1,133 convictions in the latter year, a proportionately greater number, the average fine for last year was less than the average fine for 1924. The 1925 average was $79.90 and the 1924 average $79.74 for the offense.

The $102,710 aggregate of fines imposed last year for driving under the influence of liquor was by far the greatest item in the total of fines paid to the state motor vehicle department in accordance with the state law. For reckless driving, fines of $69,042 were imposed, for evading responsibility $11,048 and for other offenses $74,212. The ratio was similar in 1924, when fines of $90,114 were imposed for driving under the influence of liquor, $77,209 for reckless driving, $7,479 for evading responsibility and $12,446 for other offenses.

Motor vehicle offenders were sent to jail last year for more than twice the number of days required in sentences imposed in 1924. Placed "end to end" so to speak, last year's jail sentences in Connecticut for violating motor vehicle laws totalled 76 years, whereas the corresponding total for 1924 was 32 years.

Nolled motor vehicle cases aggregated 3,371 in 1925 and 2,591 in 1924.

Norwich Produce Market

The market was active Saturday morning in anticipation of the holiday and most stock sold readily. Native musk melons have increased materially during the last few days and meet strong demand with only moderate supplies of stock in stock.

String beans, lima beans and limas are offered in moderate amounts and find ready sales. Sweet corn is abundant with a fair demand but the call for tomatoes is considerably less than it should be considering the price. Lettuce of only ordinary quality is offered in moderate amounts.

Poultry and other dress meats are steady, eggs and butter firm and grain prices are unchanged.

The regular meeting of Major L. B. Almy auxiliary, No. 15, U. S. W. V., was held last Friday evening in the Buckingham Memorial with the president, Pauline Budzeck, presiding. Reports were read and accepted. Plans were made for a whist, pinochle and food sale to be held in the near future. Visiting day at Fitch's home for soldiers at Noroton Heights, will be held Sunday, Sept. 19th. It is hoped by the officers that a large delegation will go from here. The meeting closed with the singing of America and stacking of colors.

Distributed List of Fair Dates

Fifteen thousand cards giving dates of all fairs to be held in Connecticut this year have been mailed by the Connecticut Association of Agricultural Fair Directors, it was announced Saturday. Increasing interest in rural Connecticut, especially in fairs as a means of promoting agriculture, led the association this year to adopt this method of notifying the public when and where they could attend these institutions.

The cards, which should not be construed as complimentary tickets or passes, it was explained, were sent to federal and state officials and representatives, members of the state chamber of commerce, granges and press in sufficient number that they might be given to neighbors and friends.

Appraiser Asks Police Aid

John R. Bowman, Jr., of this city, appraiser of the bankrupt estate of Hirsch and Co. store in New London, requested the police there Friday to keep a watch on the store to prevent attempts to remove any of the stock.

SENATOR McLEAN WILL MAKE TWO APPOINTMENTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. — United States Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut has been notified by the war and navy departments that he will have two appointments each to make to the United States military and naval academies for entrance in June 1927.

The United States civil service commission will hold competitive examinations for his candidates at the federal buildings in Hartford, New Haven, New London, Bridgeport and Waterbury on Saturday, Oct. 23rd at 9 a. m. All candidates must have been actual residents of Connecticut for one year prior to the date of the examination. The examination will take about five and one-half hours.

Any young man desiring to compete should communicate with Senator McLean at once so that he may notify the U. S. civil service commission.

FINED FOR DRIVING WHILE UNDER INFLUENCE

Earl Campbell, U. S. N., of Ashville, N. C., was fined $200 and costs Saturday morning in the city court on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was also fined $50 for driving without a license and the costs attached to the two fines amounted to $14.74. His case had been continued from Friday morning, the continuance being granted in order to allow him time to secure witnesses who failed to show up Saturday morning. Campbell had been arrested Thursday night following complaints from two auto drivers that he nearly drove them off the road on the military highway.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Swimmer

Who wades in shallow places and would keep
Away from places where the tide runs deep,
He will be safe, but he will never know
The fierce delights of one who dares to go
Far out where waves are taller than the ships
Where wild, green water makes a wall,
In a half are to crash some rock with thunder;
Where there are pools to hush a strong man under.
He will be safe; his mouth will not be wry
With bitter salt; he will not have to try
His strength with death; I hear the north wind shout;
And bruised and numb, yet am I glad that I Am not afraid to live, afraid to die.
I leap the waves and swim yet further out.

Abigail Gresson.

Glass Houses

Learn, if you must, but do not come to me
For truck or gossip; your pleasant neighbor says
Behind you of your looks or of your ways;
Or of your worth and virtue generally;
If he's a pleasure to you, let him be—
Being the same to him; and let your days
Be tranquil, having each other's praise.
And each his own opinion peaceably.
Two brothers once did love each other well
Yet not so well but that a pungent word
From each came stinging home to the wrong ears.
The rest would be an overflow to tell.
Surely; and you may slowly have inferred
That we may not be here a thousand years.

Edwin Arlington Robinson.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Soon after you read this talk many of you will be ready for another year of school and another opportunity to prove yourselves worthy of advancement. Schooldays to some boys and girls may be things to look forward to with dread. To members of the Wide Awake circle this can never be true, for every real Wide Awake is ready and waiting for the opportunity to climb another step in the ladder of education.

Wide Awakes should never be classed with the shirkers. By the name of Wide Awakes you are known as boys and girls who are alert and ready to learn more each day. Probably all of you do not look forward with pleasure to the arrival of school days. Many boys and girls have taken that view of school days when young. Later in life these boys and girls look back and say, "I wish I had paid more attention while in school," or, "I wish I could be back in school once more. We had such fine times there."

All of this is true and someday you will say the same. Schooldays are really the pleasantest days in your life. After school is over the many friends you have chummed with for years, begin to drift out into the world of business. Out of a score of school time chums you will probably not have one left to chum with. Then you will wish that you could have schooldays back again.

That is one side of the picture but there is another. While in school you have the opportunity to study and fit yourselves for business life. When you become older and you see the others passing you in their command of the English language than you will be ashamed and wish that you had taken more advantage of the opportunity you had in school to study and become educated as well as the other fellow.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

The Vikings' Ship

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you about the Viking ship. Last week on my vacation my sister, my cousin, and myself went to see the Viking ship that came from Norway. It came to Newport, August 17, 1926. The ship went to Iceland, Greenland and down the coast of Labrador to Newport, R. I. It came 6,200 miles across the ocean. Nobody could board the ship. It was covered with all kinds of flags. They were on their way to Philadelphia. We did not see any Vikings. It was a small ship. The front of it looked like a horse. I hope I see one again.

My Visit to the Mystic Museum

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I hope all the Wide Awakes will like my story.

One day as we were riding through Mystic we decided to stop at the museum. There were very many interesting specimens such as birds, among which were gray owls, storks, pheasans, eagles and many other sorts of birds, large and small. There were all sorts of shells of all colors. There was a large variety of ancient coins from different parts of the world. Hanging on the walls were boats, rattle snakes skins, different kinds of fish, horned toads and many other things.

In the cases were eggs and turtles of different sorts. There were many more specimens which I cannot think of. Among the articles which attracted my attention was a collection of Indian remembrances. Some of them were bows and arrows, tobacco bag which had been sewed by Black Hawk, a notorious Indian chief, an Indian skinning knife, pipe of peace and the Indian tomahawk. There was also a Masonic exhibit, and a silk and cotton exhibit. We did not see all of the museum because the time had passed quickly.

This museum is the most interesting place I have ever visited.

My Trip to Atlantic Beach

Dear Uncle Jed: My cousin invited me down to see her one day. While I was there she had a telephone call. Someone asked her to go down to the beach. She said she had company and could not go. They told her to bring her company along, so I went.

On our way down we saw many beautiful sights. We went past a park which I do not know the name of.

When we arrived we went in swimming. The waves were very large. When we came out of the water we ate lunch. For lunch we had sandwiches, cake, fruit and ice cream. Then I went on the hobby horses. They are very large. You have a very long ride on them. There [illegible] also. We did not go around and see any of the other sights, because we had to go home. Soon after we started. I was tired but enjoyed the day very much.

The Woodman's Axe

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to the Wide Awakes and hope they will like my story.

Once upon a time an honest woodman lived with his wife and three children in a small house in the woods. He was poor, so poor that he had to work from morning until late in the evening in order to keep his family from starving.

One day as the woodman was chopping in the woods near a bank of a stream, his axe slipped from his hands and fell into the water. Oh! he cried, and he hid his face in his hands and groaned aloud.

While he sat there, he heard a sweet voice that said, "Look up my friend. Why do you mourn,"

I have lost my axe said the woodman. Where shall I find another? No sooner had he finished, the fairy was gone, when she returned she had an axe of gold.

Is this your axe? But the woodman shook his head. No! No! mine was not gold.

Then again she was gone and soon returned with a silver axe. Is this yours, she said. No, mine was made of iron.

Then for the third time the fairy went down and when she came back she carried the woodman's axe.

Because you would not lie, the silver axe and the gold one are yours. The woodman thanked the fairy and hurried home to show his treasures to his family.

Helping Mother

Dear Uncle Jed: I love to help my mother when she is busy. I like to help her when she is making cakes or cooking other things. I help her with the washing and the baby. Today she is preserving plums and I helped her pick them over. When I grow up my mother says that I am going to be a cook.

Had Many Fine Trips

Dear Uncle Jed: A few weeks ago we went to Hartford. We went to Capitol park. I pulled strings and got a Japanese plate and a fan and razor set. Then I went on the merry-go-round and saw pictures for a penny. A few days later I went on the Mohawk Trail. I saw the Hoosac tunnel. We went in stores and I got a banner, some field glasses, an Indian doll and lots of things. We took our lunch with us and ate it under a tree. Last week we went to Point O'Woods beach and I went in swimming. We have a pet dog named Wolf and he went in swimming and had a fine time. I am hoping that I get another Beach Pudding Week because I enjoyed Bath Pudding in the Red [illegible] week.

It Pays to Look Ahead

Dear Uncle Jed: Nearly everyday I see children on roller skates and I'd wish that I had some and could skate. One day a girl let me take hers and thinking it was easy, I started off, but before you could count five I was sprawling on the ground. I fell many times but soon I learned how to skate.

On another day when I was able to [illegible] well and when I had my confidence I was looking down as I was skating and before I knew it, I had taken down for not seeing or hearing anyone coming I had bumped into a girl who also had roller skates on. We were hurt much but now I shall try [illegible] where I'm going because I don't want another collision like that.

Midsummer Pleasures

Dear Uncle Jed: Nearly every day I midsummer day as the sun with all its fiery splendor arose above the hilltops, I was on my way to Hartford, a very homelike city. After visiting places of interest in the center of the town a short, car ride took us right to the entrance of Elizabeth park. Never had I seen so many archways at once or such a fine show of flowers. On the archways were pink, red and white ramblers with large clusters at their best. The crimson ramblers were just beautiful. The well kept lawns with many kinds of well trimmed trees and shrubs all showed they had received faithful care. Beds of flowers consisted of stately hollyhocks and many kinds of perfect roses and flowers. One bed was beautifully arranged so as to represent the American flag.

In the duck pond were large gold fish and pond lilies all open. How fragrant and lovely they were. Their summer house was just covered all over with ramblers all fresh with the dew. After dinner we left this beauty spot for Capitol park. There were many kinds of amusement there. A large swimming pool, roller skating rink, scenic railway, wheels of fortune, aeroplanes, chut-the-chuts, the old mill and a large merry-go-round. On our way home we passed Charter Oak park but did not have a minute to stop and look within. As we were leaving for home we heard a band playing and saw a good sized parade. Just then the fire whistle blew and one and all stood still and many fire autos passed on their way to the fire. I was glad to see Hartford's fire apparatus. In the cool of the day we returned home after an enjoyable trip.

We are glad to announce to our farmer friends that we now have the agency for both De Laval Cream Separators and Milkers.

The new De Laval Separator is recognized everywhere as the world's best separator. It has all the good features of the old machine, plus a self-centering bowl, light running qualities, all-around superiority and greater convenience. A new De Laval Separator will soon pay for itself in savings made.

The De Laval is the only milker which milks with absolute uniformity—the way cows like to be milked. It can't become tired; can't become cross or irritable; can't get out of adjustment. It is "The Better Way of Milking" in every respect—faster, cheaper and cleaner. It is proving so everywhere.

De Lavals are easy to buy—for cash, on easy terms or on the installment plan. Call and let us show you the separator and milker, or better still, let us demonstrate them on your own farm. Catalogs on request.

POETRY

The Searchlight

"And now," I said, "this room is clean.
A speck of dirt cannot be seen.
The windows shine, the walls are white
The silver makes the dull day bright!"

Then straightway came a ray of sun,
And shamed my corners one by one;
Scatched out the web above the door,
And the sullen streak upon the floor!

"O Lord," I said, "my heart is pure,
It holds no evil thing, I'm sure;
I do not cheat, I will not lie,
I pass all gross temptations by."

He heard, and turned on me His face
All-glorious in its matchless grace,
And said, "My child, what see you now"
I said, "A foul heart! Cleanse it Thou!"
—Ruby W. Tobias, in Sunday School Times.

Changeling

I who would be singing
Must discipline my throat
Lest the growing fledglings
Never learn a note.

I who would be dancing
Soberly must go
Teaching little children
Things I do not know.

I who would be dreaming
Must steer with watchful eye
Over seas uncharted
Where grim perils lie.

I go forth sedately.
A parent wise, austere—
Hold, O heart, your laughter
Lest I perish here.
—E. W. Chandler, in The Commons Path.

A new building material has been developed of a form of aerated gypsum that expands when mixed with water, forming a series of tiny dead air cells. There is a movement in Germany for the construction of speedways running directly from one large city to another and reserved for highspeed cars. As these roads would be used only by a limited class of drivers they can not be built with public money. Such a scheme, to embrace Europe, has been undertaken by a society incorporated in Italy, under the management of Engineer Puricelli. Deliberations have already taken place regarding a Hamburg-Milan route, to go via Hanover, Thuringia, South Germany and Switzerland. Later lines to the Ruhr district, Berlin and into Czechoslovakia are planned.

A curious double ring of pure gold that probably was a factor in some of the financial deals of the ancient Phoenicians, has just been found in a rock-hewn tomb on the island of Malta. Twelve indentations on each side fit the two hoops together perfectly. It is said in a report to the Archaelogical Institute of America, and help form the design of a complete sea-going galley. Its probable Phoenician origin suggests, since the Phoenicians were the merchants of the early Mediterranean world, that it was used in sending confidential dispatches of a business nature. In those days of precarious communication one-half would probably be carried by a trusty messenger along with important letters to the owner's confidential agent, who, on recognizing and matching the ring, would accept it as the bearer's identification.

THEATRICAL MUSICIANS IN CHICAGO ARE OUT ON STRIKE

Picture Shows in 400 Chicago Theatres Are Without Music—Vaudeville Actors Performed Without Musical Accompaniment—3,000 Musicians Obeyed Strike Call Issued by the Chicago Federation of Musicians—Union Chiefs Claim Strike is Due to Refusal to Grant $4.50 Weekly Wage Increase From $82.50 Paid at Present.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—(AP)—The click stage hands became a possibility when George E. Browne, vice president of the International Alliance of Theatrical stage employes, said stage hands would be called out if the musicians union requested such action.

THEATRE MUSICIANS IN 'FRISCO RESUME WORK

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 6—(AP)—The theatre musicians of San Francisco and their co-workers "back stage" were back to their pits and props again today, serving Monday crowds with amusements after a four-day strike which threatened to spread throughout the country.

The strikers won what they said was their main issue, one day's rest in seven. The theatre managers had insisted that a supposed demand for wage increases was the real issue. There were certain modifications acceptable to both sides made in this regard and the strikers returned to work.

The settlement was effected in a telephonic parley between A. A. Greenbaum, secretary of the Musicians union in New York, and John M. Murdock, representative of the American Theatre Managers' association, also in New York. The long distance conference lasted six hours and cost more than $2,000 in telephone tolls.

A FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT AT WINDSOR

WINDSOR, Sept. 6—(AP)—Felix Czernuski, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Czernuski of Station 37, Windsor, was fatally injured tonight and Jean Sturges, 35, was seriously hurt when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into an electric light pole at Station 45. The boy and the girl were taken to St. Francis hospital in Hartford but the boy died a few minutes after his arrival there.

The automobile was operated by James Sokolosky, of Windsor, and he is being held under $5,000 bonds charged with manslaughter and evading responsibility following an accident.

When the machine struck the pole an electric light transformer weighing 300 pounds was dislodged and fell to the ground.

EXCESSIVE SPEED WAS CAUSE OF ACCIDENT

LEADVILLE, Colo., Sept. 6—(AP)—Excessive speed on curves was held responsible for the derailment of the Scenic Limited, of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad, near Waco, Colo., Sunday morning, with a loss of 27 lives, and 50 injured, President J. S. Pyeatt, of the road, declared in a statement issued here tonight.

DIFFICULTIES OF FARMERS GREAT ECONOMIC PROBLEM

OSAWATOMIE, Kans., Sept. 6—(AP)—Farmers of Kansas and the agricultural industry as a whole, were told today by Dr. William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, that their difficulties constituted the biggest economic problem before the country, and that there would continue to be a farm problem until the purchasing price of the farmer's dollar reaches 100 per cent.

The secretary of agriculture addressed an old fashioned basket picnic of the local farmers' union, held here and attended by several thousand farmers. He explained his opposition to the McNary-Haugen measure, which he termed a proposition to "put the world out the government into business rather than leaving the business in the hands of producers and declared that farmer-controlled cooperative marketing the only solution, in his belief, of the marketing problem of the farmers.

The secretary's statements in regard to cooperative marketing and his opposition to the proposals of the original Haugen measure were attacked by Milo Reno, president of the farmers' union of Iowa.

"The time has come," Mr Reno said, "for the farmers to tell the secretary of agriculture that he is not there to criticize or dictate to them but to carry out the farmer's program."

Mr. Reno said that representatives of twenty four farmers' organizations had met in Des Moines and supported the Haugen plan.

Mr. Jardine said he had tried "honestly and sincerely" to convince himself that the McNary-Haugen plan, as presented to the last session of congress, would aid in giving greater returns to agriculture, but that it was impossible for him to see where it would benefit the farmer.

Failure of Plot to Seize King of Spain

Object Was to Force King Alfonso to Sign An Agreement of Abdication.

LONDON, Sept. 6—(AP)—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Hendaye Franco-Spanish frontier, asserts that a plot to seize King Alfonso and force him to sign an agreement of abdication was frustrated only by the prompt suppression of the military revolt and the king's departure from San Sebastian for Madrid.

The plotters, who were Spanish republicans residing at St. Jean de Luz and other frontier towns, according to the Mail correspondent, were only awaiting news that fighting had begun between the rival military elements to cross the frontier in swift motor cars and make a raid on San Sebastian. They apparently hoped to find the police and loyal troops so busily occupied that they would be able to reach the palace and seize the king.

THE REVOLT OF SPANISH ARTILLERY SUPPRESSED

MADRID, Sept. 6—(AP)—The revolt of the artillery branch of the Spanish army has been suppressed, General Primo de Rivera, the Spanish premier informed the Associated Press correspondent today.

"I am happy to say that the revolt has been settled, but am sorry to inform you that the suppression of the mutiny of the artillery regiment in Pamplona cost the life of a lieutenant and a private and the wounding of a lieutenant and a soldier when that regiment refused to obey orders to surrender to military forces dispatched by the government to restore order. I don't know of any other disorders.

"I am in possession of information from all parts of the country denoting that the reaction against suppressed and that no other branch of the army, navy or reserve, has lent support to the insurgents."

Primo de Rivera conferred again with King Alfonso today and another meeting of the cabinet was held to consider the situation. An important cabinet council under the presidency of the king at the royal palace is set for tomorrow.

This council will fix the penalties to be inflicted by the government on the leaders of the rebellion which will be apart from the punishment awaiting them by court martial.

A decree orders the urgent formation of the supreme council of war and marine to fix the responsibility of those involved in the revolt and the final judicial proceedings of the cases applying to their offenses.

BELIEVES SITUATION IN SPAIN CRITICAL

LONDON, Sept. 6—(AP)—The situation in Spain at the present critical moment, possible involving, as is believed here, the fate of General Primo de Rivera himself, is arousing increased interest. It is thought not impossible that the rebuff which Spain experienced at Geneva in her failure to obtain a permanent seat in the council of the league of nations may adversely affect Primo de Riveras position while strong curiosity is felt as to how far the Spanish premier and the Italian premier, Mussolini may be working in conjunction to secure ascendency in the Mediterranean.

Little news has been allowed to pass from Madrid beyond official and semi-official statements, but the official admission that there have been conflicts with casualties at some places seems to prove that the week end coup has not been so peaceably carried out as at first reported in official dispatches.

The position as known here is still obscure, owing to the strict censorship imposed. According to dispatches to the Spanish embassy in London the Madrid government has full control of the situation and the artillery officers, everywhere are yielding to authorities.

CONTEST FOR SENATORIAL NOMINATIONS IN NEVADA

RENO, Nev., Sept. 6—(AP)—Although Nevada is normally democratic, the majority of voters have registered as republican for tomorrow's primary. Leaders of both parties declare this is due to the contest for the republican senatorial nomination between Tasker L. Oddie, incumbent, world court advocate, and Mayor E. E. Roberts of Reno, world court opponent, and said by his opponents to be opposed to the national prohibition law.

Interest centers in the senatorial nomination in both parties. For the democratic place Raymond T. Baker, former director of mines; Patrick McCarran, former justice of the Nevada supreme court; C. H. McIntosh, former chairman of the state democratic central committee; and Dr. W. H. Brennen of Eureka, have been canvassing the state for months.

Baker's supporters assert his acquaintance at Washington makes him a valuable candidate. Judge McCarran has made his campaign on the world court issue. McIntosh got into the fight as a regular democrat, opposing Baker on the ground that Baker really lives in Washington and McCarran on the ground that he opposed Cox for president in 1920.

On the republican side the principal republican leaders in Nevada have supported Senator Oddie.

RAIN INTERFERED WITH CONNECTICUT STATE FAIR

HARTFORD, Sept. 6—(AP)—Horse races at Charter Oak park, the Risko-McCarthy boxing match, an Eastern league doubleheader between Hartford and Waterbury and a municipal athletic meet were stopped today by the rain. The horse races will be held tomorrow and Wednesday with events scheduled for those days, the fight Friday night and the city athletic meet Saturday. Holiday events, were held in spite of the rain at the various clubs in this district.

Telling some of his London experiences as prime minister at a women's fete here, Mr. Baldwin said he passed two rough looking men on the pavement not long ago and one said to the other, "That's the old bloke!"

Welcomed Though Failed Channel Swim

Miss Clara B. Barrett Upon Her Arrival Was Acclaimed as a Heroine.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Miss Clara Belle Barrett "mortgaged her future" to obtain credit for financing her attempt to swim the English channel, which was made in the hope of earning money to realize her ambition of becoming a concert singer.

She revealed this on her return home aboard the steamship Leviathan today, when she was welcomed as a heroine despite her defeat by fogs and tides of the treacherous channel after she had been in the water 21 hours and 45 minutes and had swum a distance of 40 miles.

Miss Barrett said she had been studying for the concert stage for four years and in the hope of making money to assure her a musical career she gave her personal note as loans of $100 from each of 20 friends.

"In life we have only one or two chances to do something big," she said, "and I was willing to put my nose to the grindstone for the rest of my life for this one chance."

That she won victory in defeat was shown by the welcome she received on her homecoming and by the acts of hundreds of her fellow passengers on the Leviathan. Although she did not receive such an ovation as marked the homecoming of Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the channel, she was demanded at the rail by dozens of passengers, including a delegation of the prominent citizens of New Rochelle, N. Y. to her home town. With a police motorcycle escort she was accompanied to the delegation's home, the village where she was staying for a rest.

During the voyage passengers aboard the Leviathan, many of whom were to meet her for the first time at the pierhead, contributed $1,000 to defray the expenses of the unsuccessful attempt. The fund was presented to Colonel John J. Pershing, a fellow passenger, the man who, as commander of the United States army during the World war, had pinned medals of honor on many soldiers for valor and bravery paralleled by Miss Barrett's feat.

"I don't know of any man who could have endured what she went through," he said. "It was a marvelous thing."

"I feel that I am a success," Miss Barrett said. "If it had not been for the fog I could have made it in 15 hours easy. I was not exhausted at any time. What I suffered most from was the cold."

She lost 16 pounds during the swim and has not yet regained her weight. She would not commit herself on whether she would attempt the channel swim again.

SENATOR REED NOT TO BE CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 6—(AP)—United States Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, announced here today that he would not be a candidate for re-election two years hence but declined to comment on the movement started by several democratic county committees of Missouri to make him a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination in 1928.

The Missouri senator who has served 18 years in the senate, dismissed the possibility with a terse, "I did not start it."

In explanation of his decision not to become a senatorial candidate again, Senator Reed said he desired to attend to his law business and that he "could not imagine a condition" that would make him run again.

Mr. Reed expressed his views on several questions of national importance. He declared in favor of permitting the proper vote on a proposal to repeal the 18th amendment, expressed himself for modification so as to permit the sale of light wine and beer, said the democratic party, "out to declare against new farfetched doctrines of internationalism, and attributed the farmers ills to the protective tariff and what he termed the "arbitrary fixing of prices by Herbert Hoover in the war period."

Smuggling of liquor and corruption of officers of the law, Mr. Reed said, had created a condition that is "unnatural and unhealthful," and "full of danger to the republic." He said this "cut to alarm every good citizen, appeal to the most intense prohibitionists, clerical or law for a change."

Speaking in favor of the decentralization of government, Senator Reed said this could not be fully accomplished "without amendment to the constitution, repealing the 18th amendment and permitting each state once more to establish and maintain its own police regulations."

"Nothing can be more ridiculous," he continued, "than to say the states can be trusted to have sole jurisdiction to punish highway robbery, arson, murder and all other sorts of crime, but they cannot be trusted to regulate the manufacture or sale of a glass of beer or wine."

COLLEGE GRADUATES DRY UP THE SOUTH

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 6—(AP)—Two thirds of the dry agents enforcing prohibition in one of the country's most difficult districts are college men.

Graduate chemists, lawyers, certified public accountants and other professional experts make up the force with which O. D. Jackson is bringing prohibition to the states of Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama.

One effect of their work has been a reported increase of 200 per cent in the price of whiskey since Jackson took up his work—and a considerable decrease in the quality of the whiskey.

COOLIDGE IS TO REMAIN ALOOF IN STATE POLITICS

Prosperity as a Result of the Coolidge Administration is to Be Stressed as the Only Issue in the Fall Congressional Campaigns—Announcement Made by Representative Snell, a Republican Leader in the House, After a Visit at White Pine Camp.

PAUL SMITHS, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The determination of President Coolidge to refrain from participation in state political contests while "prosperity as a result of the Coolidge administration" is stressed as the only issue in the fall congressional campaign was emphasized today by Representative Bertrand H. Snell of Potsdam, a republican leader of the house, after a week-end visit at White Pine camp.

Mr. Snell declared his reports showed that prosperity was widespread in the country and he believed it was the only thing the people were interested in at the present time. The president himself, he added, is more interested in trout than in any other one thing and hopes to see another session that will continue that prosperity.

At the congressional gathering at the next session, which begins in December and ends next March 4, Mr. Snell, who is chairman of the house rules committee, said there would be no request by the administration at hand for new legislation.

The reports Mr. Snell brought of continued prosperity were endorsed by similar observations made to the president by Earle P. Charlton of Fall River, Mass., who is vice president of the Westcott Expansion Company.

Mr. Coolidge observed Labor Day by motoring to his favorite spot of fishing. Demonstrating that he has become a enthusiastic trout fisherman, he once soon after daybreak and drove 25 miles into Essex county with rod and reel to obtain the last possible chance there is in New York state this year for catching trout.

The season closed for Franklin county, the world-ring summer writing house is located, and for all other counties of the state, except Essex on Sept. 1 but trout fishing was permitted by law in Essex county until midnight tonight.

When the president returned in the afternoon to find only two trout in spoon for his supper. One of the two Mr. Coolidge released, saying that it was too small. The second trout he took to his room.

50 LIVES LOST IN FIRE IN "MOVIE" HOUSE IN IRELAND

LIMERICK, Ireland, Sept. 6—(AP)—Fifty lives were lost and a dozen persons seriously injured Sunday night in a fire in a temporary cinema hall in the village of Drumcolegher, near here.

The moving picture show was being given in a hall over a garage in a wooden building. The hall was reached by one stairway. The projection machine caught fire and in the panic which ensued women and children were trampled and stamped on in the scramble to escape from the burning hall and many were dropped to the ground.

The fire was a speedy one, with sparks and the wooden building with the garage on the ground floor burned fiercely.

It was the first time the movie show had been opened to the public.

The village of Drumcolegher has fewer than 500 population but the announcement of the showing of the film, "The Decoy," attracted an audience from all the hamlets about.

The fire started within 15 minutes after the opening of the show. The projecting machine was not protected by any screen and was placed within a foot of the only door. When it caught fire it was a seething mass of flames within a moment or so and panic seized the spectators rushing for the door who had to pass through sheets of flame from the apparatus. Men, women and children were knocked down and trampled in the terrible rush.

The wooden buildings soon became a furnace. Some managed to get through the one door and hurled themselves down the narrow stairway. Some active young men climbed through a skylight and escaped. A portion of the floor soon collapsed dropping part of the spectators into the garage beneath whence it was more easy to escape.

The bodies include 20 women, ten men and ten children. One family on a holiday from London perished, six persons in all.

LOWELL NURSE DISAPPEARED FROM THE STEAMSHIP ORCA

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Miss Alice Mack, a nurse of 37 May street, Lowell, Mass., disappeared from the steamship Orca this morning as the ship neared New York harbor from Europe. Her friends believed she leaped overboard as a result of nervousness caused by insomnia.

A search of the ship failed to reveal any trace of her. Miss Gladys Mevis, a Lowell school teacher who had accompanied Miss Mack on a summer tour of Europe, said the latter left their tourist third class stateroom at 3 o'clock this morning, explaining she was going to the deck "for a breath of air." She was not seen again.

PRAISE FOR TRUDY, HELEN WILLS AND BOBBY JONES

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Helen Wills, Gertrude Ederle, and Bobby Jones, "have done more than anybody can possibly realize to offset the opinion of us fostered by selfish and dangerous politicians of European countries," said John V. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company of Toledo, O., on returning today aboard the steamship Leviathan.

He urged that more such envoys be sent to foreign countries to create good-will. He also recommended an international exchange of manufacturing and engineering ideas to bring about "world accord."

VALENTINO'S BODY HAS ARRIVED AT HOLLYWOOD

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 6—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino, the screen's foremost lover, returned today, in death, to the land where he rose from virtual obscurity to unrivaled fame.

The body of the actor reached the end of its journey from New York just before 1 p. m. by funeral train and was taken to the Pierce Brothers mortuary, where funeral services will be held tomorrow.

Thousands of persons, many of whom were unable to gain admittance to the mortuary, lined the streets as the funeral cortege passed on its way to the mortuary.

Pola Negri, who was reported to be prostrated with grief at the news of Valentino's death, arrived in Los Angeles today and was driven directly to the mortuary. She refused to see anyone, however, on account of her extremely nervous condition.

Before the casket was closed for the last time, Miss Negri placed a floral wreath on it, bearing a card inscribed, "Rudolph, from Pola." Miss Negri was accompanied by Marion Davies, actress, who had attended the funeral earlier today. She entered an automobile with her [illegible] Albert Gazzolo, Valentino's brother, and S. George Ullman, former actor's manager, took to an automobile just behind the hearse.

A motorcycle escort led the way to the undertaking parlors where several hundred persons, mostly women had gathered. While many were there was some rushing as the hearse was driven up, a special guard easily prevented disorder.

Attaches of the undertaking establishment said they found a young girl whose name was not divulged, hiding in the chapel shortly after noon. She said she had remained there since last night in the hope of seeing the body today.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Church of the Good Shepherd in Beverly Hills. Only close friends and associates of the dead actor will be permitted to attend.

The body will be placed in a vault in Hollywood cemetery.

SEVERAL PERSONS KILLED IN COLLISION ON C. & N. ROAD

CHICAGO, Sept. 6—(AP)—Several persons were reported killed tonight when a Chicago and Northwestern passenger train from Madison, Wis., plowed into another Chicago and Northwestern train from Barrington, Ill., which was discharging passengers at the Cortland street suburban station. Both trains were made up of wooden coaches and four or five of those of the train struck were said to have been telescoped.

The wreckage immediately caught fire. Firemen said that two dead persons were removed from the debris and that they could see eight or ten bodies under the wreckage, and believes that some of them were dead.

George Ellett, brakeman on the train struck, said he was back and tried to flag the Madison train, but that it flashed past him.

It was estimated that 150 persons were injured. Virtually all of those believed to have been killed and the majority of those injured were in the last two coaches which were telescoped.

Patrol wagons, ambulances, pulmotor squads, and fire apparatus swarmed to the scene of the accident.

Rescue workers used torchlights to enable them to investigate the wreckage.

THREE THOUSAND PUPILS AND NOT ENOUGH SCHOOLS

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 6—Wednesday will be school day. Some three thousand children of the town of Windham will go back to studies as the school bells ring out the opening of another year. All of the schools here, under town or state supervision, and the two parochial schools are once more confronted with the problem of increasing registration. Every room of available school room was taxed last year and in some cases there were portable classes. According to [illegible] taxpayers, old Windham is facing a school building problem which will take care of the overflow of the present and provide for inevitable expansion in the future. There had been hopes that the new Windham Street school would be ready for two-thirds cost to the state in replacing the old wooden structure destroyed by fire a few years ago, would be completed sometime this year but so far the only progress has been to make property purchases for the site. There being no immediate relief in sight that quarter, the normal school situation remains puzzled. St. Mary's and St. Joseph's parochial schools have set an age limit for entrance.

Principal Egbert A. Case, of Windham high school reports that 660 registrations, a increase of 20, over last year, have been received to date. More are expected before the end of the first semester. Of the number, 225 are entering the freshmen class. The total registrations represent about 50 per cent of pupils coming from surrounding towns. These students pay a tuition fee, collectable from towns which do not maintain a high school.

The roster of the faculty at the high school remains unchanged except for three new teachers—Misses Elizabeth Hunt of Portland, Me., who will teach freshman English, Mildred Rauscher of Leon, Mass., teacher of general science, and Virginia Wakeman of Danielson, teacher of freshman civics.

Daniel Harrington, 31, presented in [illegible] court Monday morning on charges of intoxication and breach of the peace, failed to ease off his guilt by making somewhat caustic remarks reflecting on the integrity of some of the police officials, but his only reward was to pay fines and costs amounting to $33.15. Deputy Judge Russell A. Andrews imposed a fine of $5 and costs for drunkenness and $15 and costs for breach of the peace. Although Harrington displayed unmistakable evidence of having been on the receiving end of a few well-directed blows secured while he committed the breach of the peace, the court officials appeared to hold but little sympathy for him. Harrington got under the influence late Saturday night and entering a Railroad street restaurant directed profane remarks at Rudolph H. Miller, foreman for Blanchette & Blanchette and reputed amateur pugilist. Miller imposed punishment on the spot and Harrington, still abusive was arrested by Officer William Hurley.

A charge of assault held against Constable Joseph Peck, with Theodore Ereshina of 131 Chapman street as complainant, was continued, by the police court Monday morning for one week on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Gaucher, who desired further investigation. The trouble leading up to the alleged assault originated about the middle of August, when Ecshina failed to redeem on a mortgage held on his home at 131 Chapman street and the property was purchased by Clara H. Peck, wife of Constable Peck, after foreclosure by the bank. Ereshina was given an opportunity to regain possession, but he did not do so within the allotted time. A summary process notice was served on him for his eviction from the house. Feeling that he had been dealt with unjustly, Ereshina called on Constable Peck, at the latter's home. There he is said to have become demonstrative and Constable Peck told him he was under arrest for breach of the peace. Ereshina resisted and repeated threats that he would kill the officer. Constable Peck states that he drew his blackjack as a warning but did not strike the man. Ereshina's complaint is that he was struck on the temple, arm and leg, although he does not display the marks which usually result from a blackjack blow. A few minutes after arresting Ereshina, Constable Peck, heeded the intercession of the former's friends and released him. Ereshina then entered his complaint of assault.

Father and son were pitted against each other, in police court Monday morning, each displaying a highly colored optic as the result of a family fray Sunday evening. William Sypher, 27, was charged with assault on his father, Abner Sypher, of 787 Main street. The father testified that his son had not had steady work for some time and stayed out late at night. When he upbraided him for his acts, the son punched him. He said that young Sypher had previously struck him in his behalf, the accused said that since going on strike at the Thread company last year he had not been able to find steady work. He worked as "spare" in a restaurant and had room-rent whenever he had money. Pointing to his swollen eye, he said his father came over to him and struck him. He then pushed his father and the latter stumbled against the furniture, also sustaining a black eye. With a reprimand from both Deputy Judge Andrews and Prosecutor Gaucher, Sypher was fined $10 and costs, amounting to $16.15, which was paid.

The funeral of Victor Swichone was held from his home on Summit street extension Monday morning. High mass of requiem in St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock was sung by Rev. Charles M. Kelly. There was a large attendance and beautiful floral tributes. Miss L. Monica McKeon sang Ave Maria. With Mr. Pie Jesu, at the offertory and When Evening Comes as a waiting hymn. Mrs. E. R. Portelance was at the organ. A delegation of associate workers of Mr. Swichone in the employ of the city street department was in attendance. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Kelly read the committal prayers. The arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

An approving inspection of the new Nathan Hale hotel was made last week by C. D. Smith, supervising zone manager of the American Hotels corporation, with headquarters in New York. Manager Daniel Daley expresses his confidence that the formal opening will be held as planned, with a three day program, to begin September 20th. Shipments of furnishings are being received almost hourly. Edward Stearns, who will be chief clerk at the hotel, has arrived here from New York, preparatory to assuming his new duties at the opening.

SEVENTH ASSEMBLY OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept 6—(AP)—The formal admission of Germany to membership in the league of nations will be the chief business of the seventh assembly of the league when opened its sessions today.

Dr Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, was temporary chairman and M Ninchitch, foreign minister of Jugo-Slavia was elected president in his salutatory address, M. Ninchitch declared: "The forthcoming entrance of the great nation of Germany will give new confidence to the league of nations."

Like Dr. Benes, the president told the delegations of the 49 countries represented that world peace could only be made certain by progressive development of the league.

"If we really wish to keep peace," he added, "we must constantly proclaim on high our conviction that peace shall henceforth be unshakable."

Both speakers admitted that the league was passing through a crisis, but they believed that it would emerge triumphant and that even those left the fold would eventually return.

INTEREST IN PRIMARIES IN NEW HAMPSHIRE TODAY

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 6—(AP)—As one of the most exciting primary campaigns in New Hampshire's political history ended tonight, interest in tomorrow's voting centered on the three cornered contest for the republican senatorial nomination, in the field against Senator George H. Moses, the incumbent, were former Governor R. P Bass of Peterboro, and James W. Remick of Concord, a former judge of the state supreme court.

While Senator Moses carried on a brisk campaign based on his experience in Washington and his record in the senate, former Governor Bass appealed for support on the contention that Mr. Moses had failed to support the policies of President Coolidge. Mr. Remick, spending the summer at Gloucester, Mass., did little active campaigning.

New interest was injected into the final weeks of the struggle when it became known that Burns detectives were in New Hampshire making an investigation ostensibly of prohibition issues. A group of workers headed by William H. Barbour of the Burns agency questioned the various candidates and reports that their mission was to inquire into primary campaign expenditures, led Governor John G. Winant to order a counter investigation by the attorney general's department still another sensation was sprung last night when it became known that the Good Government league of New York was carrying on a separate inquiry into campaign matters here.

Two candidates are in the field for the democratic nomination for U. S senator. They are Robert C. Ritchie, Concord attorney and Albert Noone of Peterborough.

CHEMISTS MAY MAKE SLEEP FOR HUMANS UNNECESSARY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6—(AP)—Sleep as a necessity for humans may be done away with entirely through the development of chemistry, Irenee Du Pont of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and company, Wilmington, Del., declared today at the opening session of the golden jubilee convention of the American Chemical society.

Pointing out that some adults sleep a greater number of hours than others, Mr. Du Pont said it seemed likely this was due to some human systems requiring longer time to work out poisons that accumulate.

"Would it not seem likely," he said "that the reactions may be hastened by some catalytic agent or even that the antidote itself may be prepared and administered thereby either decreasing the amount of sleep required or even doing away with the necessity of sleep entirely?"

Such a discovery, he said, would add more than fifty per cent to both our hours of production and of pleasure and, would greatly decrease the cost of housing and of factory production.

That chemistry might become the means of creating a race of supermen and even change the nature of human beings were prospects held before the 4,000 delegates by Mr Du Pont.

Certain drugs, he asserted, tend to stupify and prevent humans from thinking clearly, while other drugs to some extent stimulated the mind. "Is it not possible," he said, "to suppose that there exist other compounds which might stimulate to a greater extent so that mentally all the users would become super-men or geniuses?"

Spanish explorers who came to this country in the sixteenth century brought horses with them.

THREE HOLIDAY WEDDINGS SOLEMNIZED AT ST. JAMES'

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 6—There were three weddings at St. James' church Labor day, the first at 6 a. m. At the first service Miss Margaret A. Latroix of South Main street became the bride of Joseph Ernest Paquin of the Mashentuck district. Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., solemnized the marriage and was celebrant of the nuptial mass. Mr. and Mrs. Paquin left during the day for a wedding trip, after which they will make their home in this town.

At 7 a. m. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., united in marriage Ernest E. J. Maio and Miss Eleonore M. Bernier of the West Side in Deschaux also was celebrant of the nuptial mass. There was a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Maio following the church service and they are now away on the wedding journey.

The third marriage of the morning was that of Miss Helen Varieur of Academy street and Ernest LeMire, Rev. J. Desaulniers blessed this marriage and Rev. James McCarthy was celebrant of the nuptial high mass, attended by numerous relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. LeMire left during the early afternoon for a wedding trip and upon their return will make their home in Danielson.

CASES OF SPECIAL INTEREST FOR TRIAL IN SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 6—Tuesday will be a day of accounting for numbers who are held by the state to face charges of an alleged criminal nature, as the opening of the September term of the Windham county superior court at Waterbury. It is not likely that more than a percentage of cases on the long list will be disposed of but the majority will be put to plea and, should they plead guilty, will be sentenced. Under guard of deputy sheriffs and other officials such prisoners as are held at the county jail in Brooklyn and have not already been put to plea will be taken over to Waterbury in a motor coach this morning. There are 4 new cases on the criminal list for the term, due to mention a number of particularly those that will get attention during the course of the term.

Of special interest in Killingly are the cases of State vs. Eddie John, charged with assault with intent to kill. John, who lives in Williamsville at the time of the arrest, will face a charge of having tried to force his way into the home of a married woman in Killingly Center one night while her husband was absent and was only repelled when she is alleged to have fired a shot at him. John has at times been confined at the state hospital in Norwich. Another case of Killingly interest is that of the state vs. Linwood Stillwell and William Cutler, East Killingly youths charged with statutory burglary. They are held at the county jail in Brooklyn.

A case of special interest—really a test case that eventually may go to the supreme court of the state—is that of the State vs. Arthur DeForest, charged with holding over reservoir. DeForest was the operator charged with going contrary to Alexander's Lake in this town, which is a reservoir for the village of Goodyear.

Steps have been taken to test out the right of the Williamsville Water Company supplying water from the lake to the village of Goodyear and owned by the Goodyear Mills, Inc., to stop bathing in the lake, which is frequented by thousands of people during the summer season and that has a summer cottage colony on its shores.

Probably the outstanding cases on the criminal list are those of the State vs. Agnes Payne, 17 year old Wilsonville girl and her 19 year old sweetheart, Raymond Weatherbee of North Grosvenordale, who left Brooklyn jail without bail, and face charges of murder in the first degree, these charges growing out of Miss Payne's confession and testimony in the lower court in the case of Thompson that Weatherbee caused the death of her new-born baby girl during the early hours of a morning last June after she had given birth to the child in a field near a cave of the town's past. Weatherbee denies every accusation of Miss Payne, who has married Weatherbee, sharing with her the purchase of the cabin.

Still another case of Killingly interest is that of Thomas Hayes of Webster, who was charged with assault with intent to kill and murder one of Attorney [illegible] more than three weeks ago and caused the death of [illegible] Hayes of Webster, who was riding with him. Evidence produced in the Killingly town court when the case was presented for a hearing on the charge that he was intoxicated at the time of the accident, the car he was driving crashing a tree throughout the front [illegible]

The criminal list contains the usual run of cases arising out of alleged violations of the motor laws, theft, rape, breach of the peace, etc., etc.

Monday morning from the undertaking rooms of L. H. Kennedy the funeral of Mrs. Marcelle LaPointe of Dayville was held with services at St. Joseph's church in that place at 8 o'clock. Rev. Alphonse Denault, M. S. was celebrant of the requiem mass. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. Relatives acted as bearers.

Various transportation lines brought into this town during Labor day non-resident teachers who this (Tuesday) morning will take up their duties in school buildings in various parts of the town of Killingly. Excepting for the high school and the 7th and 8th grades that will accommodate pupils of Danielson and South Killingly, all of the schools of the town will begin a new school year today. Everything will be in readiness for the long months of study that will ensue before graduation day next June. It is anticipated that the schools will be fully organized and functioning up to standard by mid-week.

Disappointed thousands will remember Labor day of 1926 as one of the most dreary holidays in their experience. Wet, disgruntled and bedraggled people who had planned to make a festival period of the time between last Saturday noon and Monday night were forced to call off their plans by early afternoon of Monday and get back to their homes to be ready for business this morning.

In Danielson and vicinity programs for the day were thrown awry by the perverseness of the weather man. Baseball games had to be cancelled. Old Home day plans were upset and those who would have gone touring to enjoy some diversion or another at sundry resorts had to rearrange their plans and make the most of a very disagreeable period.

An all day rain during Sunday followed by a downpour during the very early hours of Monday morning and drizzle alternating with showers during the day was enough to discourage the most optimistic. It was nasty outside, cold inside, damp and generally irritating. It was the sort of a day—an ill wind blowing someone good—that sent hundreds to the theatres seeking comfortable relaxation and amusement and thousands more for an afternoon nap. Labor day—as a recreation period—was about 100 per cent loss.

In spite of all the handicaps imposed by the weather many assembled at South Killingly for the annual Old Home day exercises. The usual big crowd was cut down by the rain, but there was a good number there, a splendid shore dinner, served under cover by King George Jacques of East Killingly, the usual reunion features, in closer quarters than a day of sunshine would permit, the program as arranged and that congenial spirit that is characteristic of South Killingly and its people and which cannot be dampened by a mere deluge.

Baseball games scheduled were between St. James' school team and the St. Joseph's team of Fitchburg for the morning and between the Putnam and Kilowatt team in the afternoon at Taco field, were necessarily called off.

Dances during the early hours of Monday morning—from 12:30 a. m. to 4 a. m. and on Labor day evening attracted good attendance.

The homeward trips of tourists began early Monday afternoon, many drivers asserting their desire to get over the slippery roads before dark that there chances of becoming involved in accidents might be reduced.

Mrs. Julia Fennly and Miss Mabel Carragher, of Washington, D. C. are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Carragher. Another recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Carragher was Miss Lillian Graves of Norwich.

Mrs. Ida Arnold and Frederick Emmons of New Haven were guests over the holiday period of Miss Hattie Bailey of School street.

Rains Sunday and Labor day disarranged the plans of the Danielson and Putnam Boy Scouts for the camp at Old Killingly pond.

Some early activity incident to getting mills at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Putnam in operation again is anticipated within a few days, on the part of the new owners, Powdrell and Alexander, Inc.

Harold F. Glendining, a former resident of Danielson, now with Lyon and Lyon, visited with friends in Danielson. Fabric, a trade publication, was a week

Joseph Huard of Woonsocket, for many years a resident of Danielson, was a visitor in Danielson on Labor day.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hamilton and son, John, motored to New Bedford during the period of the holiday.

There was no town court business Labor day, but a case developed that will be heard in the town court next Saturday.

James A. Williamson of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson over the holidays.

There are plenty of wrecked cars in garages here and hereabouts, the result of accidents, more or less severe, that occurred during the period from Saturday to Monday night.

Motor coaches on the Providence-Hartford route via Danielson carried what appeared to be their heaviest passenger lists since the service was inaugurated during the Labor day holiday. As many as three coaches in a string were required to handle the traffic at times during this period.

POLITICAL CAMPAIGN OPENS IN NEW YORK STATE TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—The political tocsin will be sounded tomorrow for the real opening of the campaign in New York state.

The big guns of the republican party will meet here for informal pow wows coincident with the formal opening of the headquarters for Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., candidate for re-election.

The democrats are not saying much but apparently are sawing wood. Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner, a warm friend of Governor Smith, appears to be the leading candidate to oppose Senator Wadsworth.

The gubernatorial situation is far from being cut and dried in the republican ranks, but in the democratic realm it seems to be taken for granted that Governor Smith will again be a candidate, although he has repeatedly said he desired to step out of official life.

The republicans have been casting about for candidates for to date there has been no wild scramble for the nomination. Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York, just now is mentioned more than any one else. Candidates talked of during the lazy summer months have let it be known that they would not run and now it is hinted that the convention may draft one of them. Here are some of the suggested candidates. All of whom have declined to run; Former Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins of Nyack, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia and Supreme Court Justice Cropsey of Brooklyn.

The wet issue has caused a furore in G. O. P. circles. Senator Wadsworth favors modification of the Volstead act, but some of the party's stalwarts oppose him on these grounds.

Former State Senator Franklin W. Cristman of Herkimer was named by the dry forces as their choice for the independent republican nomination for Senator Wadsworth's toga.

Perhaps a woman loves secrets for the pleasure it affords her to let them escape.

SHORE RESORTS WERE HIT HARD BY RAINY LABOR DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—Bedraggled millions returned to their homes in the eastern states today, under gloomy skies that took the joy out of their last holiday of the summer.

Jupiter Pluvius, sulking behind sullen clouds, exerted a heavy "bear" influence on the seashore and inland resorts, cheating them of the fortunes that would have flowed into their tills had the weather been fair. Coney Island, bedecked for the opening of its mardi gras week, was one of the hardest hit of all the amusement resorts.

While rain that set in yesterday in New York city kept thousands from making out-of-town trips, the exodus of Saturday was of such proportions that the return of the throngs today taxed to capacity the railroad terminals. Scores of extra trains brought their loads of disappointed holiday pilgrims from their soggy outings.

The cheerless situation was capped with irony when the weather bureau predicted that it would be clear tomorrow in this city.

It takes an accomplished peacemaker to patch up a quarrel so the patches won't show.

AUTUMN ATTRACTIONS

Soon after the passing of August the temperatures have [illegible] the city would certainly [illegible] some fault when the frost [illegible]s to get in its work on the foliage [illegible] an added attraction [illegible] to the country.

[illegible] of the New Hampshire [illegible] for the [illegible] visitors. Even as [illegible] of the mountains [illegible] the beauty of the wonderful landscapes and [illegible] many [illegible] of foliage, to the blending of [illegible] during the summer [illegible] wrongly understands [illegible] which are produced [illegible] the first starts in colors [illegible] the leaves. Thus when New Hampshire makes a bid for autumn visitors it has something to offer.

But the White Mountain state has to manage when nature begins to [illegible] the paint brush in the fall. There can be no belittling of the beauty, and those who are fortunate enough to have the opportunity to enjoy such a treat are to be envied. And yet there isn't a state in New England [illegible] with pardonable admiration to the attractions which they have of a similar character.

Connecticut has its appeal for the [illegible] the same as New Hampshire, whether it be at the beach, at the lakes, in the mountains or in the high lands of the countryside. While there is a charm about the autumn blossom period in the [illegible] coloring which [illegible] and the coming of [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] the shortcomings [illegible] and overcoming them and [illegible] creating a competition within this part of the country that will meet that which is not confronted from without. The longer the problem is ignored the worse it is bound to become and the more difficult the correction. The farm marketing conference sets forth large possibilities and it is to be fondly hoped that they will be realized in large measure.

WORK FOR THE PARENTS

The influence of the automobile in college life has been studied by more than one institution. Generally it is regarded as detrimental, but the methods of dealing with it by colleges are different.

There are those institutions where it has been deemed best to forbid students to have automobiles while in college. This has seemed somewhat drastic and influence has been made to bear upon students in others to restrict their use much the same as they are placed upon their honor during examination periods.

Out at the University of Kansas there is no doubt as to the undesirability of students having cars but the attempt to deal with the matter has been restricted to an appeal to the students and to their parents to bring about a reduction of the number of cars on the ground that they create an undemocratic situation. It is a move which finds favor among the organizations of students in this coeducational institution, and their influence should help.

There are some to whom the effort to overcome the undemocratic situation will make its appeal, but the problem would seem to be one which could be greatly relieved through parental action, especially when urged by the colleges.

Not many parents are disposed to work against the best interests of their children while being put through college. With the institution putting the ban on the automobile because it creates wrong social differences, because it leads to undesirable conditions and because it serves to detract from the purpose of going to college parents can ill afford to respond regardless of what the attitude of the students may be. And in most cases it is the parental decision which is bound to govern in the settlement of this as well as other problems of similar character. There's a parental responsibility which needs to be exercised quite as much, and perhaps a little more rigidly in some instances, while providing for a college as well as common school education.

CHARLES HOPKINS CLARK

Not many are permitted to serve a single newspaper or institution for so long a period as 53 years, or to hold for 242 years the responsible position of editor in chief, as was the case with Charles Hopkins Clark and the Hartford Courant. Not only did he establish such an enviable record but he also rose to an equally enviable position among newspaper editors.

Throughout New England and beyond he was widely and well known in newspaper circles.

Going to the Courant, soon after his graduation from Yale his long life has been devoted to its interests and his impress has been indelibly fixed upon it. His activities were centered in his editorship and though he was always deeply interested in politics and made the Courant the constant and powerful backer of the republican party he was never desirous of office for himself.

He was a man of strong convictions and didn't hesitate to express them. There was admiration for his outspokenness. He made and retained many friends, being a personal friend of several presidents, and his advice was constantly being sought from many directions. He was a leader among men and he built up a strong following and a strong newspaper. The part which he has played in its development will always be conspicuous in its history.

Mr. Clark was a great lover of fishing and the first break in his robust health came as the result of an accident while out with a rod. He was almost as much interested in republican national conventions and attended all since 1888 either as reporter or delegate. He will be greatly missed in many circles, but not forgotten.

TAGGART OBJECTS

Some surprise has been manifested over the fact that Tom Taggart, long a political figure in democratic politics in Indiana, and whose name has for years been constantly before the reading public, should take exception to the manner in which the writer of a novel has used his name.

Probably there are times when much more has been said of him than was put down in the pages of the book, but whether he has grown more sensitive or whether his opposition is directed solely against the charge of being a common gambler, it is evident that he is unwilling to accept any such judgment and permit it to go down in the pages of a book to [illegible] posterity.

The fact is that there seems to be no good reason for confusing the name in any such manner when a name that might be coined would do just as well and in no way spoil the story. Employing real characters may be well enough if there is proper restriction, but apparently Mr. Taggart doesn't consider that such restriction has been respected. And even though he might be regarded as long since having become hard skinned as the result of so many attacks in the political arena he cannot be blamed for resenting an unwarranted and most uncomplimentary misrepresentation.

Taggart isn't doing any more than others would do under like circumstances. He shows that he is human even though a politician of long standing and a former United States senator.

EDITORIAL NOTES

When it comes to revolutions, no one beats Nicaragua saying, "never again."

The man on the corner says: It is hard for some people to understand that cooperation isn't a one sided operation.

The shore resorts were even denied the benefits of a pleasant Labor day week end, along with a most unsatisfactory season.

Those who heeded the appeal to give until it hurts when the Liberty bonds were being sold are not disposed to hoist till it hurts for cancellation of the debt.

The claim is made that President Coolidge as a trustee of an estate made a mistake in figuring a tax bill and owes the town of Enfield, Mass., ten cents. But how long since a town permits anyone but the tax collector to figure a tax bill?

Natick, Mass., has a tax rate of $50.40. Well there's some consolation knowing there are those who pay higher taxes than we do but there might be more if there was any certainty that it wouldn't encourage Norwich to go even higher.

EMBARRASSED

The nice-looking young man with the blue eyes straightened up to allow a young lady to take the seat opposite him on the train.

The young lady carried a small valise and a brief case. She opened the latter as soon as she was comfortably seated. From the case she extracted a pencil with a very sharp point, a writing tablet and a book to rest it on. She then proceeded to gaze around the train, letting her glance rest absentmindedly upon the young man opposite her.

His colored glanced out of the window, and then down at his fingernails. When his eyes warily returned to her, she had already begun to employ the very pointed pencil to her writing tablet, making the words fly over the white page.

The young man shifted his position, assuming an air of sangfroid, but actually feeling not a little put out.

Really, thought he, it was very embarrassing to sit opposite a young lady —quite good-looking too—whose gaze wandered vaguely toward you; then hastily down to her tablet again, while she rattled off a few more sentences. Could she be writing about him?

She, wasn't rude. Oh, no. And of course she wasn't writing about him at all! Probably a letter to her sweetie. Right now her brown eyes were shining so and the pencil was racing across the paper faster than the train was dashing across the country, taking him home over the week end for his sister's birthday.

The young man leaned back to watch her quite openly now, and a smile played about his lips. No, it couldn't be a letter. She wouldn't write a letter in pencil, and besides, some typewritten sheets were slipping out of her tablet, unknown to her.

One of them fluttered to the floor of the train, right by his foot. He picked it up—just couldn't help it—and his eyes caught the title of the story: "The Sunset Road."

So! She was writing a story, or trying to. She didn't look very much like a real authoress. Far too young, and without the horn-rimmed glasses and the flat shoes that he always associated with lady writers.

She hadn't noticed the truant sheet. Dared he glance at it further?

And meanwhile the young lady was having troubles of her own. She just had to finish that story for Friday's class, and she needed a synonym for "quizzical." One that hadn't been used to death, or the professor would yell her head off.

"Quizzical smile"—like the young man's across from her. Resolutely the young lady kept her eyes on her work. She didn't dare glance at him again, though his smile was just the kind her hero wore.

It was dreadfully embarrassing, being smiled at in that way by such a nice-looking young man! Was her nose shiny? She'd give anything for a peep in her vanity case, but not with those blue eyes upon her!

What lovely fields they were passing through. The ride to Wisconsin was such a pleasant one. One could get even so many descriptions: Trees circling about at [illegible] clouds; was her nose shiny? Had she rolled her stockings too low? Those black satin shoes what the young dassies that [illegible] her for Christmas—did they [illegible]?

What on earth was he reading? Was [illegible]

"Beg pardon," smiled the blue eyes gayly. "I believe—this—this dropped—"

"Oh, thank you!"

Their hands touched as he returned the sheet.

The young man turned his gaze to the flying scenery. Wide fields—the early green of spring upon them. A house now and then. Small, neat barns with brick-red chimneys and window-boxes.

He just couldn't help glancing at the girl again. In a blue-checked gingham with her short bobbed curls and a dab of flour on her nose—drumming a custard pie, chocolate was his favorite——

Crash! The very long point of the pencil broke. Her brown eyes wandered helplessly into his.

"—may I——" producing his jackknife, "sharpen it for you?"

"Oh, thank you! But never mind. I'm getting off at this station."

The young man sprang to his feet. "Say—I——I live out this way."

"Then," smiled the brown eyes with relief, "maybe you can tell me where Lillian Center lives?"

"Can I!" he shouted, seizing her bags. "She's my sister. Come on. It's high time we were introduced."—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

THE HEART

By Edward W. Smith, Meriden, Conn. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

How is the Ticker? How is the Pump? Slang, but expressive!

The heart pumps the blood stream through the circulatory system, working continuously 24 hours a day, approximately 70 strokes per minute, from months before birth, until, like Grandfather's clock, it stops!

We might liken the heart to a four cylinder motor, for it has four chambers, and four sets of valves. When the valves of our automobile motor get stocky or leak they can be removed and ground so as to open and close without loss of power. Carbon is removed from the cylinders. But not so with the valves and cylinders of the heart. What we do to the valves of the heart, has to be done when the heart is pumping, sometimes two or even three or more times per second.

Organic heart disease, that is, the disease that affects the valves, particularly, is usually caused by a rheumatic infection, originating in some focus of infection such as tonsils or teeth. But the heart is subject to other assaults. Overwork, both physical and mental; the emotional spress of worry, envy and anger, all contribute to causing the various diseases of the heart, such as dilation, weakness and degeneration of the heart muscle, the irritable heart and nervous heart.

And to think that the poor heart, on which are piled all kinds of indignities, must keep working—"tick-tack, tick-tack" without intermission as the seconds, minutes, hours, days and years roll by.

When you realize that more people die from heart disease than from any other one cause, you see how important it is to care for the heart and protect it.

The prevention of heart disease consists, principally, in the prevention of rheumatic attacks, by protection against vicious infections, by removing the foci of infections, and improving the natural resistance against infection—in staying well by right living.

How necessary, then, to watch out for the children! The school inspection, now generally in operation, is doing admirable work.

It has been well said—"the healthy know not of their health; but only the sick." So, if your heart is doing its work smoothly, normally, you are unconscious of it. Only when in trouble does the heart thump, or give pain, or other uncomfortable sensations in the chest.

Finally to keep the heart in condition:

Cultivate cheerfulness, good will toward man; avoid physical and mental excesses.

If you have symptoms, go to your physician, follow his advice and mend your ways.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

In a corner of a scientific laboratory in London stands an instrument which engineers and scientists ought to seize and erect in some spot at which they could gather annually for celebrations. It is the first wireless valve, and it was invented 32 years ago by Professor John A. Fleming, who has just retired from his post at the University of London. It was the invention of his valve that really made broadcasting possible. For more than 40 years Professor Fleming has been engaged in experimental physics researches, concerning himself particularly with the technical applications of electricity. Many new theories owe their birth to his mind and genius. Among other things he perfected the system of electric lighting in ships. He has written many important scientific papers and he has delivered many courses of lectures before the Royal Institution in England.

IN DAY'S NEWS

TURKISH RUGS

Turkish rugs on American floors came from Turkey. But the next Turkish rugs that an American householder buys to match them, duplicate in design, color, tone and quality, may come from Greece.

Greek exports of oriental rugs have climbed about 100 per month to over 100 per day, according to recent trade information. The carpets of Asia whisked themselves across the Aegean sea with the 1,350,000 Greeks deported from Turkey in 1922-23.

"From the trials of a single family of Christian Greek rugmakers from Geurdis in Anatolia, which is westernmost Asia Minor, may be imagined the hardships resulting from rooting a people and an industry and planting them in another nation," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"Angelo, the father; Anastasia, the mother; Maria, a daughter old enough to be useful; and two younger children are the family Tozakoghlou. They lived in Geurdis, a valley village 75 miles northeast of Smyrna.

"Like their neighbors they were a Greek family of Turkish rug-makers. Father Tozakoghlou was skilled in coloring Angora wool with vegetable dyes, yellow from Persian berries, red from madder root, and blue from indigo. The mother had the unusual opportunity to learn fine points of rug-making in a school near Constantinople started by a Sultan to raise the level of Turkish weaving.

"Maria learned her art and trade from her mother. The girl's fingers, as she, her mother, and two sisters all worked on the rug loom in their low stone cottage, tied and cut, and tied and cut almost as quickly as her mother's. Rug-making has its speeds just like battleships and automobiles. Maria could do a thousand knots an hour. She had already woven her kis khilim and her father proudly proclaimed the news around the village. Kis khili is the dowry rug. Of course the most meticulous skill a girl can command goes into it. In the United States a kis khilim brings a high price.

"For more than 2,000 years, Geurdis has been the City of The Knot. A westerner will recognize it more easily from its Greek name Gordius, for the Gordian knot myth is common property even in America. Gordes, a wise old ruler of this region, once tied a yoke to a chariot tongue. He created a new know. No one could untie it. Finally Gordes grew boastful and announced that whosoever should untie the knot would rule Asia. Alexander came into town one day and asked to see the knot. He rubbed the skin off his fingers pulling and picking at it. The knot resisted even the great Alexander. In desperation he reached for his sword and—swish—the Gordian knot was cut.

Rug-makers of modern Geurdis claim almost as much for the tight 'Ghiordes' knots of their famous rugs. That the rugs were made for worshippers of Allah disturbed their religion not at all. They satisfied their consciences, no doubt, with the hope that their rugs might feel the soles of Christian feet in America.

"At any rate the short-lived, post-World war possession of Anatolia by Greece ended in 1922. The Tozakoghlou family and thousands of Greeks fled from Turkish vengeance to Smyrna. When Smyrna burnd those who lived went to Greece where they could at least starve in peace. New Phaleron the refugee colony at Athens' front door was a sorry exchange for Geurdis, but remnants of the scattered family found each other. In a rough shack amid other shacks and dirty tents they tried to piece together a new world.

"They had no tools; they did not know farming. They brought to Greece only the skill to tie colored wool knots into warp and woof. But there was little wool to be had. No looms were in New Phaleron to work on. Rug patterns were a vague imprint of memory. Aniline dyes introduced a new, strange element. Surmounting these obstacles, fellow refugees begun to produce rugs—crude affairs at first.

"One day Maria heard of a new rug factory. An Armenian foreman who had fled from Bergama was looking for skilled workers such as she. He had obtained from America, of all places, patterns of the famous rugs of Asia: Bokhara, Hamadan, Pergamon, Shiraz, Demirdji, and 30 looms were busy.

"Not even a skilled worker can get rich but Maria is thankful for a living at piece work. She is paid by the knot—about 1 drachma per 1,000 knots—enabling her to earn 10 drachma, or $1.90, per day. What does this mean in the terms of oriental rugs on American floors? Such rugs vary from 25 knots in cheaper grade to rare pieces of more than 400 knots per square inch. On a 9 by 12 foot rug of average quality Maria can do two inches the narrow way of the rug per day. If the rug has 75 knots per square inch it will have over 1,000,000 hand-tied knots.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

RACE FOR LOW POWERED COMMERCIAL AIRPLANES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A relay race for low powered commercial airplanes, a "Jenny" race with national guard pilots competing and a series of mishaps thrilled the more than 7,000 spectators, who gathered at city-owned model farms flying field today for the second day of the national air races.

The accidents, none of which resulted seriously, were due to the flying field, which has been turned toto a quagmire by recent heavy rains. The mud in many places was six inches deep making landing and taxiing difficult. Just as the races finished this evening, another torrential downpour drenched the enthusiasts.

The team of three planes, headed by Basil L. Rowe, Keyport, N. J., handily won the relay race for the "H. B. T." trophy and a cash prize of $500. C. S. "Casey" Jones, of Garden City, L. I., and A. H. Kreider, of Hagerstown, Md., the other two pilots on the team, in this race the passenger was required to race 200-yards carrying a pennant and tie it on the strut of the plane in the team which was to fly the next lap.

The Ludington exhibition team of Philadelphia, composed of Captain Victor Dallin, R. P. Hewitt and John Thorpe was an easy second. The Trave Air Manufacturing team, of Wichita, Kan., made up of Fred Day, Hoyt, Eureka, Col., winner of the "On to the Sesqui" race, E. P. Lott, Kansas City, and R. H. Depew, New York city, with a Fairchild monoplane, was third.

Carl H. Rich, Staten Island, who was third on the first lap in this event, which consisted of seven laps around the 1.-mile triangular course, or 84 miles, pushed his plane into first place on the second lap and was never headed. With the trophy, a plaque embodying the theme of the sesquicentennia, won $500 in cash.

Carl J. Suck, also of the New York guard, was in second place for the cash prize of $300. Third place and $100 was taken by Edward Weatherdon also of the New York guard. Lieutenant George H. Hylan, of the 104th Observation Squadron, Philadelphia, placed fourth, which carried a prize of $150.

Earlier in the day the entire top of the Waco, piloted by Captain Victor Dallin was wrecked when a U. S. mail De Haviland plane, piloted by J. D. Hill, found difficulty in getting off in the mud. The undercarriage of the DeHavland struck the Waco and cut halfway through the wing within a few feet of Dallin's head. Shortly afterwards "Casey" Jones and Lieutenant George E. Decoursey, of Philadelphia, while taxiing their planes across the field nosed over when their landing gear stuck in the mud.

Sergeant James Pearson, of Mitchel Field, L. I., brought the spectators to their feet when he jumped from a Martin bomber from a height of 2,000 feet and fell nearly 500 feet in a free drop before opening his parachute. He was competing in a landing-to-a-mark contest. The contest was won by Sergeant Walter Hendricks, attached to the army squadron at the Sesqui-Centennial exhibition.

SNAKE CAUSED THREE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

HAMMONTON, N. J., Sept. 6.—(AP)—A snake wriggling across the road was the indirect cause of three persons in an automobile losing their lives at a Reading railroad crossing at Folsom, near here today.

Two dead:

Anna Skinner, 25, Toronto, Canada; Rose McGannon, 25, Toronto, Canada; William Williams, 5, Camden, N. J.

Two others were injured.

"We were near the railroad when the women saw a large snake crossing the road," said Aitken, who was driving the motor car. "They screamed and pointed and attracted my attention."

State police said that Aitken, distracted from watching the road by the screams, failed to notice the railroad or to hear the approach of a train. The car struck the engine and was hurled against a signal standard.

BEST OF FEMALES AT BENCH SHOW AT FAIR

A Norwich-owned dog, Glenna of Chase Cliff, Kennels, won her way to the highest honors when the dog show at the county fair could bestow on any female, when she was adjudged the best female in the show ring and in New London county, regardless of breed.

About 75 of the 82 dogs entered for the bench show were on hand to compete for the various prizes offered. Dr. C. C. Townsend of Boston being superintendent of the ringside show.

In the shepherd dog, open class Glenna took first prize winning over her own kennel sweetheart, Rosebud. Miss Rose Driggans, beautiful golf cup female, was Echo Lad and Queeny fourth. Later when being judged for the best of breed Glenna won this with Doucoeur Chief, the winner of the puppy female class, for competition.

The last and all coveted honor came when winning females in all breeds were called into the ring to be judged for best female in New London county. After a lengthy and hard drilled exhibition they were selected down to a setter, wire haired terrier and a shepherd. The judging was then continued and finally awarded to Glenna of Chase Cliff.

Glenna was well supported by her kennel mate, Brunelf of Pine Tree, which won the shepherd dog class and also the best of breed in the dog class.

C. Hull Bliss of Chase Cliff, beaten by his kennel brother Brunolf, won second place in the shepherd dog class.

While driving his horse and wagon down a hill on the Hallville road, near his home, shortly after 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, George Mattern of R. F. D. The W. W. Backus hospital ambulance was summoned and took Mr. Mattern to the hospital where examination showed that he is suffering from bruises and lacerations about the body. It is thought that he may have a fractured rib. Monday evening Mr. Mattern was resting comfortably.

The horse was uninjured and was led to its barn nearby. The harness was badly damaged and the wagon was damaged to some extent, as was the machine.

The machine, an Oldsmobile, is owned by James Fisher of Westerly and was being driven by James A. Spellman of No. 15 Liberty street, Stonington.

RAIN PUTS OVER HORSE RACES ON OPENING DAY OF THE COUNTY FAIR

Rain, fog and a muddy track resulted in the calling off of the three track events, vaudeville programme and band concert Monday the opening day of the 72nd annual fair of the New London County Agricultural society at the local fairgrounds. Owing to the postponement of the feature attractions until today (Tuesday) the officials of the agricultural society decided to run the fair an extra day, so that instead of coming to a close Wednesday afternoon the fair will continue throughout Thursday. Announcement to this effect was made early Monday afternoon by Gilbert S. Raymond, secretary of the agricultural society.

In spite of the rain and mud a crowd estimated at close to 2,000 people spent the afternoon at the fairgrounds, visiting the various attractive exhibits and liberally patronizing the midway tents and stands. This year's exhibits are excellent and in most departments are even larger and better than the exhibits shown in past years. The inclement weather proved a big disappointment to the fair officials who had been counting on a record crowd for the opening day. However, with fair weather for the next three days, the attendance should compare very favorably with the average attendance in past years.

Along with the announcement that the fair will run an extra day this year came a statement from Secretary Raymond that the three horse races scheduled for Monday will be run off this afternoon, Tuesday's programme being put over to Wednesday and Wednesday's events going over to Thursday afternoon. The vaudeville actors will be held over an extra day also. While the patronage was not anywhere near as large as expected for an opening day, the concession stands had a fairly busy afternoon. The merry-go-round and the Thriller, a new midway attraction had a fair percentage considering the weather and the small crowd. The balloon ascension, of course, could not be held and like the races and vaudeville, went over a day. The athletic events will take place Wednesday afternoon as scheduled.

The dog show and better baby contest were held as scheduled Monday, these being one day events ones. The poultry judging and awarding of ribbons in the dog show took place Monday morning and afternoon.

The track events for this (Tuesday) afternoon will include a 2.18 pace (stake) purse $300, best three in five; 2.14 pace purse $500, best three in five and a 2.20 trot, purse $500, best three in five. The balloon ascension with triple parachute drop, is scheduled for 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

100 PER CENT INCREASE IN TRAFFIC BY 1930

An increase of 100 per cent. in traffic is forecast in 1930 for Connecticut in a report of a survey of transportation on the state highway system by the Bureau of Public Roads, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Connecticut state highway department just published. A proportionate increase in the number of automobiles owned by residents of the state is estimated also, which would bring the ratio of population to automobiles down to three to one.

The report was published at the government office at Washington and contains 101 pages of glazed paper, bound in book form. The volume contains several large maps to illustrate the surveys made, together with a number of photographs of road develops and figure tables.

The report of the survey shows a comprehensive consideration of the traffic situation in the state and thoroughly reviews the past as a basis for planning in the future.

The survey considers the activities of the highway department since its creation in 1895 as divided into two periods: one extending from 1895 to 1912 and the other from 1913 to the present time. Throughout the first period the vehicle using the highways were largely horse drawn, and the location, alignment and surfaces of the highways constructed were determined by the needs of such traffic. The second period has been marked by a great increase in the motor vehicle traffic, particularly motor truck traffic, with the resulting imposition of requirements of design in highways that cannot be met by types of roads built during the first period.

The result of the survey shows that the New Haven-to-Westerly road is considered the third most important lane of traffic and the route from New London to Putnam the fourth important highway in the state.

Highway Development.

An interesting review of the development of state highway control is included. Beginning with the full control by two selectmen, the power of supervision has evolved through the issuing of franchises to turnpike companies in 1795, the return to the towns and control of selectmen, state participation in 1895, with a state highway commission of three members, and the final creation of a single commissioner with full control in 1897. The financial responsibility of upkeep has gradually changed from an original full assessment to the respective towns to the present full assessment against the state.

The regulation and taxation of motor vehicles is considered in the survey extensively beginning with the first law relating to motor vehicles enacted in 1901 when the secretary of state was the registration officer and a fee of $2 was required for registration. In 1907 the fee was increased and horsepower used as a contributing basis. In 1921 the present displacement formula was substituted for the horsepower formula in ratios registration fees and a substantial increase made. The report shows that with the inauguration of the gasoline tax in 1921 the revenue from the source has reached a total of more than a million dollars a year, the exact figures for 1924 being $1,071,503.

Quarter of Roads Concrete.

Connecticut has more than a quarter of its highway is finished with concrete surfaces, according to a series of figure illustrations in the report which show this proportion to be larger than New England as a whole but smaller than the percentage of concrete roads in Rhode Island and Marrachusetts. Nearly half of the Connecticut roads are shown to be of waterbound macadam.

The report also advances the recommendation of Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald for the inauguration of a 10-year program of rebuilding a comprehensive well-devised system of secondary highways to supplement the trunk lines. It is revealed that roads needing immediate repair or reconstruction number 206 miles of which the road from Montville to Norwich and the road from New London to Saybrook are included.

Bank Street Traffic.

The location of Connecticut between the thickly populated districts of New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island are brought out to indicate the increase of traffic from foreign cars, particularly motor trucks.

In a special chart evolved from a study of traffic conditions throughout the state the maximum traffic at the west, or Bank street, entrance to New London is given as 4,670 cars per day and the average day is given as 1,840. The north, or Williams street, entrance shows a daily average of 1,196 cars. The east, or Groton entrance, shows a daily average of 1,801 cars daily.

Of local interest is a table furnished in the report showing the number of cars that passed over the Saybrook bridge from 1916 to 1923. A total of 82,344 cars were recorded in 1916 and a definite increase reaching a total of 260,439 in 1923 noted.

SUSIE IS ENJOYING HER ANNUAL VACATION BY BURNING UP GASOLINE

Susie is now somewhere in New England, care-free and happy we hope. She left Monday morning for an automobile tour through picturesque New England and as yet we have had no reports of any automobile accident in which her name is mentioned. Her letter which she wrote just previous to her departure is as follows:

Dear Sport's Ed: We're off, or at least we will be in the morning. By the time you read this me, Pa, Ma, sister and little Willie will be on our grand and glorious way to the great wide open spaces where men is men and women roll their stockings. Oh boy ain't it a thrilling feeling to think that all you got to do for two weeks is just roll along through green pastures and shaded lanes little they tell about in them circulars advertising sub-divisions. Gosh Ed, I can hardly wait till I hear that old flivver a coughing up the yard with me in the back seat composing myself to the limit.

Say listen Ed it ain't all been no bed of roses getting prepared for this jaunt neither. There's been a lotta arguments and a lotta hurt feelings but I guess when we get onto the road high and dry, safe to the great beyond we ain't going to remember nothing but that we is having a good time. The old family is a packed out picture now, and I looks like one of them moving vans. They is a lotta stuff what has gotta go and yet and it is having a kinda wonderment whiede us numbers is going to pack ourselves.

Pa insisted that we had gotta take the radio so that is parked on the running drive back seat on a sofy pillow so it won't break no tubes. Course I don't know whether the rest of us is comfortable or not. Ma put her foot down when pa wanted to take the phonograph in case the radio busts! Say Ed what that with the kitchen sink. I guess we got all the other utensils though. They is five cots what you sleep on parked in different places along with a lotta blankets. Ma took a suit case full of dishes except Willie and his dubs is packed in along with Pa's only Pa don't know what we is going to slum-ber on. The walls is tied on top along with some poles, a coupla buckets and a couple shoe what Pa said we might need we could cook our meals. Cooking utensils is hung around here there and everywhere until the whole flivver looks like a tin-peddlers car. Mals going to do the cooking as well as drive although Pa says he knows more about outdoor life than anybody in the party although I have to admit he's been a camper and has owned his own meals he gets mighty than good cooked.

There's a coupla spare tires hung on back with a coupla cans of gasoline so we won't get stuck in no gulch. The last place Pa's fishing tackle is tied unto the car some place and the last place we is going to destroy is under the back seat. There is a few other things what we has got to get time to mention them cause we can go on a visit to Hartford, Ed. We could use a trailer but it is a waste time to take we got us a good start.

Oh Ed before I leave I wanta vote for a feller what I think is the most popular ever in baseball circles. A feller what I wanta vote for is Tom Padgett. Course I know you'll say there's something funny about me but I honestly she boy I'm casting my vote for just the same. That feller is the best batting average in the league. He played in two games and made three runs and made two hits in the week sats com-plete average. As for fielding is perfect. He never makes no error and no one when a man is afraid of a ball. But the most wonderful thing he's done for the league is to stay out of a couple's so he gets my vote.

Well Ed I'll take care while I'm on a vacation and I'll send you a couple postcards saying "Having a fine time. Wish you were here" and a couple smarts saying "This is me and Pa talking with the old man of the mountain or something like that like everybody else does. I ain't going through New London 'cause I spent a week there one day and I has seen all them things what New London has to offer.

CINCINNATI BREAKS EVEN WITH CHICAGO

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Chicago and Cincinnati divided the Labor Day bill, the Cubs winning the morning game by 2 to 0 and Cincinnati taking the afternoon contest, 7 to 4. Errors helped them to score their two runs.

In the afternoon Blake was hit hard while Rixey kept the hits well scattered up to the ninth inning. The score:

PIRATES FAIL TO GAIN IN RACE FOR PENNANT

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates retired home from its disastrous western trip today and handed the double holiday bill with the St. Louis Cardinals. The visitors won the morning game 8 to 1 and the afternoon the Buccaneers took the contest, 4 to 2. Neither team made any advance in the flag race.

Rhem held Pittsburgh to four hits in the first contest, while three local hurlers, Morrisoh, Songer and Yde were hit freely by the Cardinals. After having scored one run in each the first and fourth the Red Birds rallied in the fifth making five more. The fourth marker came in the seventh. The Pirates made their long rally in the sixth when Wright scored from second on Cronin's single.

The Cardinals outhit the Pirates in the afternoon but Kremer was master of the situation. Southworth's home run with Douthit on base in the third inning put the visitors in front with two runs but the champions, aided by a walk to Traynor, Cronin's triple and a wild pitch, tied the score in the fourth. Sothoron was driven from the mound in the seventh when Cuyler singled with the bases loaded to drive in a pair of runs.

It was estimated that 10,000 fans saw the morning fray, while 27,000 were present in the afternoon. Score.

DEMPSEY WILL TAKE THREE DAYS LAY OFF

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 6.—(AP)—After engaging in a spirited workout equivalent to eight rounds, Jack Dempsey hung up his boxing gloves tonight for a three days lay off. The world's heavyweight champion, except for a little road work to keep him loosened up, will loaf until Friday. Then he will plunge into the final days of intensive training to develop speed and sharpen his judgment of distance.

Before a holiday crowd of 3,500 to 4,000 spectators, Dempsey today grimly waded into five sparring mates for a round apiece and also whaled away at the light and heavy punching bags and yanked the pulleys for a round. All five of Dempsey's playmates were forced to withstand a wicked punching. The champion bored in steadily, whipping over stiff left hooks and short rights that came from all sides and always found an opening.

Dempsey appears to be revealing more speed and dash each day. He crouches low, bobbing and weaving to get in close range and then keeps up a constant fire of shot lefts and rights to the head and body. He apparently is willing to take a few punches to reach his objective at close range.

The champion's first round today was against Frankie Carpenter, a light heavyweight, who absorbed the hardest wallops. Carpenter was dizzy and hanging on at the finish.

Jimmy Brown, the Panama negro middleweight, kept the crowd in an uproar with his efforts to dance backwards out of firing range. He speared Dempsey with afew long lefts, but the champion finally caught up with him and ripped a left to the body and a right to the head. Thereafter Brown clung to Dempsey at every opportunity.

Frankie Busch, Johnny Saxton and Martin Burke furnished the opposition for Dempsey in the last three rounds. Burke made the titleholder miss with some long shots, but Dempsey, trying mainly for speed, only let a punch go now and then when stung with a jab.

WILL PLAY FINALS IN TENNIS DOUBLES TODAY

The two days of rain caused an upset in the Eastern Connecticut Tennis championships being played at the Norwich Golf club, all singles and doubles games scheduled over the holiday being cancelled because of the weather.

Play will be resumed today (Tuesday) on the club courts when the semi-finals and finals in the men's doubles are to be played, the semi-finals in the morning and the finals in the afternoon starting at 2:30 o'clock.

In the morning play at 11 o'clock Paul Kaufman of Washington, D. C. and S. M. Graves of New London are slated to meet Alex Persons of Worcester, Mass., and John Williams of Norwich. This semi-finals contest is expected to be a long drawn out fight as both pairs are well matched. At noon E. J. Cerard and W. J. Caron of Norwich are to meet Roy D. Leighton of New Haven and T. N. Lewin of New York. In the two local young men Leighton and Lewin will have no setup but it is generally conceded that Leighton and Lewin are slated for the finals against the winner of the Kaufman-Graves and Persons-Williams match.

The men's singles games have been postponed until this coming Saturday, the semi-finals to be played on Saturday and the finals probably on Sunday. Thus far in the singles matches there has been but one upset, this being the defeat of Royal D. Leighton of New Haven by G. L. Titus of New York in the first round. It had been noised that these two fast players would not meet before the semi-finals but on the draw they were matched for sets in the first round.

RIP WINNER OF BROOK HANDICAP STEEPLECHASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—An added starter, Rip, wearing the colors of the Bantam stable, won the historic Brook handicap steeplechase over the 2 1-2 mile course at Belmont park today in the feature race of a card marred by a multitude of scratches due to the rain and heavy track. Rip, at 5 to 1, closed fast in the last quarter mile to beat out Erne Bi, the favorite, which had led throughout. At the two mile, the latter had a ten length lead but tired rapidly. Jolly Roger, coupled in the betting with Ernee Bi, was third. The time was 5:07 3-5. The race was worth $11,100 to the winner.

Scapa Flow, the crack man o'war colt, took the fifth race, a six furlong sprint for two year olds, in 1:13 2-5. Black Panther was second and Bostonian third. Scapa Flow was a heavy favorite.

Ten thousand fans saw Supremus win the Lincoln handicap $10,000 added, feature of the holiday card at Lincoln track. Supremus covered the mile and a quarter in 2:02. Devon was second and King Nadi third.

Jockey Danny Smith suffered a wrenched back in a spill in the third race at Raceland Jockey, date was cut about the head. Both riders fell from their mounts, when G. Collins, on Hughie, pushed their horses to the fence. Collins was suspended indefinitely.

MISS WILLS PAYS TRIBUTE TO MISS MARY BROWNE

BERKELEY, Calif., Sept. 6.—(AP)—"When Suzanne Lenglen appears on American tennis courts she must encounter worthy net opponents. I can think of no more competent representative of American tennis than Miss Mary Browne," said Miss Helen Wills, former national champion, at her home here today when told that Miss Browne was to become a professional nail play against the French star.

"Miss Browne's decision to enter the professional ranks is purely a personal matter with her and will have no bearing on amateur tennis. It is not unlikely that Miss Browne realized she had reached the height of her game as an amateur player and that the amateur field had no more honors to offer. I don't blame her for taking the step if she thought it desirable.

"I don't think any ethics of the tennis court are involved at all."

MANCHESTER CLUB WINS IN NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Manchester club of the New England baseball league today officially won the right to fly over its ball park the pennant symbolic of 1926 supremacy. Rain prevented holiday crowds in eight cities from witnessing the close of the first New England League since 1919, and Claude B. Davidson, president of the league, announced that last Saturday's standing would be the record of the summer's struggle.

The final standing of the clubs was: Manchester, Lynn, Lewiston, Haverhill, Lawrence, Salem, Portland, and Nashua.

Track Meet Postponed.

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The annual track meet of the Harry W. Congdon post, American Legion, was postponed here today because of inclement weather. The meet will be held Saturday.

KEEN RIVALRY IN ATHLETIC EVENTS SLATED FOR COUNTY FAIR WEDNESDAY

Judging by the way entries are continuing to pour in from nearly every city in Conn. for the field events to be staged at the Norwich fair on Wednesday, Sept. 8, this meet should rival any meet of its kind ever held in this state. To date entries have been received from the Harriers of New Haven, Waterbury Boys club, Ansonia club of Meriden, Hartford Y. M. C. A. and New Britain Y. M. C. A. with many individual entries from these same cities, Putnam, Stonington, New London, Stamford and Newington and last but not least nearly a score of entrants from Norwich and the Duwell A. A.

Accompanying most of the entry blanks are letters from men who want to know if Joe Jackson, state 100 yard champion, is entered, stating that they are anxious to compete against him. One boy from Putnam disputing Jackson's right to the title of state champ, claiming that he himself is champ. According to this advance dope it appears as if Joe is in for a tough session, which his many supporters claim he will attend to in good shape. In addition to the three prizes offered for each event, the Bliss jewelry store is offering a large cup to the team scoring the most points, which no doubt will add considerable interest to the meet. Tom Tracy, secretary of the A. A. U. who handles the big police field meet in New Haven each year, will help the Duwell committee in supervising this meet, which guarantees that everything will be run off in tip top style.

In addition to the big field meet, Norwich will witness its first amateur boxing; seven fast bouts in the 115, 122, 130, 138, 140 and 145 pounds class to appear on the fair program following the field events. Amateur boxing in the larger cities going over big, the simon pures furnishing plenty of action in their bouts. Four of the bouts for Wednesday have been hand picked by Tom Tracy himself from amongst the top-notchers in the state, and according to reports from him will impress the boxing fans so that they will want to see more of amateur boxing in the future. The other three bouts have been selected by "Shiek" Leonard from his stable of all local boys. The "Shiek" has guaranteed that his bouts will be all slam bang affairs, as the boys in his stable are all anxious to get a start and that he had considerable trouble in picking the three bouts which he was asked to furnish, as everyone of the boys in his stable wanted to go on. The bouts furnished by the Leonard stable are Young Leonard and Harry Allen, welterweights. Young Sofovan and Frankie Lewis flyweights and Young Jakabeski and "Kid" Kaplan are also welterweights.

The prizes to be awarded the boxers have been supplied by the American Thermos Bottle Co. of this city. First prize in the boxing events will be quart enameled serving outfits, second prize smaller pint nickle plated outfits. These prizes are by far more attractive than those offered in some of the larger cities for amateur box ing and it is felt that they will make the boys fight all the harder.

Both the prizes for the field events and the boxing are on exhibition in the show window of the Bliss jewelry store on Main street and are attracting considerable attention.

JESSE GUILFORD WINS TAILER GOLD MASHIE

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Jesse Guilford of Boston today won permanent possession of the gold mashie offered by T. Suffern Tailer by winning for the second time the annual tournament on Ocean links, the private 9-hole course on the Tailer estate here. His medal was 293 for the 72 holes of play. The runner-up was Roland MacKenzie of Washington with 296.

Guilford started the final 18 holes this afternoon even with Francis Ouimet at 224 for the first three rounds of the contest. The weather had improved somewhat and the "siege gun" appeared to have regained his top form. Coming he shot four consecutive birdies and at the final hole, with a difficult triangle approach, he gambled successfully. Instead of skirting a clump of trees, he drove over the tree tops, dropping the ball at least 275 yards in perfect position for the approach shot. He holed out in par four, giving him a 35 for the last nine holes and the match.

The feature of the morning round was the playing of MacKenzie, who set a new course record of 32. The previous record of 33 was made by Jess Sweetser in 1923 and was equalled last year by Max Marston of Philadelphia and Francis Ouimet. MacKenzie's new mark was four under par.

The field today was reduced to seven when Marston dropped out because of a heavy cold. As runner-up MacKenzie won a silver mashie. A gold golf ball offered for the best 36 holes went to Marston for his 147. Ouimet with a 72, won the silver golf ball for the best 18 holes. Guilford, MacKenzie and Marston had lower rounds, but they were disqualified as major prize winners.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—St. Louis and Cleveland divided a twin bill here this afternoon, the Indians winning the first 7 to 6 and the Browns gaining a 3 to 1 victory in the second.

Cleveland had the bases filled and one down in the ninth inning of the night cap but Spurgeon hit into a double play. The score.

Science Finds Way to Make Pale Thin Children Plump and Healthy Quickly

Food in youth is the most important thing. Without proper nourishment the foundation for health in after years cannot be built.

Unless children get a plentiful supply of the vital food factors such as vitamins and organic plant salts of iron, lime and phosphorous, they will not have strong bone and sound teeth.

When your children are thin, pale and listless, you can lay it to the fact that they are not getting from their daily food a sufficient quantity of these important elements of life.

You must help Nature build them up by supplying the deficiency. Everybody knows that the best natural way to give children all these vital elements is to give them good old Cod Liver Extract. But because of its nasty fishy taste and odor, many young, weakened stomachs cannot stand it.

Now, however, all disadvantage has been removed by a big advance of Science. A way has been found to concentrate all the vital elements of Cod Livers into pleasant, easy-to-take tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They are a real food help. They quickly build up frail, puny bodies and bring back the bloom of health to white, sunken cheeks.

In fact, the results from the use of McCoy's Tablets have been so remarkable in literally thousands of cases they are now sold by Lee & Osgood Co or your favorite druggist anywhere with a specific guarantee to add at least 5 pounds of healthy flesh after 30 days' use or your money will be instantly refunded.

Protect your child's health, fortify his strength for future years. Give him the priceless gift of sound teeth throughout life by beginning treatment with McCoy's Tablets today. 60 for 60 cents.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Reddy Skins His Nose

Who fails to always watch his toes
Will soon or later bump his nose.
—Old Mother Nature.

There is nothing in the world more true than this. A bumped nose follows stubbed toes. All of this is merely another way of saying, "Watch your step." Who watches his step will seldom fall.

Reddy Fox usually is pretty watchful. Occasionally he is careless, just as everybody is careless occasionally, and usually he has to pay for his carelessness. But this isn't the case with Reddy nearly as often as it is with many others. When it does happen, Reddy usually is very much upset.

As you know, Reddy had been spending a lot of time on the seashore.

"What's the matter with you, Neighbor Fox?" he demanded

He had become so used to the seashore that he had grown a wee bit careless. He wasn't watching his step as he should have been, so it happened that one day, when he jumped from one big rock to another big rock, he didn't notice that the rock he was jumping from was wet, and therefore slippery. The result was that when he jumped, his hindfeet slipped, and he didn't land on the rock he was jumping to; that is, he didn't land as he had intended to. His hindfeet didn't land on it at all. He tried to hang on with his forefeet, but they kept slipping. He scraped and scrambled up but that rock was wet, too, and he kept slipping more and more. Now, the side of that rock, which would be under water at high tide, was covered with white shell-like things very close together. They are called barnacles, and the edges of them are very sharp. They are not pleasant to slide over. Reddy was finding this out.

Once he almost caught himself, and how he did try to scramble up! Then it began all over again. This time there was no stopping. Down he went, and in going he brought his nose against those barnacles. They took the skin off. Yes, sir, they took the skin off the end of Reddy's black nose. "Wow!" he yelled, and he slid down at the bottom with a thump.

Then Reddy did the most foolish thing. His nose now was sore. He felt sure it would feel better if he could get it into the water. He rushed to the nearest little pool and plunged in. "Wow!" he yelled, and how he did dance around! You see, that water in a salt pool simply made that skinned nose smart all the more.

It was some time before he stopped dancing around that big rock and Grayling the Gull happened along. Grayling alighted on the very rock from which Reddy had tumbled. "What's the matter with you, Neighbor Fox?" he demanded.

"Nothing," mumbled Reddy, and stopped dancing.

Then Grayling saw Reddy's skinned nose. "Oh, ho!" said he. "So you bumped your nose. That's too bad, Neighbor. It happens that I never have bumped my nose, but I guess it must hurt."

"Well, I guess that you guess right," returned Reddy. "These are the roughest rocks that I ever saw, anyway. I don't see what makes them smooth on top and rough down below."

"Oh," replied Grayling. "I guess you mean the Barnacles growing there."

"Growing?" exclaimed Reddy. "I don't see anything growing."

TRUCK DRIVER NEARLY DROWNED- CROWDED OFF NEW LONDON BRIDGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 6—Walter A. Murphy, 1672 Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., is being held in bail of $200 for presentation in the Groton town court Monday morning next on a charge of reckless driving. The automobile Murphy was driving forced a commercial truck owned by H. R. Douglas, contractor, and driven by Walter Rowley, Waterford off the Thames river bridge highway approach on the Groton side, Saturday forenoon, causing the truck to roll down an embankment and into a pond adjoining the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. That Rowley was not drowned was due more to good fortune than anything else.

The truck was bound for New London and had but started along the bridge approach when the automobile driven by Murphy attempted to pass it in doing so the automobile cut in on the truck the rear right wheel and mudguard hitting the truck and causing it to leave the highway, crash through the fence and continue down the embankment and into the pond. Rowley was caught in the seat and went into the pond with the truck which overturned. Rowley, however, succeeded in extricating himself and after he was able to stand on the muddy bottom, his head appeared above the surface of the water and he was able to wade ashore. Rowley's only injury was a lacerated forearm, which injury was treated by a physician. The accident was investigated by Capt. Andrew McCarthy, of Groton police, who arrested Murphy and held his automobile as a security for the bond of the accused.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

In Norwich during the past week there was a slackening in building in the city, especially as regards new permits, a majority of these being for alterations and garages, with no frame structure petitioned for.

Work on the addition to the United Congregational church has proceeded apidly, as his the work for the new Dime Savings bank on Broadway, the latter being the largest piece of construction work now under way in the city.

The valuation of the work for which permits were granted during the past week amount to about $3,000, making it one of the smallest weeks in recent months.

To S. R. Averell of 41 Yerrington avenue, garage fronting on Laurel Hill avenue. Size 40x45 feet. Concrete blocks for side walls. Foundation of stone and concrete. Fire proof shingles.

To Zadine Buys, to alter frame house for Philip Monroro on Mohegan park road. Balloon frame, asbestos shingle exterior finish, hardwood floors, gable dormers, size 12x15 feet.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

News of 75 years ago as taken in part from the Norwich Courier of 1851 is printed as follows:

Tuesday, Sept. 2, 1851—Among the patents issued during the week of August 26th is one to Horace Smith of Norwich, assignor to Cortland Palmer of New York, for an improvement in breech-loading fire arms.

The Norwich & Worcester & Palmer railroad will have to pay some unpleasant expenses according to nearly 1,000 Norwich people who were shamefully treated on their trip to the Williamntic Camp ground yesterday. The round trip fare had been advertised as 75 cents and when the train came to Norwich only two cars were provided some of them without seats. Adding to the fraud the conductor was abusive to Norwich people calling them "Yankees" and many other uncomplimentary names not to be used in print. Many leading Norwich citizens were on the train and will take the matter to the higher authorities to punish the railroad for its rotten treatment of the people.

News from the patriots continues to leak into the country despite the efforts of the Spaniards to prevent it. All the Americans have been put to death, among them Col. Crittenden, nephew of the attorney general of the United States.

Feeling is better throughout the south and the prisoners of the Americans may be exchanged by their friends.

Thursday, Sept. 4, 1851—General Lopez and his little band are still holding out in Cuba but have given up the fight for independence and are now fighting again to save their lives. There will be no assistance from New Orleans and the United States army and navy officers are notified to see that no bands of patriots sail from the shores of this country to assist General Lopez.

According to reports from California over 4,000 persons entered that state during the past two months while nearly 3,000 left the state. Thus it is seen that the population of California remains about the same. Many Norwich people and people from eastern Connecticut, who were out early for the gold hunt, have returned home, some of them greatly enriched in purse. Many others lie beneath the sod of California, while still others are settled in that state and have entered into business.

Saturday, Sept. 6, 1851—General Lopez has been captured and executed by the Spaniards and of his band of over 1,000 followers, 356 have been killed and 436 are now in confinement. American passengers aboard the Cherokee have passed a resolution demanding that Mr. Owen, consul at Havana, be no longer called an American and that he be immediately recalled by this country.

The grounds in which the new Roman Catholic church is to be erected at New Haven was consecrated with much ceremony last Sunday by Bishop Riley, assisted by several Roman Catholic priests.

At a free soil meeting at Lynn Mass. recently Abby Folsom was present and urged the sending to the free soil convention at Worcester a delegation of which half should be women. She advocated strenuously the nomination of John P. Hale as president of the United States and some eminent woman as vice president.

Major Foster preached at the meeting of the court of common council held Wednesday evening. The resolution asking for a reward for the information concerning people damaging the Yantic cemetery was referred to the finance committee. The sum of $233 was appropriated for the purchase of the Falls engine. A vote was passed that the committee on fire department sell the old Falls enginehouse. The committee on city watch was authorized to secure rooms in the engine houses for watch houses.

COL. OSBORN'S TRIBUTE TO CHARLES HOPKINS CLARK

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 6—(AP)—In a tribute in the Journal-Courier to Charles Hopkins Clark, his friend for nearly half a century, Colonel Norris G. Osborn said:

"Mr Clark was foremost and essentially a newspaper man. He started his career on the Hartford Courant and remained with it until his death, positive of its power for usefulness, jealous of its honor and convinced of its [illegible] but divine origin.

"The arbiter of its editorial policies, he remained the reporter. All of his experiences in life promoted themselves as 'copy' and became, in one form or another, the possession of his readers.

"He shrank from confidential information, which restricted his usefulness and restrained his sense of service to the community whose attorney he considered himself to be. He had to be reckoned with. He had things to say, and he knew how to say them—he was fearless in the saying of them. Earlier in life he was more the crusader, an attribute of youth which finds easier expression in type than elsewhere, but as he entered the realm of practical philosophy, fundamental principles shaped themselves in his mind more clearly and he saw in them the only dependable guide to the common welfare.

"Irritating as he sometimes was to many, he was saved by an admiration for his integrity and personal disinterestedness. He never was a self-seeker. His public service was limited to a delegateship in the constitutional convention and a directorship at the Cheshire reformatory.

"An illustration of his growing confidence in party principles and traditions was his withdrawal from the executive committee of the Connecticut Civil Service Reform association and his retirement from the commission appointed by the governor to study and report on the direct primary. His study had convinced him that the civil service laws worked to the disadvantage of the state and that the nominating convention produced better results than the direct primary. Whatever regrets there were that he had withdrawn from those progressive enterprises, there was no occasion to question his intellectual honesty. He lost faith in them and quit, rather than appear in a counterfeit role.

"The Courant stands today as a monument to his ability as an organizer and his keen wit as a director."

Tribute by Ogden Reid

"Charles Hopkins Clark was an editor of force and individuality. He brought the strength of the older school of American journalists to the conditions of modern publication and newsgathering. His unfailing interest in the expansion of the Associated Press and his contribution of character of judgment thereto won him the highest regard from his fellow newspapermen. He served his community, his state and the country, and his death will be universally regretted."

BELIEVE RICHARDS WILL BE CHOSEN BY COMMITTEE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—(AP)—With the start of the challenge round for the Davis cup, historic tennis trophy, only three days off, America and France both are uncertain over the line-ups that will battle for supremacy on the courts of the Germantown Cricket club at Philadelphia from Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The debate so far as the United States is concerned revolves about the selection of either Vincent Richards or William M. Johnston as a singles running mate for the national champion, William T. Tilden.

Richards, many close observers believe, will be the Davis cup committee's choice for the singles as well as the doubles. With Richard N. Williams, the team captain, as a partner. Such a decision not only would put the strongest burden on Richards but the New York youth has, ever had in cup play but would mean the elimination of Johnston for the first time since he and Tilden brought the trophy back from Australia in 1920.

There will be no test matches between Richards and Johnston to settle the mooted question. The Davis cup committee's decision made on the basis or past performances and its own judgment, will not be divulged until Wednesday when the draw for the matches takes place in Philadelphia.

SUZANNE NOT SURPRISED AT MISS BROWNE'S CHOICE

NICE, France, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen, just home from her trip to the Lido near Venice and through Switzerland and now busy preparing for her trip to the United States, today said she was delighted that Miss Mary K. Browne, the California tennis star had followed the [illegible] of Suzanne, and turned into the feminine field of professionalism.

The announcement of Miss Browne's decision to leave the amateur ranks was no news to Suzanne although for a moment she pretended that it was. When an Associated Press representative reminded her that she had remarked to him a few weeks ago at Pourville that others would follow her course and asked her whether it really was a surprise to her, Miss Browne's decision, she answered herself with smiling a cynical shrugging smile.

"But you can see I am delighted. I am going to have some [illegible] as Mary Browne will not be on the [illegible] she said.

"When Miss Brot [illegible] an opponent you need not think she is going to be [illegible] a series of exhibition matches," Suzanne added. "As a tennis player she's terrific and I'm eager to meet her, play [illegible] show [illegible] the world [illegible]

SUPERIOR COURT DISPOSES OF SEVEN CRIMINAL CASES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 7. — With Judge John R. Booth on the bench, the September term of the criminal side of the Windham county superior court opened here this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead of the Methodist church offered prayer. Seven of the cases on the heavy docket were disposed of. Of those put to plea four chose to be tried by the court and ten by jury. Miss Nellie W. Annis of Hartford, appointed court stenographer for Windham and Tolland counties in June, made her first appearance at the session.

Windham—Edwin F. Cross, Arthur L. Clark.

Putnam—Joseph Rivard, Frank B. Starlin.

Ashford—Edward A. Miller.

Brooklyn—William B. Potter, Raymond H. Doyer.

Canterbury — Malcolm Wibberly, William B. Wright.

Chaplin—Alfred T. Hall.

Eastford—Roy Latham.

Killingly—Edgar A. Wheaton, John B. Bassel.

Plainfield—Napoleon J. Fournier, Frank W. Daggett.

Pomfret—James P. Sharpe, Fred W. Keene.

Scotland—Leon Moffet.

Sterling—Byron T. Young.

Woodstock—Frank H. Miller, Wayland Gage.

Cases were disposed of as follows:

Manzig Kamilian, 66, charged with assault with intent to kill and murder, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months in the county jail at Brooklyn. He has already served five months in the jail while awaiting trial. On April 8, last, Peter Charron and two other men went to Kamilian's farm in East Killingly and remained there for several hours, drinking and playing cards. According to State Attorney Bradford, Kamilian tried to rid himself of the men for a number of hours. The three finally left the house but as they were getting into the car, Charron went back. His friends next saw him lying unconscious on the stone step. His skull had been fractured and Kamilian admitted hitting the man with a club which he kept to ward off intruders. There is doubt, however, as to whether Charron's skull was fractured by the blow from the stick or from the fall on the stone step. Charron died April 13, in a Norwich hospital, from cerebral hemorrhage.

Linwood Stillwell and William Culley, jointly charged on two counts of theft were sentenced to the reformatory, the sentence being suspended and the youths being placed on probation for one year, in charge of Deputy Sheriff Charles Ayer. Restitution of the stolen property had been made.

John Fitzgerald, 17, of Boston, charged with theft of a motor vehicle, the property of Albert W. French of this city, pleaded guilty. Judgment in his case was suspended and he was placed on probation in charge of Massachusetts officials.

Theodore Laparis of Putnam, charged on six counts with statutory burglary and theft committed on dates between February and June, 1926, pleaded guilty. Judge Booth imposed a sentence of eight months in the county jail.

JEWETT CITY

BAR HARBOR EXPRESSES WAKE BOROUGH SLEEPERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 7—People living in the west and south part of the borough, are being given free demonstrations, every morning an hour or so before sunrise, o fthe marvellous whistling power of the New Haven locomotives.

At these times in early fall, the Bar Harbor express, is being operated westbound, in from two to five sections, to accommodate home-coming passenger traffic. The north-bound boat-train, arriving here at 4:32 a. m., generally figures to cross a couple of trains of Pullman sleeper sections, by means of the long local turn-outs.

People are just scoring on the last beauty nap, when the U. S. mail B. H., leader of the string arrives from the north with the prop valve all a sizzling. First off, Mr. Engine driver lets off a couple of regular he ones, to let the postal clerks in the mail car know that Jewett City is close aboard, and if there are no orders, the pouch will be thrown off, as he roars by at a 50 clip. Generally there are orders here, and while the driver is stopping there will be two more long blasts, to notify the conductor that the semaphore arm is up. Then, as people begin to wonder, what is going on, he will blow out his flagman with one long and three short whistles. Meanwhile, up around the curve at the boathouse, section B. H. Y. Z. No. 2 is carrying on a siren conversation between its engineer and tail-end flagman. The hullaballo is just beginning, for now arrives the boat-train and as that is taking the long station siding to clear the main, the first B. H. calls in its flag with 5 long roars, fit to wake the sleeping dead. When he gets a high-ball from the conductor, O. K. to proceed, he blows a couple of more toots, to acknowledge the signal. Up the line a bit, the second section is going through the throes of the same tumultuous tooting, as it sends out and recalls its flagman.

Then, as likely as not, when the engine drivers pass, they will say good morning in whistle code, as they go puffing down the line. Besides all this, Monsieur Hiram, conductor of the boat-train, will yell out his train number 704, as the Bar Harbors pass, and one might hear him in Voluntown. Oh, he's there, Hiram is, and then some.

A public special meeting is to be held in the Methodist church this (Wednesday) evening, in place of the regular evening service. The Woman's Foreign Missionary society, The King's Heralds and Little Lighthearers are to take part in a pageant. There will be a speaker, Miss Florence Nicholls of Luchnow, India. It is expected that the mite-boxes will be brought in at this time.

McCabe, who also celebrated the nuptial mass. The bride wore a white satin gown with rhinestone and crystal trimmings, the Crystal bends coming from Ireland. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms and rhinestones. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses, Easter lilies and lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid was the bride's sister, Miss Catherine Moriarty. Her gown was sea foam georgette with which she wore a green and gold hat. She carried Killarney roses. The best man was John McTigue, of New York. A breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Helen Walsh, on Anthony street forty guests being present. Mr. and Mrs. Murray went to New York where they will occupy a newly furnished home. Mrs. Murray wore white crepe de chine for her going away gown, with a white coat and hat. She received many gifts of money, silver, cut glas and linen. Her gift from the groom was a pearl necklace. The groom received cuff-links from the bride. The bridesmaid received a gold rosary; cuff-links were given the groom's best man. A shower was given the bride a few weeks ago. Her brother and cousin from Indianapolis, Ind., and guests from Willimantic, Norwich, and Providence were present at the wedding.

A Triduum of three days' devotion is to commence in St. Mary's church this (Wednesday) evening with services at 7:30 Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evening. M., a Franciscan father from St. Joseph's Monastery, Winated, is to speak at the services. He is a noted preacher and served as chaplain during the World war. COMPETITION IN WORDS

One who goes into the market to buy a motor car today is naturally confused.

He has read the words best and greatest so often that they have ceased to be convincing. Where all is best, he reflects, there can be no best.

Thousand-dollar cars have been described to him in ten-thousand dollar language. And vice versa.

He finds himself the target in a war of adjectives; the helpless victim in a gigantic competition of words.

And so he is forced to rely on chance—the advice of friends—or his own limited experience.

They are content with the position they have long maintained in the far more vital competition of honest value.

They have continued steadily to improve their product, not only in comfort and beauty, but basically—beneath the body and hood where fundamental values lie.

Yet they have not unduly stressed each betterment that has marked the steady progress of their motor car toward a higher perfection.

And when economic conditions or greater sales have permitted them to reduce prices without reducing quality, they have announced the fact without excessive emphasis.

Unexaggerated truth is not spectacular. But in the long run, implicit public confidence has been Dodge Brothers reward, and this they propose to preserve forever by continuing to build just a little better than they tell.

Such Flavor

as this comes only in real Quaker Oats

THE price you pay for substitutes is the same as for the genuine Quaker Oats. The difference is in the flavor. And flavor, above all things, is important in oats.

That rich and toasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years' milling experience. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That is why millions demand the Quaker brand—why you should accept no other.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, and vitamines and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently "balanced" food.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 3 to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

Face Badly Disfigured. Healed by Cuticura.

POETRY

In School Days

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
A ragged beggar sunning;
Around it still the sumachs grow,
And blackberry vines are running

Within, the master's desk is seen,
Deep scarred by raps official;
The warping floor, the battered seats,
The jack-knife's carved initial.

The charcoal frescoes on its walls;
Its door's worn sill, betraying
The feet that, creeping slow to school,
Went storming out to playing!

Long years ago a winter sun
Shone over it at setting;
Lit up its western window-panes,
And low eaves' icy fretting.

It touched the tangled golden curls,
And brown eyes full of grieving,
Of one who still her steps delayed
When all the school were leaving.

For near her stood the little boy
Her childish favor singled;
His cap pulled low upon a face
Where pride and shame were mingled

Pushing with restless feet the snow
As restlessly her tiny hands
The blue-checked apron fingered.

He saw her lift her eyes; he felt
The soft hand's light caressing,
And heard the tremble of her voice
As if a fault confessing.

"I'm sorry that I spelt the word:
"I hate to go above you,
"Because,"—the brown eyes lower fell,—
"Because, you see, I love you!"

Still memory to a gray-haired man
That sweet child-face is showing.
Dear girl! the grasses on her grave
Have forty years been growing!

He lives to learn, in life's hard school,
How few who pass above him
Lament their triumph and his loss,
Like her,—because they love him.

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

My Brigantine

My brigantine!
Just in the mold and beauteous in thy form,
Gentle in roll and buoyant on the surge,
Light as the sea-fowl rocking in the storm,
Ho breeze and gale thy onward course we urge,
My water-queen!

Lady of mine!
More light and swift than thou none thread the sea,
With surer keel or steadier on its path;
We brave each waste of ocean-mystery
And laugh to hear the howling tempest's wrath,
For we are thine!

My brigantine!
Trust to the mystic power that points thy way,
Trust to the eye that pierces from afar,
Trust the red meteors that around thee play,
And, fearless, trust the Sea-Green Lady's Star,
Thou bark divine!

—James Fenimore Cooper.

The "white" Indians of Darien that have caused so much controversy in science circles were observed as early as 1679, according to a reference just unearthed by Dr. Maynard M. Metcalf, of Johns Hopkins university. The early volume, published in Dutch in 1699, was the work of one Alexander Esquemeling, a buccaneer who served as opportunity offered both the English and the French and between times turned historian. In his "Buccaneers of America" he records that in 1679 his ship touched at the islands of Zambles, which lie a little to the west of the River Darien, where he notes that several of the Indians were "fairer than the fairest of Europe" with hair as light as flax.

DANIELSON

TERM GETS UNDER WAY WITH TOTAL OF 886 PUPILS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 7.—Killingly's schools began their year of work Tuesday morning. Organization work occupied the greater part of the day's sessions, which were of special activity. Today the schools will be ready to proceed with their regular work and hundreds of pupils will be concerned with the mental tasks assigned them.

The registration at the Danielson graded school this year, minus the seventh and eighth grades, which are to be established as part of the new junior high school Sept. 20, was approximately 260. The rooms are comfortably well filled, but not crowded, a condition that would have been the case were the seventh and eighth grades kept in the building. Outside of Danielson, the largest registration of any school in town is at Goodyear, where 232 pupils were enrolled on the opening day. Dayville reported 136. The Attawaugan school, reflecting the removal of many families during the months that the mill there has been idle or on short time registered but 72 pupils Tuesday, but that will be very materially increased with the resumption of activity at the mill this fall. About the same conditions prevailed at Baileyville, where the registration Tuesday was only 47. At the East Killingly school 47 were registered at the opening session, 40 at Killingly Center 21 at the Valley and 14 at South Killingly. The seventh and eighth grade pupils of South Killingly are not included in this enrollment as they are to study in Danielson in the junior high school.

Some in Brooklyn when the schools opened Tuesday there were 142 registered at the East Brooklyn school and 56 in the Brooklyn Center school.

The total registration at the schools of Killingly Tuesday was 886. This total will be increased to more than 900 before the end of the week as there are always some belated entries for one reason or another. With the seventh and eighth grades of Danielson and South Killingly the registration exclusive of the high school will not be far under 1,000.

St. James' school opening Thursday morning, will enroll about 500 pupils.

Teachers in the public schools of Killingly are this year working on a salary arrangement, in the elementary grades that is as follows: Class III: First year, $1,000; second year, $1,050; third year, $1,100. Class-II: First year, $1,150; second year, $1,200; third year, $1,250. Class I: First year, $1,300; second year, $1,350; third year, $1,400.

Women teachers in the high school receive $100 more than elementary teachers in the same class and year. Grammar school principals receive a certain additional sum for the executive work required, depending upon the number of rooms under their supervision.

The table of salaries for male instructors in the high school follows: Class III: First year $1,500; second year $1,575; third year, $1,650. Class II: First year, $1,725; second year, $1,800; third year, $1,850. Class I: First year, $1,900; second year, $1,950; third year, $2,000.

The baseball game between the St. James team and the St. Joseph's team of Fitchburg that was to have been played here Labor day morning, will be scheduled for a later date, probably during the present month.

Speed is now the slogan of the workmen at Killingly high school. A determined effort is being made to have the enlarged high school ready for opening on Sept. 20. The contractors will be far from finished at that time but the work, it is hoped, will be far enough advanced to allow of using a large part of the building.

PUTNAM

THOMPSON MAN OFFICIAL OF SOUTH COVENTRY MILLS

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 7—Dexter Elliott of Thompson is one of the officers and manager of the Tracey-Elliott Mills, Inc., of South Coventry, Conn., for which Wilson D Truelwood, of New York, has been appointed temporary receiver by Judge Edwin C. Dickinson of the superior court. Mr Truelwood has also been made temporary receiver for the same company in Gloucester, R. I., where it also operates woolen mills.

Application for receivership showed claims of $2,450 but it also showed that the company owes about $60,000 to all creditors. It is said, however, that the company, the assets of which are listed at $350,000, is solvent.

OPENING OF SCHOOLS— FEW CHANGES IN TEACHERS

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 7—The Putnam schools open Wednesday, September 8, on the same schedule that prevailed in June, high school and the grades beginning at 9 o'clock (standard time). Children five years old will be admitted to the kindergarten in Israel Putnam school. Children six will be taken into the first grade of the Israel Putnam school, the first half of the alphabet but going to Miss Warner and the last half of the alphabet going to Miss Torrey. In schools where there is no kindergarten, pupils will be admitted to the first grade at five and a half years.

The schools have been repaired during the summer. The walls of the corridors in the high school building upstairs and down have been repainted. The school office has been redecorated. The corridors in the Israel Putnam school have been redecorated and all the seats cleaned and varnished. A new fire siren has been installed which can be heard all over the buildings. Push buttons with glass-covered doors have been placed on each floor with an uncovered trial button in the office.

There has been some confusion in the past in giving the fire alarms in the Israel Putnam school as the same bells were used as were used for other purposes. With the new system there will be no confusion and any child can hear the siren no matter what part of the building he is in. The corridors of the Smith Street school have been repainted. New composition floor boards have been installed in the East Putnam and Putnam Heights school.

There are a few changes in the teaching staff for this year. Otto F Smith, who resigned as submaster at Putnam high school to go to Gardiner, Mass., is succeeded by Lauriston L Noyes. Mr. Noyes is a graduate of the University of Maine. He taught a year in New Hampshire and for the past four years has been teaching science and coaching athletics at Wilton, Maine Academy. He has had marked success at Wilton, both as a teacher and a coach, having turned out several championship teams. He will teach science and coach athletics. He is married and has two children.

Miss Janet Height, who resigned as Latin teacher to teach in Windham, Mass., is succeeded by Miss Nancy C Judkins. Miss Judkins was an honor graduate in the Women's College of Brown University. She has had several years of experience as a Latin teacher. Her last position before coming to Putnam was in a private school organized on the Dalton plan in Long Island.

Miss Sarah D King, assistant in English who resigned to continue her studies at the University of Michigan, is succeeded by Miss Prudence Paine, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Paine of Thompson. Miss Paine was graduated last June from Mt. Holyoke college. Her major work there was English. She has also been very much interested in athletics, especially tennis.

The only change in the Israel Putnam school is in the kindergarten. Miss Ruth F Morrison, who resigned to teach in Cambridge, Mass., is followed by Miss Mildred Gregg of Suffield, Conn. Miss Gregg is a graduate of Suffield school and of the Culver-Smith Kindergarten Training school, Hartford. Miss Gregg was president of her class at Culver-Smith during both her junior and senior years.

The following transfers of teachers have been made: Mrs. Gladys L. Packwood, who has been a regular substitute for some years, is assigned to Smith Street school. Miss Edith Fox is transferred from the primary room of the Smith Street school to the primary room at South Street school.

The other teachers are the same as last year. There are no changes in school janitors. Dora Bonin, clerk in the office of the superintendent of schools is succeeded by Edith Goyette, Putnam high school graduate. Miss Goyette is to work in the office of the high school principal.

Several of the Putnam teachers have been taking special study during the summer. Miss Elizabeth Smith was a student at Bay Path institute. Miss Marion McDonald was at Harvard summer school. Lauriston L. Noyes spent the summer at the University of Maine. Miss Natalie Dion, Miss Lucy M. Farrows, Miss Alice Cronin, Mrs. Jerome W. Wilder and Miss Gertrude Warner were at Yale University Summer school. Miss Carrie E. Gascoigne and Miss Ina I. Ballard have been traveling in Europe.

The school budget for next year is the same as it was the past year. It has been the same the past as it was the year before. To keep the same budget for three consecutive years is an experience that few towns in New England have had in recent years.

Dietz baking has satisfied two generations of New England mothers

FORTY YEARS AGO some of the best bread makers in New England found that they could delegate this time-taking task to Dietz with no lessening of their standards.

Dietz Bread was at home with the other well-cooked foods on their tables.

Father and son, the Dietz family has carried on the tradition of making fine bread. Always they have had before them an ideal—a loaf perfect in appearance, in nutriment, in texture and in flavor.

A few years ago Mr. Dietz thought he had realized this ideal. For his bread had the perfection which only years of experience, the finest ingredients and a wonderful recipe could give.

Now better than ever!

BUT new experience has brought him even further skill—taught him the secret of new improvements.

Today Dietz Bread—made in the Dolly Madison bakery which Mr. Dietz has purchased and equipped with a marvelous new oven—is better than ever. Richer, crustier, more evenly browned, with a texture fine and firm for smooth, thin slicing, yet so tender and fresh it fairly melts in your mouth.

CONSERVING OIL SUPPLY

When the federal oil conservation board in its report to the president sets forth that there is only a six-year oil supply in sight and declares that economy is vital, it will be necessary to agree that all waste should be checked and every effort made to put the available supply to the best possible use.

The board recognizes of course that new sources will probably be discovered and that is quite conceivable that there should be some knowledge of the present supply. When there is a threat in such commodity it is time that conservation methods should be applied, backed up by legislation if necessary, in order to secure the proper amount for governmental, industrial and business purposes.

Instead of trying to see how much oil can be wasted or used there should be an effort to make the best possible use of it in order to permit it to serve necessary purposes for the longest possible period.

As the result of the study which has been made by the federal board worth while recommendations are made for the conservation of oil, and attention is properly called to the deplorable waste in natural gas. Conservation means elimination of waste in production as well as in consumption. In applying the best methods for refining that are known and to the full cooperation of the producers, distributors and users.

Naturally there is a desire to avoid government interference with the oil business, even to the extent of making regulations in the interest of conservation, if the desired results can be gained otherwise through the assumption of the responsibility by the private interests. The board recommends that legislation be enacted which would permit "unit pool operations" of oil properties as a step that is needed in meeting the requirements of the situation.

The importance of oil is such that there can be no gainsaying the desirability of conserving the supply. The report covers the need of action and its recommendations deserve to be carefully heeded.

A FITTING PUNISHMENT

Many will be eager to applaud the action of the police court in Interlaken, N. J., when they learn how he dealt with the responsible member of an auto party who went through that village at a very fast rate, scattering papers and other litter through the streets.

It required a mile of a mile at 45 miles an hour for the chief to overtake the offending car from which pieces of paper and cardboard boxes were being thrown at intervals. When he overtook it he found he had a "real sport" on his hands, and he determined that he "was having some fun," which he later carried out to make a lesson of that harrowing ride. The pleasure seeker was required to get out of the car and pick up all the papers and litter in the highway for a mile back. It was not only what he was responsible for in the first place, but everything. "Then we'll be sure to get the ones that you throw out," was the chief's comment.

If more of those who are responsible for the rubbish along the highways and the litter in the gutters were called upon for similar clean-up work there would be much more thought given to stopping the scattering of so much unsightly material.

It is customary for many driving along the autos to throw out newspapers, boxes, wrappings and boxes that have contained lunches, empty bottles and in fact most anything which they want to discard finds a resting place inside the road. They may or may not be going that way again but it matters not whether they are or not. They take no heed to what cars are doing, so the encouragement which their act gives to others to do the same thing.

Leaving the prevention work to those with the right civic spirit doesn't get the needed results. It is necessary that those responsible be called to account once in a while and the incident chief appears to be right on the job. The young man looking for some fun will seek other diversions in the future and if we mistake not his "run" will have its good effect upon a large number of others who perhaps needed it quite as much as he did.

SPAIN'S TROUBLE

Information as to the real conditions in Spain hinge upon what a strict censorship permits to come through. Spain has been experiencing trouble which threatened to be serious. That is safely inferred from the action that was taken in declaring martial law. Whether the revolt in the army was actually serious, or overestimated, it is evident that there was no disposition to take any chances.

The revolt of certain regiments might under certain conditions mean little but in view of the spreading unpopularity of the Spanish dictator, General Prima de Rivera, its significance is not to be overlooked since the dictator depends upon the support of the army for the maintenance of his position and when the army indicates that it is withdrawing its support and seeking to get rid of the premier it is bound to be serious.

That the army should be kicking over the traces can be attributed to the fact that the dictator has been introducing reforms in the military organization which are not meeting with approval. It may make little difference what the people think of the acts of the dictator inasmuch as he is not dependent thereon for his office, but when the army balks he is bound to take notice for when he sees the prop on which he must rely weakening he is in danger. He has apparently been striking at those upon whom he depends, a move that would indicate that he was a bit inconsistent, or else an egotistical as to believe that he was so powerful that none would dare to cross him.

Martial law indicates the serious character of the trouble. Yet the retaliation of his confidence in the dictator by King Alfonso must be taken to mean that the dictator has the situation well in hand or the king would not be standing back of him. There are evidences of various kinds that the leadership of Prima de Rivera patterns as much as possible after Mussolini, is not overburdened with friends. Instead of building his support among all classes he seems to have placed full reliance upon the army and now the army has been letting him know that, at least in spots, he is not invulnerable.

CRIME AND LAWLESSNESS

A case that cannot fail to attract much attention is that in New York city where a woman, an unlicensed possessor of a pistol, shot down in cold blood the man she claimed had killed her son six years ago. She had done what she vowed she would do if she ever got the chance. She personally punished a murderer who had managed to escape the attention of the authorities and she apparently took the matter into her own hands when she became convinced after six years that the law or those administering it were going to do nothing for her.

Six years ago the man who was shot insulted the woman who shot him. The insult was resented by the woman's son and he struck the man who turned upon and shot him dead and disappeared. The police got out cards showing that he was wanted but apparently failed to follow up the case for it is charged that he was since twice convicted of other crimes but never arrested or presented for the killing of the boy.

It cannot be said that the woman was justified in killing the man, however that may be the method that is employed by the Sicilians. The fact is that she resorted to lynching tactics, taking the law into her own hands. Perhaps the man got no more than he deserved but he should have been brought to trial and convicted. But it is apparently one of those cases where the delay of the law and the authorities serves to encourage the taking of the law into one's own hands. The woman might have pointed the man out to the police and demanded her arrest. She apparently had more confidence in her own method, and as the result she must face trial on the charge of murder.

LACKING COMMON SENSE

The New Jersey magistrate who caused the arrest of the man who had just been rescued from the surf, because he was so lacking in common sense as to nearly get drowned, is bound to come in for a liberal share of criticism, both favorable and unfavorable.

Just how far he will be able to get in the prosecution is a question but it will at least serve to call attention to such a matter in a manner that should command increased attention. There is no question about the fact that there are too many who fail to use common sense when they are about to go into the water. They take unwarranted chances, go where danger is known to exist and when they are unable to take care of themselves look for others to come to their assistance.

The arrest will raise the question as to what common sense is and whether anyone can be held liable because he fails to have such a priceless possession. Perhaps such an offender is more to be pitied than censured. Perhaps he ought to be sent to some state institution for instructions, and there's a chance that a person in his predicament should not have just thrown up his hands but should have quietly ducked under before he attracted attention.

The New Jersey magistrate is certainly not going to create common sense in those who haven't got it. He may, nevertheless, impress upon the man rescued and a large number besides that more care should be used by those who go into the water, whether they are swimmers or not, and that is most certainly true of the many who take undue risks in trying to wrestle with the surf on the New Jersey coast. If on the other hand he can cause the general public to attach greater importance to common sense so much the better.

A LITERARY DISCUSSION

"I knew you wouldn't mind my bringing Toto along, Mrs. Thom," said the happy owner of the young Airedale as she entered her friend's apartment. "Poor, darling Toto simply adores a morning walk, and he just feels too bad for anysing, if he doesn't get his outing with his missy, don't hims, sweet?"

"I was simply delighted when you consented to read me your paper this morning. You know, Mrs. McDermine has asked me to take part in the general discussion after you read your paper to the club—down, Toto, down, I say, there's a darling— and, of course, I can do it so much more intelligently if I knew beforehand what you were going to say. Your subject, 'The Influence of the Victorian Poets on Moern Literature,' is so comprehensive. Do begin, dear Mrs. Thom; I am all eagerness to see how you have treated the matter. Toto, Toto charge. Now that's a good doggy woggy. Lie right down here by missy's feet and listen to the nice stowy the lady is going to read to us. Now lie still, Toto. Don't you think Toto is a delightful name for my doggums?

"Oh, it's French. Don't you know that Toto is quite a common pet name in France for dogs? Well, perhaps you wouldn't, but you see my French is more practical than classical. You see, I learned by living one summer right among the people. I must have been in Grez-sur-Loire almost a month. It was a simply charming little village, not so very far from Paris. Therdo was a dog there called Toto. See how he starts when he hears his name. Insn't it simply marvelous what keen intelligence some dogs have? Honestly, I sometimes think that Toto understands everything I say. Did you notice him then again?

"Why, yes, certainly I should think you could include the lake poets in the Victoria era. Why not? Even if they did live by the lake, they were still under the queen's rule, weren't they? Do you know, I sometimes wish we had a royal family. There's somethinfi so romantic about — oh, Toto, has oo got something in oor litt'e paw? Dear me, I do hope he hasn't picked up a needle off the floor. Do you sew in this room, Mrs. Thom? There, there, let missy look at it. I can't find a thing, but you saw how he lifted up that paw as if it hurt. Have you a magnifying glass? It may be buried too deep to see it with the naked eye.

"Well, no, I guess there wasn't anything there after all. But I'm a wayso anxious about Toto. You know, I feel that a dog is a sacred trust, and I wouldn't have my Toto-doggums suffer even the tiniest pain that his missy could save him. Would I, doggums sweet?

"Wordsworth's 'Prelude'? Oh, yes, of course I've read it. I never skip prefaces and preludes in all the books I read. I think it is only fair to the author to see what he has to say for himself at the very beginning. Good gracious, Toto, why are you scratching around that desk. Do you think you have mice in here, Mrs. Thom? Toto has a wonderful scent. I tell my husband that he will be wanting to take him on hunting trips, but I won't let him. Toto shan't be separated from his missy; shall oo doggums sweet?

"No, of course you wouldn't have mice in your apartment, but he was acting so knowing that I was sure he smelled something. Maybe it was just furniture oil. Now, Toto, come here. Come here, I say. Lie right down again and listen to this perfectly wonderful essay the lady is reading to us. There's a darling doggums. What was that about the lesser poets of today, Mrs. Thoms? I didn't quite get it.

"Yes, indeed, I do think the lesser poets of today compare with some of the great Victorians. But do they compare favorably or unfavorably? Now, I should think—Toto, lie still. Lie still, I say. There, I'll stroke you a little, and that will quiet old doggums, won't it? You see, how utterly devoted he is to me. He just snuggles down under my petting in the coziest way. Really, I think sometimes he is so amenable to my hand that I could actually hypnotize him. But I don't think it would be right, do you? A poor dog site couldn't give his consent, and I believe we should be honest with animals as we are with each other.

"I just love that part about the Brownings. You have put it so well. Do you think they ever collaborated? I have thought that I saw a woman's touch in the 'Ancient Mariner.'

"Oh, yes, of course, how stupid of me. But I read so much that I naturally get things confused occasionally. Now, Toto, what is the matter? Really, I think I'll have to take this dog for the rest of his walk. Poor doggums is getting so nervous. You know these pedigreed dogs are awfully high strung. Your paper is just splendid, Mrs. Thom. I've enjoyed it immensely. I suppose the remainder is just a summing up, and I can hear that at the club. Come, Toto, there's a boy. Thank you ever so much for a delightful morning.—Exchange.

FACTS FOR THE DIABETIC

By C. H. Hofrichter, M. D. Seattle Member Gorgas Memorial Inst.

Pain usually accompanies disease, but with diabetes this is not the usual experience. This peculiarity invariably characterizes the history of most of the million diabetics in the United States.

Diabetes seems to strike in the dark. It is insidious in its progress. Often one does not know of its presence until stricken with the most severe phases. Though diabetes seems to strike in the dark there are symptoms which precede it and are recognizable by the physician making a thorough physical examination. Hence, the yearly health audit is an important means of detecting this disease in its incipiency.

When discovered diabetes must be treated with "courtesy and respect" with the knowledge that it can be lived with, successfully, by obeying orders.

There are two questions, the answers for which every person with diabetes must know all of the time:

"Am I sugar and acetone free?

"Is my weight being maintained at normal?"

Every person with diabetes should be able to analyze specimens of urine for the presence of sugar and acetone. Observations should be made at frequent intervals to see if these substances are present. If either sugar or acetone are present, alterations should be made to eliminate them.

Blood sugar readings should be made by the physician at frequent enough intervals to know whether the blood sugar is normal. The urine may be normal and the blood have high concentrations of sugar.

Whether any given diet is adequate for any individual is told by the body weight and not by the sensations sent out from the stomach. Watch the body weight. If your weight is normal for your age and height, it should be maintained so. If you are underweight consult your physician about gaining and if you are overweight consult him about losing. Most diabetics are better off when under weight.

Two emergencies may arise which require careful management.

One emergency is that of acute acidosis. This condition is accompanied by stomach uneasiness and distress culminating in vomiting. There is danger to the life of the individual in this state. The person should move bowels by means of an enema, keep warm, go to bed, drink freely of water, black coffee or orange juice, and call his physician immediately.

When under treatment with insulin, there may be times when, with a given dosage of insulin accompanied by a given diet, the blood sugar is reduced to too low a level. Under these conditions the individual may become weak, nervous and perspire freely. Relief is readily obtained by eating food, preferably a readily absorable carbohydrate food such as orange juice, grape juice or sugar. When taking insulin always carry several lumps of sugar in pocket for just such an emergency.

Only with careful co-operation between the physician and patient can diabetes be successful treated. Follow religiously the treatment that the doctor outlines, and it is possible for you to continue to live out your normal span and be happy and comfortable while doing it.

What Makes Home Happy?

FOUR walls can make a house, but it takes a woman to make a home.

The woman who prepares nourishing and attractive meals, does her housework without grumbling, raises a family of healthy boys and girls and still finds time to be a pal to her husband and a friend to her neighbors, is accomplishing the biggest job in the world. Homes like hers—little havens of peace and love—are the bulwark of the nation.

To be a successful homemaker a woman must guard her health. When the mother is not well the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experiences, as Mrs. Riessinger did, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Riessinger was in poor health after the birth of her first baby. She weighed only 98 pounds. One day a neighbor told her of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she decided to try it. "After taking four bottles," she writes, "I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework without one bit of trouble." Her address is Mrs. M. Riessinger, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia, which may be obtained from any druggist for only a few cents, will easily convince you of the great value of this old English recipe.

HOW NORWICH FAIR SEEMED AS LONG AGO AS 1877

It is interesting to read how Norwich Fair impressed a scribe, boy as far back as 1877. Following is an Academy composition written by a pupil of the class of 1880, now the distinguished writer scholar and dean of college libraries, Dr. James Hosmer Penniman of Philadelphia.

The Fair

The New London County Fair has long been an object of interest, and a source of amusement to the residents of Norwich and the surrounding towns and the last one was with even more pleasure than usual. The racing, which is always the principal feature of the fair to the ordinary spectator, was better than on the preceding days and the fastest time on the last day of this track was made. The exhibits of agricultural products were fully equal to those of former years and the number of fine cattle shown speaks well for the farmers of this county. The mechanical department was one of the most interesting and showed that the inhabitants of the "wooden nutmeg state" were not behind hand in their accustomed ingenuity. The usual assortment of bed quilts, tidies, mottoes and other artistic (?) products of the needle occupied a prominent place. The contrast between the premiums awarded for horse racing and those awarded for other and more deserving branches of the fair, is rather striking. The prize in the "free for all" race was $400 while that to be awarded to the artist of the best oil painting was but $2. This is only one instance but others are almost equally noticeable. Of course painting does not come under head of agriculture, but it is doubtful if horse racing does either. Neither are of any practical value to the farmer. The fair is a school for the farmer for whose benefit it is especially intended. It affords an opportunity for showing the results of his years labors, and seeing also what his neighbors have been about. It exhibits the many recent inventions in machines to help him in his work, which form such important assistants to modern agriculture and he goes home with new ideas and resolutions for the coming year.

TWO AUTOMOBILES AND TROLLEY WEDGED TOGETHER

A Chevrolet roadster driven by its owner, Earl Frink of New London, was caught and pinched between a trolley car, and another machine parked at the curb in front of the Boston store on Main street about 9:30 Tuesday night. The parked machine was a Calldac victoria, which is owned by Joseph P. Connor, Jr., of 13 Lincoln avenue and was driven by his brother, Philip Thomas Connor.

Frink was pulling out from the curb when the trolley car, which was coming from the West Side, came along behind his and caught his machine between the trolley and the Connor machine. The three vehicles were wedged tightly together by the running boards of the two automobiles and could not be pulled apart until Officer Hugh McAvoy and Officer Patrick Shahan, with the assistance of bystanders, lifted the Connor car onto the sidewalk.

Both automobiles were considerably damaged. Charles Roessler, motorman on the trolley car, made a charge of reckless driving against Frink.

ATTENDANCE AROUND 6,000 ON SECOND DAY OF COUNTY FAIR

Six thousand men, women and children attended the opening day of the race programme at the 72nd annual fair of the New London County Agricultural society at the local fair grounds Tuesday afternoon. This was the attendance figure announced late Tuesday afternoon by Secretary Gilbert S. Raymond. Although Tuesday was the opening day of the race programme, it was the second day of the fair, the races, vaudeville and band concert having been postponed on Monday owing to rain. It was a better than average second day for the county fair and with clear sunny weather today (Wednesday) and Thursday, the total attendance should approximate something over 10,000.

In sharp contrast to Monday the weather Tuesday afternoon was ideal, with sunny skies and a light breeze. The track, which on Monday, was a veritable sea of mud dried rapidly Tuesday and by 2 o'clock, when the first of the three races on the card was started, was in excellent condition. The races were run off in good order, the last heat of the final race being finished shortly before 6 o'clock. The vaudeville programme is one of the finest ever seen at a New London county fair, and, all in all, this year's fair eclipses those held in previous years.

As has already been announced the fair will be continued an extra day, coming to a close late Thursday afternoon. In connection with the announcement that the fair will run over a day, Secretary Gilbert S. Raymond Tuesday night announced that all exhibits must remain on the grounds until 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon in order that the exhibitors may secure their premiums.

A feature of the afternoon's programme for today will be the athletic contests in which a half hundred athletes from various sections of the state will compete for prizes.

Won 2:18 Pace

Johnnie William, a Springfield horse, took first money in the 2.18 pace (stake) purse, $800, winnig the race in three straight heats, this being one of three track events on the afternoon's card. The events were the 2.18 pace, a 2.24 trot for a purse of $800 and a 2.22 pace for a purse of $500. The first event was the 2.18 pace, with five starters. The race was called a few minutes after 2 o'clock and after the horses scored several times Starter C. B. Stickney of Nashua, N. H., gave the word. The horses got away to a good start, Peter Florentine and Miss Yerger passing the half mile were neck and neck. Johnnie William in a sudden spurt during the last half of the mile pulled ahead of Peter Florentine and Miss Yerger and finished the heat first, Peter Florentine finishing second. Time, 2:13 1-4.

The horses finished the second heat in the same order as the first heat. In the third heat the horses were scored a half dozen times but finally got away to a good start, Johnnie William taking the lead on the first turn and maintaining that position throughout the heat, winning the heat, race and first money. Second money went to Peter Florentine and third money to Miss Yerger. The summary:

2.18 Pace (Stake) Purse $800

Five Heats in 2.24 Trot

The second event on the card was a 2.24 trot for a purse of $500. This race went five heats and would have gone a sixth but the drivers of Dr. Dewey and Ariel Dillon, the only two horses left for the sixth heat, after a conference requested the judges to declare the race finished as the horses stood at the end of the fifth heat. It was then 5:50 o'clock when the fifth heat was finished and as an additional heat would have made no difference in the money prizes for these two horses the drivers reached the decision to allow the race to stand without running the sixth heat. Dr. Dewey getting first money, second money going to Ariel Dillon.

With the exception of the third heat the race was uneventful. In the third heat, Dr. Dewey which finished first, was placed second for several bad breaks, Ariel Dillon which came in second, was placed fifth for a long run on the back stretch in the last half mile and Sage King, which finished the heat third, was placed first. Owing to the fact that the horses were placed no time was announced for the third heat. The summary:

2.24 Trot Purse $500

During the afternoon Announcer Connelly informed the crowd that there will be three races on the card for today (Wednesday), these being a 2.24 state trot, $800, a 2.19 pace, $500 and a 2.20 trot, $500. The races will be started at 2 o'clock.

This year's race officials are:

Starter, C. B. Stickney, Nashua, N. H.; judges, E. E. Woodworth, South Coventry, Elisha Waterman of Lebanon and Charles P. Bushnell of Norwich; timers, Bert Needham of Stafford Springs and A. M. Etheridge of Norwich; clerk of the course, Charles V. Raymond, Norwich.

Vaudeville Programme

Swahn's band, under the leadership of John M. Swahn, provided a splendid concert programme throughout the afternoon. As usual they were well received by the delighted audience and the music served to enliven the waits between the race heats and vaudeville numbers.

The vaudeville programme was excellent in every respect and in the opinion of a number of those who witnessed it outclassed the vaudeville of previous fairs. It was a clean, wholesome entertainment and practically every number was new to Norwich. Edward T. Connelly, who is again serving as official announcer, and who is well known to thousands of fair patrons in this vicinity, kept things moving in a very satisfactory manner. There were not waits between attractions, a vaudeville number or a band number and sometimes both quickly following each race heat.

The first vaudeville number was staged by the Aerial Yorkes, a man and very attractive girl who entertained in a flying trapeze act that won them a big hand. Later in the afternoon Miss Yorkes appeared in a solo aerial act that made a decided hit with the audience. Attired in an attractive gown she stepped into a large egg which was then closed. The egg was next raised some feet above the platform and suddenly flew open revealing Miss Yorkes suspended in the air by her teeth.

Cleopatra, the guideless wonder, proved another splendid number on the vaudeville programme. Cleopatra, a fleecy and intelligent mule, accompanied by two other horses driven by girl jockeys, raced around the half mile track, riderless, and seemed to thoroughly enjoy the race Cleopatra easily won the half mile race and the time was 55 1-4 seconds. After competing the half mile Cleopatra, very knowingly turned around and proudly trotted back to the wire where her trainer was awaiting her. This number was part of the Culverton Roman circus performance.

Frederick De Bell, introduced as King of the high wire, appeared in a clever and thrilling wire act. Attired in room costume De Bell mystified the crowd by fortifying himself for the perilous trip across the high wire with repeated swigs from a flask supposed to contain prohibition liquor. After walking the length of the 150 feet wire in a manner that would indicate that he was most careless of his earthly existence, De Bell then crossed the wire wearing a huge rooster costume. Following this he performed several hair raising stunts on the wire, such as standing on his head, hanging by one leg, hanging by his toes, etc. One of the difficult acts he was seen in was a human pinwheel stunt on the wire. He finished this part of his act with hair raising stunts on a trapeze attached to the high wire. Later in the afternoon the appeared in an additional act, riding a bicycle on the wire. Needless to say he got a big hand for his part in the afternoon's entertainment.

The Culvertons staged an act new to Norwich, a standing Roman running race. Two clever riders, each standing on two horses, dashed around the half mile track in a mad and most exciting race. The race was a draw and the time was 1:02 1-4.

Another act by the Culverton Roman Circus troupe was a chariot race. In this race were two Roman chariots each drawn by four sleek horses. The chariot drivers raced madly around the track, the warning chariot finishing the half mile in 1:01 1-2.

A running race by four horses, driven by gaily costumed jockeys was another attractive number given by the Culvertons. This was one of the most exciting acts on the wonderful programme. The time for the half mile race was 59 1-2 seconds.

An amusing number was a mule race, another Culverton offering. Four mules attached to sulkies were driven onto the track by the riders stand and volunteer drivers called for. Just before the start of the race, one of the mules went on a sudden rampage, threw the colored volunteer driver off the sulky and gave an exhibition race around the track. After nearly completing the half mile circuit the mule climbed the bank on the north turn, dragging the sulky after him. He was finally captured after some difficulty and the race was then started. It proved the most amusing race of the afternoon. The time for the half mile was 1:24 1-2.

The vaudeville programme will be repeated this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Balloon Ascension

The big attraction for the younger generation was the balloon ascension with a triple parachute drop by Prof. Arthur Jewell of the Jewell Balloon Co., of Philadelphia. About 5:30 o'clock the balloon men started to raise the big bag on the poles, preparatory to filling it with the necessary hot air to carry it up into the clouds. The raising of the black bag was the signal for most of the boys on the grounds and a number of men to gather around this every popular attraction.

Soon the bag began to take shape and then it filled rapidly. A few minutes before 6:30 o'clock the ropes were released and a moment or two later the balloon rose majestically, taking a northeast course. So light was the breeze that the balloon went up in an almost straight line. Several hundred feet above the grounds it apparently got into a current which slowly carried it in a northeasterly direction. When Prof. Jewell cut loose high in the air the balloon was still hovering above the grounds. Prof. Jewell made three parachute drops and landed safely just outside the fairgrounds.

IN AGRICULTURAL HALL AND THE CROWDED ANNEX

By Tuesday morning every concession in Exhibit hall was occupied and activities were in full form.

Crowds moved back and forth in an orderly and interested manner, inspecting the various displays and finding much to entertain and amuse them.

Woman Voters' League

Mrs. A. W. Avery, of Montville, chairman of the Montville League of Women Voters, assisted by Mrs. Arthur E. Blatsdell, is in charge of a booth in Agricultural Hall. They represent the Connecticut League of Woman Voters, and during the Fair are selling and distributing literature explaining why women should join the league; also give out pamphlets which impress upon women the fact that the league is educational. The exhibit came direct from the Hartford headquarters of the state league, the Montville league, as nearest the Fair ground, being asked to take charge of the booth. Others assisting are Mrs. B. G. Hewitt, Mrs. Fred Rogers and Mrs. Walter Dolbeare.

Real Silk Stockings

All women visitors to the Fair are interested in the exhibit of real silk stockings, from the Hudson Building, Hartford.

Norwich State Hospital

Upwards of 2,000 articles, work of the patients at Norwich State hospital are on display in an enlarged space, occupying 35 feet. The feature of the varied and interesting display is the reed suite, two chairs and a davenport, upholstered in cretonne.

Hand woven neck scarfs, table runners, silk bags, sofa pillows, luncheon, buffet and vanity sets, towels, toys, baskets in reed and raffia, children's furniture, rag mats, rugs, windmills and birdhouses are among the handwork show.

Assisting Harry Kromer, director of occupational therapy, under whose supervision all the fine work is done, are Miss Marjorie Barber, Mrs. Daisy Heubler and Fred Bryan.

The idea of the sale is not to make money on the articles, but they are sold a trifle above cost, the patients getting a percentage, the balance going for new material. The primary aim of the work is to keep the patients occupied.

Schwartz Brothers

Schwartz Bros. Inc., fill space at the entrance booth, main Exhibition Hall. This contains a splendid display of the famous Glenwood coal and gas ranges in several styles and sizes.

Visitors to the Fair should see the wonderful gold medal combination coal and gas range. They take up less room in the home than do the ordinary cooking range, yet each contains cooking capacity equal to both a coal range and gas range.

An attractive feature of the Schwartz Bros. display is the beautiful Glenwood connect heater, which heats the whole home at the cost of an ordinary parlor store. Every householder will want to visit this booth and fill out the free Glenwood blank; the lucky owner of the oldest Glenwood range in use in Norwich and vicinity gets a new Glenwood range free. Information and blanks can be obtained at the Fair ground, or at Schwartz Bros.' store.

The Fair exhibit in charge of Clarence Brown D. C. Spencer and H. A. Nickerson of the Glenwood Range company from the Taunton, Mass., factory are demonstrating the good points of the Glenwoods.

Jewelry and Novelties

Miss Katherine Morrow, from Boston, is displaying an appealing line of necklaces, rings and festoons in rhinestones, pearls and rubies. Pendants in polished woods from Arizona are a novelty.

Magic Lustre Polish

Rogers Lake Shore

The Ideal Homes Company of New Haven, with a force representatives at the grounds, are [illegible] at Old Lyme Green. The company is developing the north and west shore of Rogers Lake, having sold 30 acres in six weeks and is at present erecting a model demonstrator clubhouse. Harry Kinney, Joseph J. Wall and Joseph Perry are in charge of the company's interests at the fair.

Associated Trade Press

Automobile Glasses

NORWICH WILL PETITION TO CLOSE COLCHESTER ROAD

The city of Norwich will petition the superior court to have a portion of the State Hill road in Colchester discontinued, according to a vote that was passed at the September meeting of the common council Tuesday evening. The demand for the closing of a portion of the road is brought about by the bending of the Deep River road into Norwich, but the selectmen of Colchester have decreed to close the road, alleging that to do so would divide the tenth school district of the town, adding expense to the town and also depreciating the value of farms in that vicinity.

Mayor Miles B. Waters called the council meeting to order at 8:00, daylight saving time, and Clerk Weston C. Pullen read several petitions and communications. A petition from Chester C. Bushnell and others for a long light on Sunnyside avenue in front of his home was referred to the police committee with power, and Miss Ella M. Norton's petition for removal or trimming of a tree in front of 118 McKinley avenue was referred to the public works committee.

The same action was taken with the petition of William A. Gordon of 295 Prospect street for removal of a tree struck by lightning.

The monthly reports of the street commissioner and the city treasurer were presented and accepted.

Alderman Henry Gebrath reported on the acceptance of the Golden street extension and that it would cost $160 to remove poles on the street and the committee asked for more time to confer on the matter.

The annual report of the city auditors was accepted.

Claims Against City.

Miss E. Hilderbrand presented a claim for $6 for a front spring on her automobile broken on Boswell avenue. Mrs. Hilda Davis made a claim for injuries to her three-year old son, William, struck on the head by a moving swing on the Jail Hill playground on July 2, and John J. Quinn made a claim for damages for falling down an elevator shaft on Shetucket street when one of two sidewalk covers was raised suddenly on July 15.

All the claims were referred to the finance committee and the corporation counsel.

The council authorized the borrowing of $26,000 from the Norwich Savings Society on a note at 4½ per cent. to cover the amounts voted at the recent special city meeting for cement road between the trolley tracks on West Thames street, and for extra money for the police and fire departments.

A refund of $5.20 was voted to Ethel Goldfaden for city tax paid on an automobile she never owned.

James D'Atri was made a special constable by vote of the council James E. Ryan was appointed a supernumerary policeman, and Peter Vuono, who is now a supernumerary, was put on the regular force.

Bills were received from the city departments and ordered paid as follows: Recreation commission, $2,037.86, gas and electric department, $110,955.00, finance department $38,- [illegible] cemetery department $1,072.74 park department $1,124.4 [illegible] department $7,000.00, public works department $5,000.00, Deep River reservoir $45,000.00, water department $6,247.00, police department $8,000.00, street lighting $7,000.00.

Authorized Water Bonds.

The regular meeting of the council adjourned at 8:50 and ten minutes later a special meeting was held at which the council authorized the issue of the $340,000 worth of water bonds for which the only bid was at the rate of 4 [illegible], with accrued interest, this bid being by R. M. Grant & Co. of Boston. The issue will consist of 340 bonds of $1,000 each which are payable at the Merchants National Bank, Boston, or the Hanover National Bank, New York. At the rate which is bid the city receives a premium of $2,196 on the [illegible].

Visited Norwich Fair

Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and daughter Ruth, of Attleboro, Mass., were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lindell of Jewett City and on Labor day they visited the Norwich fair.

Church Office Closed

On account of the Baptist Association meeting in Waterford the office of the Central Baptist church will be closed on Wednesday.

Two couples who were married 70 years ago at a double wedding, celebrated their seventieth wedding anniversaries. They are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Long of Minneapolis, 92, and 90 years old respectively and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stephens of St. Paul, 90 and 88 years old respectively.

HEARING PETITION TO PREVENT DEMPSEY BOUT

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7—(AP)—Hearing of a petition for an injunction to prevent Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion from boxing Gene Tunney in Philadelphia or elsewhere until he meets Harry Willis, negro, in Chicago, began in superior court here this afternoon.

The injunction was asked by the Chicago Coliseum club, which claims it holds a contract Dempsey is seeking to violate. Dempsey's attorneys denied existence of such a contract.

With the calling of the case, Earl Cox, Indianapolis attorney, who is representing Dempsey, filed a motion asking Judge Clinton Givan to order Sol Esarey, attorney for R. E. Clements of the Chicago Athletic organization to produce the alleged contract.

Esarey produced a letter unsigned by Dempsey and asserted that the champion was in possession of the original contract negotiated in Los Angeles. The agreement introduced by Esarey, which also was made part of the original complaint, provides that $300,000 be paid Dempsey by a certain date. Mr. Cox asserted that the Chicago promoters had failed to pay the money and that the contract was not valid.

Clements appeared in court today and was also represented by Walter Arnold, South Bend attorney. Arnold asserted that if the restraining order was granted the case then would be passed to the Pennsylvania state courts which would be bound, under the constitution, to see that the injunction was observed.

TUNNEY LET SPARRING PARTNERS DO LEADING

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Gene Tunney switched his training program today by devoting much of his attention during the afternoon's six rounds of boxing to defensive tactics. Where he tore into his sparring partners yesterday, today he left Vidabeck, Mays and Gorman do the tearing.

Bud Gorman, biggest of Tunney's sparring partners, left on a leave of absence after today's workout. He is to meet Bill Gothe at Albany Thursday night. All of Tunney's sparring mates, except Oak Till, the middleweight, have fights booked, Vidabeck and Mays having engagements for next week.

There will be no boxing tomorrow. Lou Fink, the trainer, ordering a rest after the fast and furious affairs yesterday and today.

Tommy Milligan, the new British middleweight champion, is to fight Roland Todd in London on Oct. 7. Todd held the title three years and forfeited it by his refusal to fight.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 7—(AP)—The Giants divided a doubleheader with the Braves here today, taking the first game by 7 to 2 and dropped the second contest by 7 to 5. Although Boston gained an even break, the team went back to last place as Philadelphia moved into the seventh position by two percentage points by virtue of a victory over Brooklyn.

KAUFMAN AND GRAVES WINNERS OF EAST. CONN. DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP

Paul Kaufman of Washington, D. C. and S. M. Graves of New London won the Eastern Connecticut Tennis doubles championship at the Norwich Golf club today when they defeated Royal D. Leighton of New Haven and T. N. Lewin of New York after a see-saw match of four sets.

Kaufman and Graves started nicely in the first set easily taking first count by a score of 6 to 4. In the second set Leighton's placements were unusually accurate and aided considerably in carrying he and his partner to the victory 7 to 5. This was the only set won by the New Haven and New York combination for Graves net play in the remaining set could hardly have been improved upon and he killed the short lobs of Leighton and Lewin, holding them to the back court throughout the match, which took 12 games before Kaufman and Graves won 7 to 5. With the score two to one in their favor Kaufman and Graves went into the fourth set with a dash and kept Leighton and Lewin on the run, dashing through the set for the championship with a 6 to 2 score.

The prize to the winning team was a Deluxe Thermos Bottle engraved and in hand sewed English hide case, while Leighton and Lewin, runners-up received silver trays.

In the semi-finals Kaufman and Graves were hard pushed to defeat Alex Persons of Worcester, Mass. and John Williams of Norwich. Kaufman and Graves lost the first set 3-6, but piled up a lead of 5 to 2 games in the second. At this stage Persons and Williams showed a dash and by brilliant playing brought the score to five all. The next two games went to Kaufman and Graves, and they clinched the right to enter the finals by winning the third set 6 to 2.

The singles in the Eastern Connecticut Tennis Championships are to be played this coming week end, the semi-finals on Saturday and the finals on Sunday. Alex Persons of Worcester is to meet John Williams of Norwich in the semi-finals, and Paul Kaufman of Washington, D. C. and G. L. DEMPSEY LAYING OFF PLANS FISHING TRIP

The world's heavyweight champion, starting his three days' lay-off, spent the day loafing around his bungalow, penning a stack upon stack of answers to letters from personal friends, asking his co-operation in aiding them in getting desirable ringside seats for his championship fight with Gene Tunney, at Philadelphia Sept. 23.

The champion has arranged to purchase 500 seats for the fight and intends to distribute them among personal friends. Dempsey first asked to have 500 seats reserved, but backed down the request in the face of the heavy demand.

Dempsey intends to go on a fishing trip tomorrow if the weather is favorable.

LEGIONNAIRES SAFE IN DANIELSON TWI-LEAGUE

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 7.—Lagace's stole tonight's ball game out of the dying embers of a red hot contest when he caught one of Ashley's benders on the tail of his bat, hitting the ball out over the houses and treetops in right field and allowing him to chase three men ahead of him as he circled the sacks, to win his own ball game for the Fighting Buddies from the scrapping Cleavers, 4 to 1. This victory locks the legionnaires up into a high and dry seat from which they may watch the Nail Drivers tousle with the Kilowatts in hopes of gaining a right to battle the veterans for the twi-league championship crown. Should such be the situation the dispute to the title will probably be settled in a post season series. Lagace, the Buddies' seasoned port-sider, twirled heady ball, maxing and slanting the sphere in such a manner that proved exceedingly baffling for the Cleavers to solve, besides wielding the most damaging sludgeon. Ashley seemed to have plenty of stuff on the ball but his delivery was not as well handled and his control less evident. The score:

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Over two billion smoked a month!

Men have certainly made their preference clear!

REMEMBER just a few years back you saw but few Chesterfields?

Mighty different today! You see them everywhere! But it's not that fact, but the reason, that's the interesting thing.

Natural tobacco taste—a taste secured by matching one fine variety against another, a taste which retains tobacco character—that's why Chesterfield is America's fastest-growing cigarette, and has been for four consecutive years. Not much doubt nowadays about what smokers want!

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Fellow That Stands on His Head

Whose head must take the place of feet
You'll find is seldom indiscreet.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox stood staring at the Barnacles covering the lower part of the rocks above him. Graywing the Gull had just said that they were growing here. Reddy had seen those things many, many times. He had seen them every time he had passed by the rocks; but he had always supposed they were a part of the rocks. It hadn't entered his head that they were anything else

He walked over to the nearest rock and looked long and hard at those Barnacles

So it was that when Graywing said that the Barnacles were growing on the rock Reddy didn't understand. [illegible]

Graywing chuckled. "Perhaps you'll see them growing," said he. "But [illegible] those who pass and scratch their heads and wonder and grow."

Reddy didn't [illegible] so sure. He walked over to the nearest rock and looked long and hard at those Barnacles. They [illegible] very much like the rocks [illegible] but they were of different sizes, and [illegible] some of such [illegible] and the puzzled look on Reddy's face.

"I don't suppose," said Graywing, as [illegible] suspected that they were a living creature inside each of those queer "fingers."

"No," said Reddy. "I never have. Is [illegible]"

"Many over there," replied Graywing, [illegible] the tops of the rocks. "Now," said Graywing, "you know some of those Barnacles that [illegible] under water [illegible] happens."

Reddy did [illegible] was told to do. Presently he discovered that the top of one of those Barnacles was open. While he was looking at it what appeared to be [illegible] legs were thrust out from it and began to move about in the water. "My goodness!" exclaimed Reddy.

Graywing chuckled. He was getting his chuckles at Reddy's expense these days. "Now you've learned something, haven't you?" said he.

"I certainly have," replied Reddy. "What are those funny legs waving about in the water for?"

"That's the way that fellow gets his food," replied Graywing. "That Barnacle likes to feed which we cannot see, and those waving legs there make the currents of water which carry the food into the mouth of the Barnacle."

"Do you mean to say that the thing inside that shell has a mouth?" demanded Reddy.

"Of course. Why not?" returned Graywing, chuckling again. "Why wouldn't it have a mouth as well as some feathered folk we know?"

"Well, what I want to know is," said Reddy, "how he got fastened to that rock in the first place."

"Oh," replied Graywing, "when he is very [illegible] out of the sea he [illegible] and he swam around. But by and by after some changes he decided to settle down in life. So he butted his head against that rock and stuck there. Finally, he built up that shell around it, and there he's been ever since, standing on his head. When the water covers him he opens up and feeds. You will notice that those Barnacles on the rocks that are out of water are closed up tight. So there you are! A Barnacle stands on his head and collects his food with his feet."

RESERVOIR BONDS GO TO BOSTON BIDDER

Bids for the final series of water bonds for building the Deep River reservoir, amounting to $340,000, were opened Tuesday at noon in the office of Mayor Milo R. Waters at the court house and the issue of bonds was awarded to R. M. Grant & Co. of Boston, who were the highest of the six bidders. This issue will be dated Sept. 15, 1926, carrying 4 1-4 per cent interest, and will be paid off in equal instalments every year, ending in 1964. The two previous bond issues on the reservoir work were for $210,000 and $525,000.

By the awarding of the bond issue to Grant & Co., the city will receive the sum of $3,136 over and above the $340,000 or a total of $343,136. The bonds yield four and one-quarter per cent. interest and payable $10,000 each year, Sept. 15, 1931 to 1964.

Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., opened the sealed bids which were read by Mayor Milo R. Waters, City Treasurer Charles S. Avery and president of the board of Water Commissioners, Frank H. Quinley, were also present.

Grant & Co. bid was $100.94 and accrued interest for the $340,000 bonds.

The Pilgrim Mother

A statue to the Pilgrim Mother was recently unveiled at Plymouth, Mass. Through her we honor every pioneer woman who endured privation and hardships that a nation might live. Shoulder to shoulder with her husband she built a home in the wilderness and reared her sturdy sons and daughters. She cooked and sewed. She spun and wove for her growing family. When they were ill, she brewed potent remedies from roots and herbs—such roots and herbs as are now used in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

What Experience Means

THE EDWARD CHAPPELL reputation is a priceless asset built up through nearly a century of clean business—Chappell principles and business policies of stocking only the highest grades of coal and lumber are as unvarying today as they were 90 years ago.

Many companies selling inferior merchandise have come and gone, but the Chappell quality policy has stood the acid test of the years.

Take building material for instance. We have discovered that most of the defects in buildings is not the fault of poor construction—but rather the selection of inferior materials.

Did you know that your coal bill can be reduced to a great extent? That's part of the Chappell policy too! Selecting the correct sizes of the better grades of coal will show you a worthwhile saving. Just tell the Edward Chappell Company the details of your heating equipment and they will tell you the kind of coal to buy. No obligation, of course.

A young man was arrested this morning by Patrolmen Thomas Lyden and William Riordan charged with bastady, complaint being made to the officers by a West Colt street woman. A prosecution of the accused did not take place, in the police court today for when Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollendersky heard the facts in the case, he ordered the prisoner discharged as no act of criminality had been performed, stating that, if the complaint desired further action, she should obtain it through a civil process.

GREEN ST. PROPOSITION DISCUSSED BY COUNCIL

NEW LONDON, Sept. 7—The city council held a meeting of an hour's duration this evening and disposed of many matters that were before the members. The matter of the cutting through of Tilley St[illegible] was broached, and the city manager [illegible] contemplating the work [illegible] that the street should be widened and the map showed how it was proposed to accomplish what was in mind. The matter is now in the hands of the public works committee and will be reported at the next meeting.

There were ten applications for permission to build or alter property before the council. Three were for the erection of cottages in the section known as Hillside and two were for the construction of garages.

RIVERSIDE HEIGHTS SEWERING FAVORED

NEW LONDON, Sept. 7—The matter of sewering the section of the city known as Riverside Heights was brought to the attention of the city council this evening in a report made by the city manager, and the council expressed its purpose of beginning and carrying through to completion this important work. It will be expensive and the city will bear a good portion of the cost. Under the plan outlined by the city manager and the engineer of the sewer and water departments of the city, it will contemplate the erection or outfall sewers, etc., which expense will be borne by the city entirely, so far as that work is done east of the tracks of the Central Vermont railroad. The cost of the sewers west of the railroad in Thatcher street, Oneco avenue, Deshon street and Nameaug avenue will be borne by the property benefitted.

Councilor May brought this matter to the council nearly a year ago and there came petitions of the property owners supplementary to that. The property owners perhaps anticipated that the cost of the sewers would not be heavy and that the work would not be of the importance that it is.

They will have a different notion when the contemplated work is completed. The city manager has been instructed to prepare plans, present estimates of the cost of the work and do all that is necessary to be done to get the work started.

POLICE SALARY INCREASE COUNCILOR MAY'S PROPOSAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 7—Councilor May brought the matter of an increase in the salaries of policemen, from captain down to patrolmen, to the attention of the council this evening, in a long report which he presented citing the salaries paid in the ten leading cities of the state. He showed that the New London officers received smaller compensation than did the guardians of the peace in any of the cities mentioned. He moved to have the report received for filing and the matter or salaries referred to the committee on public safety, that it might be disposed of in time to have the project considered for incorporation in the next budget to be prepared in the event that an increase was granted.

Councilor Whiton called attention of the council to the fact that the members were the servants of the people and reminded them that they were spending the money of the taxpayers. He said there were other expenditures that must be considered also.

Tax Collector Allen C. Richards, his wife and daughter, Miss Marguerite Richards, 59 Broad street, accompanied by Miss Dorothy E. White, 42 Berkley avenue, left this morning for a tour of New England and New York state. They will be absent a week.

With 30 odd cases, 15 of them intoxication charges, presented in the police court Monday morning and a dozen additional others presented in court this morning, there is every indication that the grist for tomorrow's session of court will be exceedingly light. At 9 o'clock tonight there were but two prisoners awaiting hearings, both charged with intoxication. One of them is Michael Sullivan, laborer, who has a long police record, for tonight's arrest made the 41st time that Sullivan has been arrested; practically all the arrests were for intoxication. This evening he was arrested on North Bank street by Patrolmen William Graham and Louis Wheeler when found helpless in drunk. The last time that Sullivan was presented in court was last May. The other drunk, is a stranger hereabouts and was making a nuisance of himself at the union station when arrested by Patrolman Braxton Hill and Sergeant Michael McGrath, of the special agents of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

City Manager Holt presented a tentative budget for the coming year. It shows an increase in expenses of the city that looks like an increase of a mill in the taxes. But the budget has not yet gotten as far as the stage of consideration in detail. The increases will be largely in the educational department and in repairs to the public wharf. The matter of repairing the tower of Bulkeley school was mentioned in a report on that subject, but the city manager did not see that the city could make the expenditure asked for by the trustees of the school, inasmuch as Bulkeley school is a private institution and while the city contributes to its support it was not for the city to repair the building. The matter of taking down the tower was suggested.

Mayor Fox expressed the opinion that the management of the schools should confer with the council each year, prior to the preparation of the budget, that the members might know what was proposed in the matter of the expense of the city for school maintenance. He said that at present teachers were engaged without the knowledge of the council and that expense was put on the city that perhaps could be avoided. He referred to the commercial department which it is contemplated to establish in particular. The remarks of the mayor suggested that he believed there should be close cooperation between the management of the schools and the city council.

A resolution transferring to the city manager certain duties that now develops upon the selectment was adopted, after its third reading.

Permits for gasoline tanks were granted, upon recommendation of the deputy fire marshal.

Mary Buolo, 4, an inmate of the State Farm for Women, Niantic, made her escape this afternoon and the New London police were requested to be on the lookout for her. The [illegible] described as being short of poor complexion, bobbed hair, wore glasses and had a blue voile dress. She is an Italian.

Numerous complaints were received by the police tonight because of many electric lights being out throughout the city. Most conspicuous of the lights that failed to illumine were on State street and the municipal pier.

Patrolman Louis Wheeler reported at police headquarters tonight the existence of two danger spots on North Bank street. Both are located in the sidewalk, near John street. The report will be turned over to the highway department tomorrow.

The New London police tonight were requested to arrest Mary Mazzardo, who ran away from Mattapoisett, Mass., this afternoon with Edward LeBlanc, United States Coast Guard sailor. The girl is described as being 18, but small. When she left home the Mazzardo girl wore a blue and white checked dress.

Anthony Morano and Miss Isabel Lloyd, 11 Tedrow avenue, were married this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan. Joseph Flora, brother of the bride, was best man, and Miss Florence Ramus, was maid of honor.

Praise is due the man who makes good when conditions are bad.
